Introduction

This small collection is made up of those articles of mine which appeared in the tabloid-size newspaper of White Aryan Resistance - or WAR - from 1986 to 1997.

In formatting this volume, I decided in favor of reproducing directly from the WAR pages rather than retyping the pieces for two reasons: The timely feel and flavor would be thus retained; And it would be a lot less work.

The original thought behind retyping had been on account of the number of typographical errors to be found in some of the text. But I've answered that problem by including an errata page at the back of the book.

At first I intended to reproduce the WAR pages over two of these pages, sideways in order to hold as closely as possible to the original size. But it immediately became apparent that splitting photos and cartoons, etc., in that way would not be desirable and so somewhat greater size was sacrificed in favor of aesthetics.

If the print appears too small, you might want to consult your optometrist.

Two of the articles were taken from my Siege newsletter which ran from 1980 to 1986. The very first one to appear in WAR, that is, in Volume 5, No. 1, and then in Volume 12, No. 6.

Siege the book appeared in the first half of 1993 and WAR wasted no time in promoting it as can be seen by the cover of the July, 1993 issue. I estimate that WAR and the advertising it maintained accounted for approximately one-half the total sales of the first edition of Siege.

I chose to reproduce only three of the WAR covers from this eleven-year span for reasons of pertinence and of space. The cover from that issue which first carried one of my articles, naturally, which also helps illustrate the evolution that WAR itself underwent during the same time; The cover just mentioned that heralded the appearance of Siege; And the March, 1997, issue that contained the piece I was requested to do honoring the 79th birthday of George Lincoln Rockwell.

By far the majority of these articles were written from confinement and printed during confinement within the Colorado State Prison System, that is, from May of 1995 through the very final one in October of 1997 when I entered the parole phase of that particular odyssey.

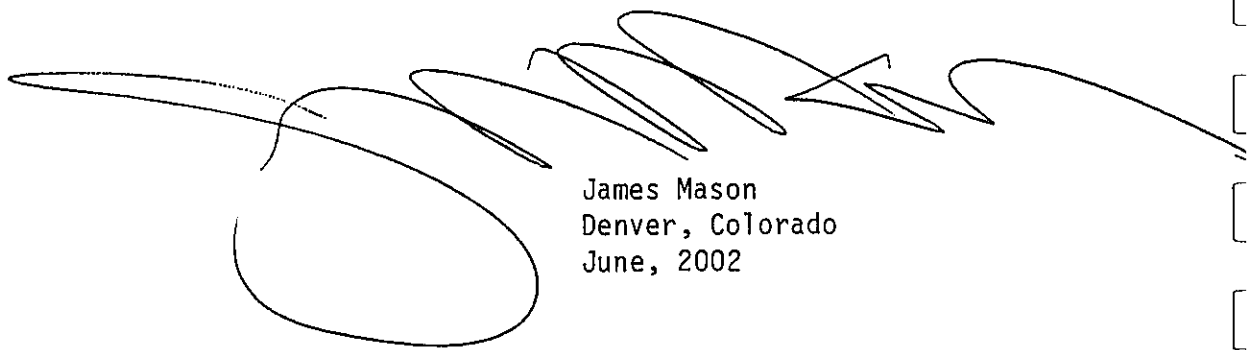

Note that in the September, 1997, issue of WAR, two articles of mine appeared. The first, The Progeny of Joe Camel, under my own name and then Epilogue under Robert Burns, the pseudonym I chose to write under for the period I was to be supervised on parole and forbidden to have any contact with "extremist" groups.

One more Robert Burns article was to appear in the October, 1997, WAR along with one more under my own name.

And then no more. In this Movement interests and emphasis come to diverge more often than not.

Finally, most of the cartoons which grace the following pages are by WAR cartoonist "A. Wyatt Mann", or, as he is otherwise known, Nick Bougas.

Here then are works that I remain proud of.

"Racism" - Let's Define It!

Perhaps the most objectionable part of the Anti-Racists' philosophy is their feeling of the necessity to promote race-mixing as a means of combating Racism. The first method of attack occurred shortly after WWII when the word RACISM was first coined and set into American dictionaries. In coining the word, it was presumed that certain White gentiles held themselves to be genetically superior to other races. It was presumed that certain White gentiles held Jews in disdain because the raciality of the Jews significantly differed from that of the Aryans. Another significant factor of Racism was that the White Racist would not allow his kind to breed with other races. Thusly, for Jews to be of the same racial stock, they would have had to be part of the Racist experience, which they openly are not. Since there is a genetic difference between Jews and Aryans by virtue of their breeding habits, Racist vs. anti-Racist, the question that follows is, "What is the difference?"

The Anti-Racists do not allow for arguments which would show one race to be superior to another by virtue of race. Anti-Racism is an axiomatic philosophy that bases itself foremost on the presumption that "all races are equal". To consider evidence contrary to that belief would be "Racist thinking!" Anti-racism must be self-evident or one must "prove" that "all races are equal" (which they can not). And, for people to adhere to a "self-evident" philosophy, someone must first tell them to do so. Thus, another question is, "Who is telling them?"

Anti-Racism is, perhaps, the most popular philosophy in the Western World, today, if sexual liberalism is excluded. It permeates every facet of Western life. Anti-Racism is not a consensus philosophy with a single outlook. There are anti-Racists who would not engage in inter-racial marriage, but would not object to someone else promoting it even if it affected the lives of their children adversely. Because of the newness of the philosophy, there is no standard by which people can judge its effects. And usually, attempts to justify it - after its negative effects are felt - end with a pathetic discussion of the "baseness" of the existence of different races. The Anti-Racist conceptualizes that there would be few problems in the world if there were only one race of people. And presumably, the ONE race would be a mix of all the existing races.

The efforts of the Anti-Racists are usually frustrated by people's natural affinity for their own race. Though most people openly agree with the Anti-Racists' philosophy, most people are, also, hypocrites. The positive "lip service" given to the Anti-Racists more often reflects the "guilt" they would feel if they said anything else. The "Political Socialization" that White children receive in public schools renders them with feelings of guilt for supposed race crimes they've never committed. As they come into contact with non-Whites in public schools, White children are treated with revenge and race-crossing begins with the rape of children. Notwithstanding, the planners of race-mixing had taken this into account.

When the word RACISM was coined, it originally wasn't verbally applied to people who refrain from race-mixing, but its usage became popular street terms for White women who would not have inter-racial sex. Later, it was presumed to be a cultural characteristic with no natural genetic personality traits at play in choosing partners. Because of the popularity of Anti-Racism, it is not beneficial to be called a Racist ordinarily, neither is it detrimental to be called one, because the accusations are so spurious anyway, that hardly anybody pays attention to name-calling. When someone says they disapprove of inter-racial marriage, it is automatically assumed that they hold their own race in higher regard than the other race in question, which by definition is Racism.

Since Racism is usually a term applied to White people, and in particular, the White working class, it is of interest to note why. White working people are less able to build walls around their communities than their rich, White counterparts. They are more susceptible to minority crime and react before the elite would.

A good case in point is with Germany. The working class of that country was primarily technological and industrial and were dependent on grain imports for their agricultural needs. With sixty percent unemployment, they had trouble feeding their families. They were near to losing their country by foreign exploiters. This was occurring while Stalin of Russia was purging his country of their Kulaks and seizing their land for the ownership of the state. Germany had been supplying 50,000 engineers per year to Russia during those years. The human resource that Germany provided Russia was immense where now a population of three million German speaking persons still remain on Russian soil. Their betrayal was complete and unexpected. This is why Germans rose up so fast in their war efforts. To German gentiles, communism meant a further reduction in the control of their lives. The Nazis openly battled Communists in the streets during their rise to power. People rapidly polarize in times of hunger. It is, perhaps, no coincidence that several New York banks have been buying farm mortgages from smaller local banks and have been foreclosing with interesting rapidity in this country. It is understandable that a people in a city like New York would be concerned about the fact that almost every American farm is owned by White gentiles and if there is a White population in New York at all, it is predominantly Jewish.

Whenever you mention the word White to a Jew, they become very agitated without exception. Since Jews will marry into any race of people that they happen to be living among, the question of raciality becomes confusing. They have a sense of "Jewish" racehood, but they also have a sense of racehood for what they are genetically. They may have a complete sense of being "Jewish" genetically, or they may feel another way and more "religious" about being a Jew. Nevertheless, there have been times when Jews were forbidden to marry Whites because of their mixed-race features and their race-mixing culture. Now that such attitudes are considered to be Racist, the genetic pool called White people will have all sorts of foreign genes poured into it as a result of various forms of Jewish control.

The most interesting facet of the anti-Racists - their description of Race. They refer to all races as "The Human Race." It's a blanket denial that there are different races with profound racial differences. In Jewish philosophy, Jews are "the humans" and gentiles are on the level of beasts. To say that Chinese are superior to Blacks would be like saying that part of the Jewish race is inferior to another part. In Judaism, all Jews have equal rights. So, racist thinking is not permissible since every racial fringe of "the Jewish race" is important to the core. It seldom, if ever, occurs to Jews that their rise in world influence coincided with the degree to which they lived among and married into European gentile families. But, the thought of being "cut off" from that heritage is frightening to them. If there had not been prosperity in living among Whites, they would have left Europe long ago.

It's easy to notice the ethnocentricity of every Race in America, except the White Race. Every college campus has ethnic groups for every kind. White Student Unions are virtually forbidden as they are considered to be Racist. By the time White students graduate, they usually haven't any definite concept of what White is. It's partially because every application of the term White is derogatory. White trash, WASP, White dog, White Man, White Male Supremacist, White Woman, White Girl, Great White Father, Great White Hope, to name a

"the Pigs are your friends"

"If there's trouble, call a cop." If you believe that, please stay away from me. That is a mentality that has to be stamped out. I realize that an entire segment of the population will probably have to be stamped out along with it, but nonetheless. The artificially created instinct to rely on police whenever extraordinary circumstances arise has made way for the "Uncle Tom" syndrome I have mentioned often in the past. Indeed, without this reliance upon a paid army in blue to handle your violent, extra-legal situations for you, no such "Uncle Tom" syndrome could have arisen at all. To the average person, the cop is "Big Brother". The natural thing for them to do when the threat of trouble appears - or is even hinted at - is to go running to the Pigs with the story. Pigs may be Pigs, but those who have stuck with them are indeed swine.

What's been cultivated over the past century or so in this country has been generation after generation of more or less adult children. Those who can perform certain jobs they are trained to do and generally live within "Master's Rules", but who cannot truly fend for themselves when it comes right down to jungle basics, the Law of Nature. Anyone steps out of line and it's "Call the police." "Let the police handle it." And, on the opposite hand, they know that should they ever step out of line themselves, they will have to deal with the police. That is the outer most limit of their existence, their thought and their world. It never occurs to them, "What if the police are no more than tools of an evil, corrupt regime?"

Even among children, however, is the lingering animal (true) instinct that where there are police, there is trouble. People are nervous within sight of cops, whether on the street or on the road. That's the reason for all the P.R. and such slogans as "The Police Are Your Friends". It works - up to a point - but within that lies all that is necessary to make their rule complete. They may not have the warmth and affection, but they've got the fear and respect. When it comes right down to it, results are all that count and the result of all this has been that we have a Big Brother Police State.

Looking at it from an objective standpoint and assuming for the moment their only job is to "fight crime", let's take in the facts. In the big cities we might even pity them for the spot they're in. They are fighting hard, but they are fighting a losing battle. Mainly, they fight to hold their jobs and for the sake of appearances. Make no mistake, crime rules. In the smaller towns, like this one, they are good for two things: hassling young punks and busting old drunks. The unsolved murders and unreported (that is, reported but not released by the press) rapes is a bad joke. If you're assaulted or burglarized or vandalized, you're out of luck. Out of luck, that is, if you depend on the police and are willing to let it go at that. It is accepted that if you are robbed, you can forget ever recovering any of your property, even assuming the culprits are apprehended. The tale - ridiculous but true - about handling it yourself and THEN calling the police getting you into bigger trouble than the crooks is reality.

In the one or two times that people - unaware of the "aura" that surrounds this place - have tried to make this place and those who live in it victims of their crime, it has been handled strictly in a "free enterprise" fashion, but with this revolutionary difference: police were never called at any point, before or after. We live safe and we live free. Not only that, the whole valley here enjoys it as well.

Perhaps not everyone can handle it themselves. They, by definition, are dependant upon others for their lives. Not an enviable position. And dependant upon whom? Around here, it is commonly accepted that if you need a cop, call the nearest donut shop. It is a travesty that children and the elderly are thus "protected" in a land where the worst savages ever to have existed anywhere in history roam at large - as "citizens" - subsidized by the ZOC System. But if police are not worth much of a damn at doing the job they're supposed to do, what in hell is it that keeps them busy and what are they really intended for?

Simply, they are Big Brother's first line of defense. Where the conditioning and the brainwash may fail, where the dope, the sex, the "thrills" fall short, where the monetary terrorism proves ineffectual and the person may step outside "Master's Rules", that is where the true role of police becomes clear and obvious. Crime is universal, it is everywhere. It is even accepted as a way of life. Revolution, bucking "Master's Rules", however, is not. It is an impossible task - within "civilized" context - to effectively fight crime in this country, things having gone as far as they have. Besides, the criminal element serves a definite purpose in Big Brother's plan, a purpose that we've discussed in previous issues. The police are really there to step in when the truly extraordinary happens. And what is that other than any act of revolution? Any act of so-called "civil disobedience"?

Only two things keep the Pigs in power in this land: the mood and atmosphere set by the superabundance of the Uncle Toms I mentioned before and the continued existence of the economy. Despite any 21st Century line of electronic surveillance systems, the Pigs COULD NOT FUNCTION without their finks, their informants. And were it not for the Government's continued ability to pay them their wages - handed over by sheepish herds of taxpaying consumers - they'd quickly get out and take jobs better suited to them, like pumping gas or some other honest labor.

We can start to defeat them now, individually, simply by being SUPERIOR. Step one is to stop imagining that they have eyes in the backs of their heads or that they are "all-seeing" in any way. They are NOT, as long as we stay away from stupid conspiracies and other compromising situations... and, even more stupid TALK! Step two is to learn their silly, little routine games which they play on every suspect and to know how to rebuff these at the time they are attempted.

That is 90% of any encounter with police. Third is to discipline ourselves to STAND FIRM against them even in the face of total personal disaster so that we ourselves and the revolution as a whole will not be further weakened or discredited.

Their power will gradually be overturned and destroyed through the increased lack of faith and interest on the part of the public as well as our own rock-solid opposition. Offensive attacks against them are entirely unwarranted and unnecessary now and for long into the future. Once under serious attack by them, of course, consider yourself a marked individual and proceed to kill as many of them as you can.

FBI agent dies after 50-foot fall

United Press International

WASHINGTON — An FBI agent, a member of an elite hostage rescue squad, died yesterday after dropping about 50 feet from a helicopter line at the FBI's Quantico, Va., training facility, FBI officials said.

FBI Director William Webster said Special Agent James K. McAllister, 34, died at the Potomac Hospital in Woodbridge, Va. He was the third agent to die in a week.

Other FBI officials said McAllister fell 40 to 50 feet during a "rapid descent" exercise from a helicopter in which he was trying to slide down the rope hand over hand as quickly as possible. He was not connected to the rope when he fell, the officials said.

The exercise was routine for the FBI's Hostage Rescue Team, a 50-member anti-terrorist unit set up in September 1983 to deal with multiple hostage situations. Sources said the team has been deployed several times, including during a recent confrontation with the neo-Nazi group Aryan Nation.

The accident occurred about 10 a.m. EST, Webster said, and the officials said other members of the team tried to revive McAllister.

Said Webster: "Special agent McAllister gave his life while preparing himself to save the lives of hostages. He will be sorely missed."

McAllister joined the FBI April 13, 1970. After assignments in the Baltimore and New York field offices, he transferred to Washington for assignment as one of the original members of the FBI's hostage team.

Informant tips cops to buried explosives

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — A bomb squad dug up one-half pound of dynamite and plastic explosives in a back yard after police were tipped to its location by an informant who had heard about it secondhand, officials said.

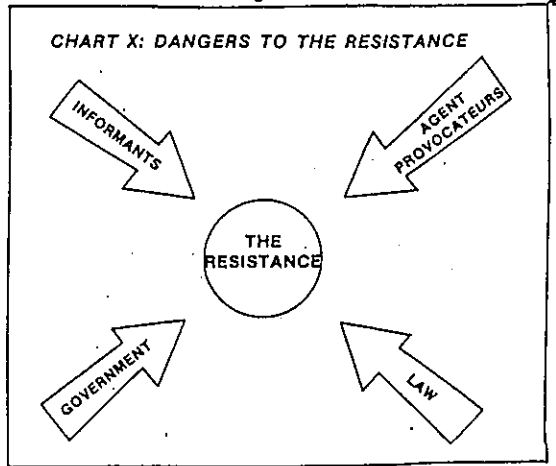

The Orange County bomb squad discovered the dynamite and C-4 plastic explosives Saturday evening after Garden Grove police received a call from a doctor, police said.

Police said the tip started with a prison inmate, a former resident of the house, who told another inmate about the cache of explosives. The second inmate told another person, who told the doctor.

WERE WE DREAMING

by James Mason 1986

Those who are able to trace their roots in the racialist movement back to the Sixties may well find themselves these days asking "Were we dreaming all that?"

Not the part about the integrationist and liberal threats against the final stage of American life and society, before even that was washed away in the Seventies. We know and still know that it was real enough. We saw it and tried to awaken others in order to stop it. But it was no use. We know we weren't dreaming that because all of the worst things our most radical prophets of those days warned against, and a lot more, have all become real and are facts of everyday life now.

Not the things which our more learned philosophers and researchers and scholars revealed to us in hundreds of privately printed, narrowly distributed books and pamphlets. Those were not figments of anyone's imagination, nor were they deliberate lies designed to induce "hatred" toward anyone. None of that was dream material. If anything, it was and is the informational, intellectual missing link, the only means by which the otherwise incomprehensible gap between "official" governmental promise and performance can be understood and explained.

What seems like a dream today are all those large and active organizations which existed across the country in those days, sworn to fight the evil and the terror that has since engulfed the nation. We remember them, but we wonder now where did they go? The racialist leaders whose names were household words in those days; the solid centers of organization where we could go, not only for fellowship, but in order to actively participate in the fight; the wide and colorful spectrum of literature and publications designed for all levels of the society; our physical presence and effect being felt in local elections, all areas of the media, in the street in direct clash with the enemy's front line hoods; our own gatherings, ceremonies, demonstrations which gave a sense of community and oneness.

The only way that we have to prove to any newcomer today that none of this was a dream is to produce our old scrapbooks and photo albums for their inspection. For if we didn't have those to fall back on, if what was demanded was the living achievement of all that as proof, then we'd have absolutely no means of establishing any part of it as anything more than a fairy tale.

But, it was real - all of the hard work, electrified energy, super human sacrifice, constant struggle, unceasing effort, the pain, the elation, the fear, the fun, the plans and the hopes, the faith and the promise. They were all real. They were real because we made them real. They were part of us and we were part of them. They were alive because we gave them part of our life. We gave wholeheartedly and were quite prepared to die (as some of us did.) We did not doubt, we did not question. We worked and we fought. And as long as we did that it was all very real. The enemy knew it. We had something wonderful. Something alive which not only stood in defiance of the World Enemy, it functioned and took action against that same enemy - no matter in how small a way - and was in fact impervious to the enemy's blows - no matter how severe.

Names aren't important. Find a movement veteran and he will have shared all these same impressions and experiences. This is the final proof that it was, after all, one movement, one cause. That it has fallen upon such sad and hard times as we find today can only be ascribed to too few of us then seeing the nature of it as it was and too many of us placing all the emphasis on the various means toward an end rather than upon the end itself.

Apart from events moving on and leaving a narrow strategy and ideology behind, what destroyed all that had been built up to that time, that is, the early Seventies, was a turning inward of an essentially second-string of movement leaders. Inward and ultimately against one another. If your battle is against the real enemy, the system, and for the only thing worth fighting for, the Race, then you welcome all the help you can get. But if your vision is to create something artificial, to enhance your own ego, then the suspicions and the quarrels become endless. Such was the fate of the post World War II effort at movement organizing in this country: GONE.

Let us hope that gone along with it are also the seeds inherent for self-destruction.

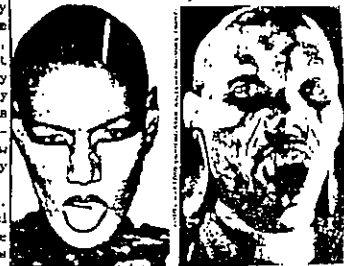

I'd like to see it happen again. I'd like to see it rise again. There is no reason why not. There is nothing to stop it. System opposition is not only meaningless, it is to be expected. Besides, Big Brother has never been in worse repute with his own subjects than he is today. Apathetic and brain-washed masses are meaningless. If we get our strategies, our programs and ideologies worked out and present them effectively and intelligently, then anyone with any soundness or worth left will be drawn to us. The current monopoly the enemy has in the streets - which we gave him - will have to be broken. There is nothing to compare with showing people the stren-

th of fighting. In all truth, things are easier now than they were then. Despite a System shift toward conservatism, things in this country are not so smug, not so nice and tidy as they were twenty or thirty years ago. America, as it was known, "tolerance" and "brotherhood" and all that crap is now only a facade held together by a very rickety economic put-on.

Provide something that looks, smells, feels and is real and you will find that you are going places fast. The key - as always - is hard work. But it has to be hard work applied in the right direction. If there is to be any hate directed anywhere, then let it be toward the system itself. Go always to the root cause and never allow yourself to be sidetracked with mere symptoms. Never doubt or fear regarding our having right on our side. But in the real world struggle with all the minions and forces of the Beast System, all the moral and historic right in the world plus fifty cents will buy you a cup of coffee. Being ultimately smarter and tougher than your opponent is the only thing that matters. Stay off matters of history and philosophy. Focus on practical matters, on providing real solutions to real problems. Be real! Act real, think real and talk real. You'll be received and treated as real. And you'll achieve real results!

The idea is not to resurrect that which is dead. And I refer only to former means toward the same end which has never changed. Means, images, symbols, forms fashioned by man to serve the moment, are not what we are dedicating ourselves to. Watch out for this as it is a fatal trap. The idea is to break and completely erase all traces of alien control and influence over our people and to establish new traditions (not re-establish old ones) that are in line with their upward advance.

With that firmly in mind and with all our efforts of the future directed along that course then twenty years hence, as we look back, we may not wonder what became of better days, but we may feel it under our feet as the cornerstone that lead to unheard of achievement and greatness.

AIDS CALLED SPORTS MADNESS

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome will be the next crisis for American sports as it follows recruits from lower-class, predominantly black sectors of society, a sociologist said.

Harry Edwards, a sociologist at the University of California at Berkeley, said AIDS is spreading fastest in lower-class black areas where the majority of athletes for football and basketball are recruited.

Speaking at the 24th Public Affairs Symposium at Dickinson College, Edwards said 25 percent of all AIDS cases are among blacks, 50 percent of all women with AIDS are black and 60 percent of all children with AIDS are black.

Among the causes, he said, are intravenous drug use, sexual promiscuity, prostitution and the release of prisoners into the black community.

Blacks receive 55 percent of Division I college basketball scholarships, and in some conferences the figure is as high as 70 percent. Forty percent Division I football scholarships are awarded to blacks and in some conferences the figure is as high as 70 percent, Edwards said.

A leader of protests at the 1968 Olympics against the exploitation of black athletes, Edwards said they are "educationally ripped off and athletically exploited." The image of dumb, black jocks is cultivated by institutions that bribe athletes with no educational background into helping colleges further their revenue producing sports, he said.

"Dumb jocks are not born, they are created by our educational institutions," Edwards said.

He said the AIDS crises will affect recruitment, medical services and team relationships.

"What is the relationship between team members when one of those team members has tested positive for AIDS?" Edwards asked.

"The combination of class, cultural, institutional and other societal forces coming together at the interface of race and sport, will, over the next five to seven years, make AIDS the greatest threat in sports history," Edwards said.

Nazis in London: 'Wir bieten Hilfe an und können mit Hilfe rechnen'

HONOR IS AS HONOR DOES

By: James Mason

"People keep vows only so long as their happiness or what they believe to be their happiness depends on keeping them."

"All men are cowards. Only the breaking points are different."

George Lincoln Rockwell, "This Time the World"

These words written by Commander Rockwell remain for me the best and most accurate summation of human nature when it comes to matters of loyalty. Harsh words perhaps, but they fit perfectly the reality and it would not only be dangerous for any one of us to proceed with anything but a true understanding of the picture, it would be ridiculously futile. To know what you face, to know what to expect beforehand, before you find yourself in a critical winner-take-all, life-or-death situation is an advantage and a blessing that would be hard to surpass.

In this Movement, above all others, the talk of loyalty and the emphasis upon loyalty is greatest. But not only is it very seldom seen, usually the dead opposite of it is what is demonstrated.

It's fairly obvious then that most don't know what they're talking about when they invoke the term "loyalty" or else they flat don't care. And this is one of the BIG reasons for consistent Movement failure over the years. It would be well if we could come to some kind of understanding as to just what loyalty is.

Apart from such things as formal oaths, etc., which we are not into the area of, yet, there is such a thing as implicit loyalty. This is owed to the Movement itself and to the comrades around one. It is to be taken for granted. It is a matter of personal honor, an individual's code of behavior, standard operational procedure. Those comrades, both high and low, so long as that same faith is returned, no matter what, are the blood and bone of the Movement and the only thing that permits it to function.

Next, there are personal loyalties. As regards to a political or philosophical movement, so long as an individual personality, a leader, embodies the spirit of that idea, keeps it within himself, giving it life, honor and, above all, physical success to the limit of his own mental and physical capabilities, then loyalty is owed to him unto and beyond death, beyond eternity. Those who stand ready to lend themselves to this kind of genius or leader, when he appears, for the sake of a greater cause, well before he is generally recognized or after his martyrdom, are the saints of the church.

The highest loyalty of all may surprise many. That loyalty is to one's own self. The ultimate and indispensable value in this kind of loyalty lies in the fact that only a person conscious of who they are and what they are could even begin to understand this and, therefore, be of real worth to a greater cause. Those who are loyal to themselves are the mainstays of the Movement at all times. Especially so during the hardest, darkest times when there is nothing else to hang onto or sustain them. They are the rock.

How deftly they spout their "undying loyalties". How seldom is any of it really manifested. As with the quotes used in the opening, mostly it is only so far as it is personally convenient for the individual. Some might add that it is due to a lack of sufficient "motivation" and to a lack of "enforcement". They forget that we are not the System, which is able to and which must PAY for its continued fealty and services from its minions and hirelings. All must come from within long before any outer signs can be detected.

Loyalty has thus become one more meaningless blurb or mere buzz word. Loyalty is in all fact "out of style" in this present age. None are capable of giving it and there exists nothing worth giving it to. The culture and the values, which are deeply ingrained, are geared to throw-away convenience, junk food, junk music, junk cars, junk people. So many like to point to the SS and their motto of "Mein Ehre Heisst Treue" (My Honor is Loyalty). As in that motto, honor is the issue. Not profit, not fun, not safety or security. Not even personal happiness. If only they could fully understand that. Decking out in ersatz "SS" regalia doesn't automatically instill that same sense of "treue". What was crucial had to be present before the individual could don the uniform. This sense of loyalty with all the comprehension, discipline, sacrifice and faith that attends it is found only amongst the tiniest fraction of the smallest minority of even the White race, within that most miniscule number identified in the uppermost reaches of Nietzsche's measuring scale of humanity. For the rest, you simply have to know what you're dealing with. Long, bitter experience with human nature has shown that you can trust everyone...up to a certain point. You must be able to gauge when and where that point will be reached.

For the petty and narrow, that two-way street of unspoken, but expected, loyalty can be interrupted and broken practically to the drop of a hat. This generally happens because they never had any real sense of what they were doing in the first place. And something like this can take place after one week or ten years. These are the egotists, the reactionaries and the opportunists.

Where common fault and infirmity are present, then personal loyalties can likewise dissolve. Somewhere something has been false, a lie, all along. And the amount of time that it was successfully hidden, or that was required for its discovery, is entirely irrelevant. These are the idols with feet of clay. A lesser known motto from Germany is "Treue um Treue" (Loyalty for Loyalty). Anything of a "blind" nature is for fools alone.

Where one's loyalty to one's self has vanished, there is an entirely broken and destroyed individual.

A pressure point has been exceeded. Where faith is shallow it can be broken - as with the removal of a certain illusion - and that individual merely resumes his own origins. It might occur at any time, but most often under some form of stress. The former "true believer" then joins the general profligacy and dissipation of the times.

For those who know the bitterness of the struggle, who willingly exist with its unforgiving nature, once any loyalty has been breached there is never any return. Such is the seriousness of the situation. Both Commander Rockwell and Joseph Tommasi died because they were too good and big-hearted to put this into practice. We, however, must be prepared to hold to it or else run the risk of sharing their fate: Death at the hands of traitors.

Long-term associations, close living proximities, a vague like-mindedness, etc., all are meaningless once the entire point of the thing has been negated by typical and common behavior. Be grateful whenever this sort of thing is revealed to you outside of critical situations and never, never commit the same mistake with the same individual twice. If you do, then you invite disaster. Let these types dally around with one another, but let them stay clear of me. In this struggle, the mere passage of time neither proves nor erases anything. One is only as good as his last performance, his last test. The arch-traitor, Churchill, once asked of Joseph Stalin soon after their alliance of convenience, whether he had forgiven him for his interference at the time of the Bolshevik Revolution, to which Stalin replied, "It is up to God to forgive."

But where the flame burns bright, another flame will be there to meet it. In an instant through instinct alone, new working alliances are made and by these chance unions of the very highest elements, bolts of lightning are generated and it is this which makes and propels the movement forward on toward its destiny. It is here where genuine loyalty comes into practical play.

It is in hope that these associations will be of long and happy duration and productivity. But we must be forever ready to face the passing of the old and the coming of the new. Nothing stands still.

Those that stand true, however, provide the hope and are the vindication for everything noble that has ever been or ever will be.

YOU'RE CHARGING US WITH SEDITION !!

A great hero of the White Race, George Lincoln Rockwell, was the first to introduce the comparison between the "Democratic System" in the United States and the old sideshow shell game to help illustrate the mess that the White Race has been finding itself in for the past several generations. It is a very apt analogy.

I bring it up again only in the form of a "refresher course" for today's movement members and also for brand new people who may be reading this paper. It is the best way to describe the nature of the conspiracy that does exist in this country, part of the greater one which exists over most of the globe. It also provides the demonstration of perhaps the best, most objective proof of the existence of this same conspiracy.

A subject and a word I personally try to stay away from is, in fact, conspiracy. It even sounds spooky and kooky. It turns average people with average minds off, stone cold. I personally believe the overuse of it to be, as regards to those of us in the movement, a professional cop-out, a cover-up for a lack of any true grasp or appreciation of the situation. Besides that, it is one of the major hallmarks of the paranoid personality and the movement has enough bad press as it is without going out of its way to confirm any of it.

It's too easy to fall back on "conspiracy" with regard to what's wrong in this country and the world. The movement has stayed mentally and physically lazy and ineffectual because of it. It requires thought and effort to actually figure out and then come to grips with the nuts and bolts of the issue and that so happens to be what must be presented to the people, if we are to be taken seriously as a political movement worthy and capable of replacing the System. Besides, in practical terms, it is altogether immaterial whether or not a conspiracy exists. If the movement adopts the correct view of the System being the Enemy, then it runs no risk of falling prey to the practitioners of the shell game.

EDITORIAL

But at the time Commander Rockwell first expounded his "shell game" simile, that is back during the Sixties, all of the movement took the attitude that saw a few entrenched Jews and some high-placed White renegades as being responsible for the otherwise inexplicable "mistakes" that kept on undermining and destroying the position and integrity of the White Race. The rest in power were honest but dumb, so it was imagined.

Unfortunately today there is still a significant segment of the movement that believes the same way. They are the Right Wingers, the Conservatives, and they are part of the problem, not part of the answer.

But to the logic of the shell game principle at work here and all over the Western world, it's a fairly simple deduction. Even in the gambling casinos of Las Vegas or Atlantic City, whether at the crap table or the slot machine, you will not lose all of the time. Even though the odds are always in favor of the house, you will at least win once in awhile. I loath and hate democracy as I would a gambling joint or an adulterous marriage, but still one would think that the overwhelming majority in a democracy could at least be able to maintain things going their way most of the time. Not so for White America. They LOSE consistently, every trip!

To any rational, objective mind something like this would have to suggest something like the cards being marked or the dice being loaded. In affairs of government and politics it ought to suggest the equivalent and the name for it happens to be a conspiracy.

The shell game requires skill in slight of hand. In dates" all having been literally created, whipped up by the Media for one express purpose: To maintain and to increase the power of the System of which it is a big part.

And here is the point which had yet to be realized twenty years ago: You have "government" and then you have the "System". The movement cried endlessly about what has happened to the "country", that we had to save the "country", etc. It didn't occur to them the System was utilizing as a tool the Government in order to enslave and to exploit the Country. The three can never be confused if one is to not fall victim to the shell game. And if the country is the host upon whose body the System is preying, then who or what actually conspires the "country"?

If you follow Irving Berlin's idea of "mountains, prairies and oceans white with foam", then America is a big piece of real estate of, more lately, on big business conglomerates. But if you see America in decline and can observe the real trends that are making it so, you'll also see that America's fortunes are one and the same as the fortunes of the White Race. In fact, it can be accurately stated that the United States of today is but a "shell" of its former self, no pun intended. Movement activists must know and understand this conspiracy for their own effectiveness and well-being. For them there can be no surprises. But in the process of building any mass political following, any attempt at infusing talk of a conspiracy has already in the past proved counter-productive. As far as the people are concerned - and in all practicality - it is a matter of the starkest simplicity: The Enemy is the System! And for these practical purposes the term System encompasses Government, Establishment, Media, anything and everything deemed "official".

There'll be devil enough of a time in getting people trained and organized in the ways and means of combating the System, defending themselves against its hired mercenaries, whether uniformed in blue or in green or in three-piece suits. We've wasted enough time already in trying to force-feed the unwilling on tedious lessons of history. Criminals are at the helm. To hell with who they are or how they got there. Destroy the power of the System and you have destroyed them. Once that has been driven in, even the most accomplished illusion master will have a tough time trying to confuse the issue.

The "Criminal" Justice System By James Mason

Why would the same system that creates more police and prisons also create more crime and criminals?

Have you ever thought about it?

The same system that taxes you to pay for more police and build more prisons is the same system that taxes you to subsidize the creation of a bigger and bigger criminal element (and then legislates to protect it from you).

The more criminals, the more crime. The more crime, the louder the cry for "Law & Order". So, more laws, more police and more prisons. Lots of jobs for politicians and "Civil Servants" (so-called). Bigger bureaucracy and bigger government.

How about all the television shows that glorify the police and the criminals?

With the power they've got, they could stop crime, if they wanted to. However, then they'd be out of business. It's a matter of economics in a phoney economy. It's a matter of money! For years the only profitable element in the Soviet economy was it's prison system. How long before the same thing can be said here?

But profitable for who? Certainly not the taxpayer who picks up the bill.

It's a lot more than just that. It's also a matter of fear. Fear of the crime that the system has bred and let loose and which justifies the police and the prisons. But fear too of those same police and prisons just in case you get fed up and decide you don't want to go on paying any longer.

For the guilty, those who have no place in a decent society, prison is no more than a revolving door, barely an inconvenience having little or no impact. For the innocent, those who have angered the system through acts of self-defense, prison represents no more than an American gulag. In either case the more recent "1984" doublespeak term, "correctional institution", is really a foul, obscene joke.

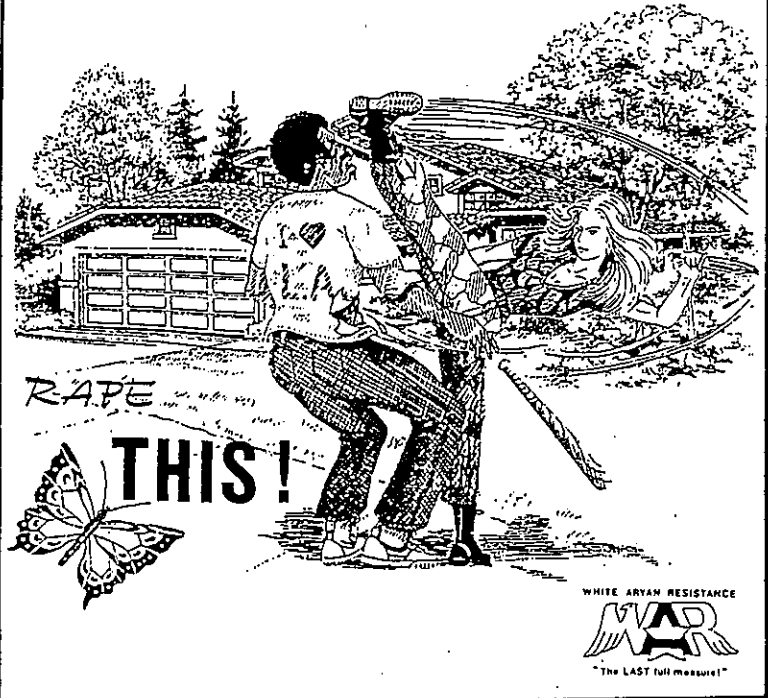

Prison represents fear and fear is essential to control and control is the name of the game. Crime is merely the system's excuse, it's justification. It's turning into one big prison. Or haven't you noticed?

The target is you!

The police state and the criminal element go hand in hand. More and more often they are indistinguishable and are one and the same, if you look just under the surface.

Here's a hint: They will both have to go at the same time-together.

Stop being fooled and wake up!

Statistics To Remember

Let us examine exactly what statistics show in relation to the White stereotype of niggers.

You may have heard that niggers are the victims of crimes more often than Whites are. In relation to their population percentage this is true, but the statistics clearly show that there are many more crimes committed against Whites than against niggers. Roughly 3,000,000 more. But most importantly are the questions of "who is committing these crimes and why?"

You often hear that the conditions in which niggers live makes them commit more crimes. I personally do not believe that human nature needs the coddling and attentiveness of a good environment to insure that someone will act in a socially responsible manner. And to prove this point I ask this one question. In the apologist's wildest fantasies, what are the causes which drive those to commit the crime of rape?

Of the crime of rape, with single offenders for the year of 1989, there were 115,250. Whites were the victims 93,990 times out of this 115,250 and blacks were the victims 21,260 times.

Of the rapes committed against Whites there were White offenders in 64.6% of the cases, and nigger offenders 23.4% of the time.

Now everyone must be cognizant of the statistics which have inundated the public showing that our nation is very segregated. So, with this in mind how is it that niggers are the offenders of rape against Whites 23.4% of the time? After all, they only make up about 12% of the population. It is only logical to conclude that the niggers are leaving their own segregated neighborhoods and seeking out those of the fairer kind.

In 1989, 23.4% of the rapes against Whites were with nigger offenders. In numbers this comes out to about 21,993 rapes. Of the rapes committed against blacks, there were 21,260 total, and 82% of these rapes were committed by single black offenders. In numbers this comes out to about 17,433 rapes. This statistic shows that not only are niggers committing rapes in a much higher percentage than that of their population, but they are committing more rapes against Whites than they are against their own people.

White women beware! The image of the nigger rapist is not just the fantasy of "ignorant, prejudiced and bigoted White men." The statistics do not lie. The niggers are seeking you out to be the objects of their lustful violent acts, and are roving from their own neighborhoods to do it.

Now let us look at crimes with multiple offenders, and what the statistics have to say of the White racist's image of roving PACKS of nigger rapists.

There were 20,140 rapes where there were multiple offenders, for 1989. Of these 20,140 62.4% of them were all-black multiple offenders. The statistics are not broken down into the race of the victim, but would not common sense lead us to conclude that White females are the victims of these crimes, at least equal to the numbers of single offenders.

My conclusion is that niggers are predispositioned to rape Not only to rape, but to rape a female of the fairer complexion.

Death to the Beast

by James Mason

Without benefit of national media or educational system, it's tough for the racist individual to become really articulate or eloquent in regard to the language of politics. With the opinion-forming media and the so-called educational system long since a complete monopoly in the hands of racial enemies, can it be too surprising that the seemingly well-educated at each turn are also to be found in the camp of these same racial aliens and enemies? Can it also be of very much surprise that any person racially aware, who cannot stand the stench of the "academy" or of Hollywood, etc., may be found to be without the "blessing" of higher education or a career in the "professions"?

It is certainly no accident. To achieve this position of monopoly or of tyranny or of dictatorship - those who have usurped control of this country and the civilized world set their sights very high. The secret to being or becoming a free and an aware individual is to accept no one's word for something but the ability to step back and take a long, close look at the situation and think objectively.

How is it that in the area of the one greatest issue that confronts the world, probably the only real issue that exists, there are no two sides? That is in the area of Race. Either you are in favor of racial integration on the premise of racial equality or you are to be found outside of decent and acceptable society, probably bordering on the criminal and certainly without the "benefit" of a fine university education. Isn't that about how it works? Drugs are fine as long as they are prescribed. Homosexuality and abortion have made "hero" status. But to be racist is to be the lowest of the low.

Things have turned upside down in this once puritanical and White ruled land. Could such a development have been by accident? Could our forefathers have willed this upon us? Would a sane and free people do this to themselves? Would they allow such an insane situation to continue for five minutes if they had the ability to do something about it? A look at all the federal laws pertaining to so-called "civil rights", etc., would reveal much. Take a look at what each and every system politician says and does without exception. Take a look at what passes for "culture" and "entertainment". Look at the education system itself and see that it is generating flocks of illiterates.

It's all the unmistakable beat of a single drummer. It's the old fashioned cul-de-sac. Anyone who can not see that much on their own has very little chance regardless of how many diplomas hang on their walls and regardless how much money they have made.

Well, I recall myself and my then circle inveighing endlessly over how "we" were blundering so badly in Vietnam, how "we" were doing so poorly against the foreign policy of the then Soviet Union (remember all evil was a "communist plot"), how "our" government was making these incredible "mistakes" in national policy, and even how "we" picked the wrong side in World War II.

Then there was the business of how "they" wanted to take away "our" guns, how "they" wanted "us" to mix with blacks, all strung out on drugs, turned homosexual, etc. And as if all that "we" and "they" stuff wasn't ignorant enough, we actually imagined that we could band together with other right minded individuals (didn't everyone you knew back then think the same way you did?) and do something about it.

The full result of the system monopoly over the very heart and guts, the brain and nervous system of this and all other western countries, saw the national "immune system" having been entirely short-circuited and rendered non-functional (like AIDS on a grand scale.) Here we were, the White veterans of World War II, and we were concerned over what we were witnessing taking place in the country and found ourselves unable to "do" anything at all about it. All the while seeing those who were in positions to do something about it merely dousing the fire with gasoline.

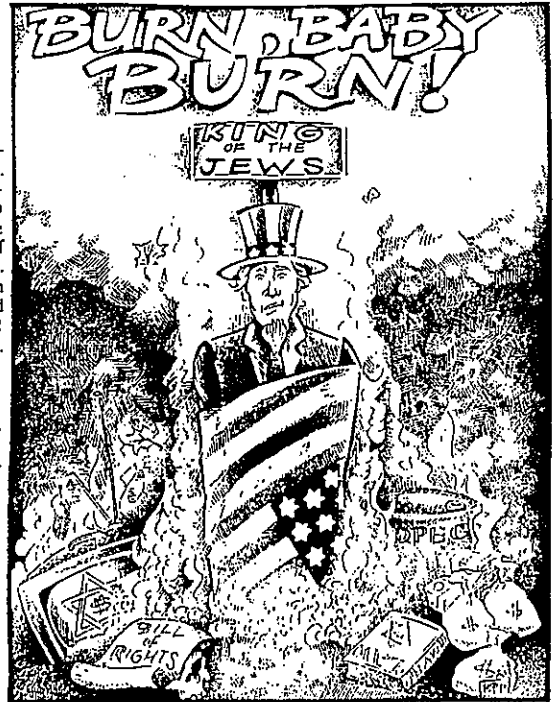

All the "we" and "they" stuff and, worse yet, the "communist" stuff, looked bad and sounded bad. Really unprofessional and uninformed. But how could it have been otherwise? Those in the business of information were and are part and parcel of a monstrous one-world, one-mud race system. Nobody got to become a professional unless they had come up through the ranks of this same monstrous and evil apparatus of conditioning and brainwashing. Unless you could boast system credentials, then even those around you in the community didn't notice you or paid you no heed. So it was, so it is and so it shall continue as long as the current system remains in power.

In a supposedly free society, there has got to be room for genuine opposition. That is completely absent here. What passes for "opposition" is no more than a few dogs haggling over which methods would be best to carry out the same ridiculous and suicidal policies. And the results of all this are beginning to catch up in the form of symptoms of collapse that can no longer be denied. More gasoline on the fire that is already burning out of control.

The criminals and lunatics who hold all power and who have struggled long and hard to bring us to this pass are themselves powerless to do anything about it. They have sown the proverbial wind. What concerns us more is that while they were busy opening a social and political Pandora's box, they were also seeing to it that nothing and nobody, ala Germany in 1933, would be able to come along and louse up their fun. So no Hitler, no NSDAP and no marching SA to come running up and catch the falling nation at the critical moment of collapse.

Only the collapse itself. Collectively this is the inevitable. One big LA Riot. Individually, no one stands a chance unless and until they are able to wake up to the fundamental and crucial fact that what was supposed to be and what still represents itself as "our" or "their" government is nothing of the kind. Far from being an instrument of the will of the people, "we" or "us", it is a beast, the beast, that exists only to increase its own power and wealth at the expense and ultimately the destruction of the people and the nation. Only when that is realized and generally acknowledged and acted upon can there be any hope of relief.

US neo-Nazi leader banned from Britain

A LEADING US neo-Nazi was banned from Britain today after reports he was planning to lead a march in London this weekend.

Home Secretary Kenneth Clarke ruled that Tom Metzger, founder of the White Aryan Resistance and a former Ku Klux Klan leader, should not be allowed to enter the country. He also banned Metzger's son John, who has a criminal record for his part in a racist killing. The move follows pressure from Jewish leaders and MPs.

The Home Office said "their presence would not be conducive to the public good in light of past involvement in neo-Nazi activity". But there were fears Metzger could already be in the country.

Editorial

By Tom Metzger

The last few weeks have been very busy. Not only for White Separatism but for Pan-Aryanism.

Your Editor participated in two exploratory meetings. One, speaking to the Black Panther Militia in Dallas. The other with the Republic Of New Africa based in Florida. W.A.R. believes that both meetings were quite productive and will continue exploratory dialogue in the future. The Black Panthers support a separatist agenda in North America. The Republic of New Africa leader is interested primarily in reparations and reparations. The common denominator in these meetings was absolute no confidence in La Cesspool Grande Washington D.C.

It is our opinion that a strong Panther presence in the urban black community would be a positive development. Panthers hate pushers, race mixers, and Uncle Toms. Any move against these three W.A.R. sees as no threat to the resistance in general.

W.A.R. says that White resistance should not interfere with black-cop controversies in the inner city. Primarily black neighborhoods should be under control of the black resistance. Race mixers are on their own whether in black areas or White areas.

The White resistance will not line up with Washington criminals, state house criminals, or city criminals against black separatist resistance. The White resistance will not parade, picket, or do the dirty work in any manner in support of the system. Both White and black resistance will condemn corporate imperialistic military ventures.

Any dialogue or cooperation between White and black separatists will be attacked viciously by the system press. The white right conservative types will also use this separatist dialogue as an excuse to attack the White resistance

As we have seen in this issue of our paper Louis Farrakhan is waffling seriously on earlier positions and seems to be moving in the system direction. True black separatists are concerned and are watching his recent moves quite carefully.

Events in Canada show a swift move toward anti-Aryan dictatorship. Several arrests took place this month of C.O.T.C. and Heritage Front members, including Heritage Front's leader Wolfgang Droege.

Canadian businesses operating in the U.S. must be made aware that their refusal to support free speech in Canada is not good for business. Literature showing Canada's true political nature should be liberally distributed at all Canadian owned businesses and any Canadian celebrations held in the U.S. In short, send them a message. Massive amounts of pro-Aryan literature should cross the border. So Canada is now, the U.S. will soon be.

The European resistance is growing daily. German authorities are admitting that it is totally out of control. The system media in the U.S. is beside themselves with hysteria as Pan-Aryanism becomes a reality. Violence surely seems to work since already the German government is stopping immigration and is well on their way to deporting Turks and others.

News from South Africa is bleak in the short run but probably not in the long run. There is no reason why White South Africans cannot expand out of some areas of South Africa. Pan-Aryans should recognize no borders at this time. Future maps will undergo radical change. The number one obstacle to all possibilities is the U.S. government, media, and churches. The neutralizing of all these, especially among the youth is a priority.

The Weaver/Harris trial has gone on for over forty days. The jury was out for several days, and at our press deadline, was still out.

The court building is swarming with federal gangsters armed with the latest in death dealing devices.

W.A.R. predicts that hard ball from Washington has just begun. Using the excuse of the drug war, terrorism, etc. the Washington criminals will mount an all out clean-up program against dissidents of all stripes. At the same time the sheeple will applaud all these actions as being their salvation.

Hate Rock is what they call resistance music. So be it.

Massive amounts of T.V. time, including MTV documentaries, have filled the television screen. It was once said that economic determinists would sell the rope that they would one day be hung by. This, W.A.R. believes to be true. The pursuit of high network ratings makes the system media a major sounding board for rebel youth no matter how the shows are slanted. The only gains the system makes is to place obvious uniformed retdars from the right wing on T.V.

Late T.V. was big in the news also this month (Time Magazine) et al. Even though Aryan T.V. was slow to catch on, the efforts of W.A.R. since 1984 are paying off. Others are slowly climbing on board the public access T.V. systems.

There is a geometric quality to our efforts which is not a headline on the nightly T.V. news. Our enemies are well aware of our progress. Sometimes it's our so-called friends who are the blindest.

READY FOR WHAT?

One might be able to imagine, after reading some of what I have to say about "Right Wingism", how I personally feel about the want-something-for-nothing inquiries that still come to my address occasionally from fossilized remnants of the "Right Wing Age". I feel insulted by their presence and am offended at their wanting "free samples" of revolutionary literature. We're struggling, they're piddling.

Usually, these take the form of a partial sheet of school-kid's notebook paper on which has been scrawled, "Please send samples of your literature." Never any money, seldom even a request for subscription rates.

Then there are those who feel that if they provide a good, standard Right Wing litany in letter form then they are entitled to a freebie request thrown in at the conclusion of the letter, and all is even. (You always get the Readers of SIEGE will know that I hate idle complaint and try to avoid it whenever I can. But one of these letters came in about a month or so ago which sort of broke the camel's back and prompted this particular segment to be written. It was "standard" all the way except that at the close it had, "READY TO FIGHT!" above the author's signature. It was too much for me.

I didn't gag but I did get steamed, and still do whenever I stop to consider it. "Ready to fight." "Ready to fight." "Ready to fight." Kick it around in your mind and roll it over your tongue a few times. I'll bet I could draw you a PICTURE, complete with personal background and history, on that individual just going from experience with these types and making a composite...but I won't because that would make me sick for sure.

"Ready to fight"? Yes, I sent a copy of SIEGE in response, which probably scared the hell out of him if it didn't entirely confuse him-and, no, there wasn't any further communication. But "Ready to fight"? Ten years ago I might have stopped and written him a letter containing much of what I am saying here, but not today. I have vowed to cut waste.

"Ready to fight", eh? So, what's the delay? Waiting for a bell for the next round? Waiting for some "hippie" or "nigger" to come jumping up on YOUR porch? If you're really READY to fight, why not take it on your own like Cowan, Spisak, Mathews or a dozen others who FOUGHT?? What in HELL are you waiting for?!

Is this the conscious evasion of a coward or an idiotic lack of understanding on the part of a blowhard? I know how the rest goes-like this: "Ready to fight...when the time comes." Even when the fighting is, and already has been going on, it's still never quite "time".

No. Not everyone is a fighter. That's understood around here. But don't come on like a fool and don't use that term to hide behind. I will show respect for anyone who approaches me in seriousness and who is willing to apply themselves seriously. And a serious approach in this case would have been something like, "Ready to work," or "Ready to serve." As it was, this person wasn't even ready to subscribe!

This is an insult to all who DO work and serve, in quiet, without fanfare. And SPECIALLY an insult to those who DO fight and who pay the ultimate price. I can't tolerate it anymore and I won't. Let the fakers keep to themselves as there are plenty of faker-style groups out there who thrive on hot air. Not around here.

"Ready to fight."

SIEGE

THE COLLECTED WRITINGS OF
JAMES MASON

Edited and Introduced by Michael M. Jenkins

Not since George Lincoln Rockwell's "This Time The World" has a book hit the scene like "Siege".

Siege is authored by James Mason and edited by Michael Jenkins. Siege was the monthly bulletin of the NSLF - National Socialist Liberation Front and led by Joseph Tommasi until he was assassinated.

Mason assumed command of NSLF at that time. Siege is a 435 page record on the cutting edge of revolutionary thought.

Controversial to the max. A must for any serious white activist.

Hitler on the Geraldo Show

by James Mason

"Phase One" activity, as outlined by Commander Rockwell, involved getting ourselves known before the general public; the fact that we, i.e., White Racialist Resistance, did actually exist and getting as much of our program as possible out across the enemy-dominated media. Since there already existed an openly declared war, a news blackout, against him by the owners of the media, the Jews, the battle lines were clearly drawn.

The Commander's solution: Be so brazen, carry out demonstrations so bold that for the media not to report it would, by itself, expose them for the black-handed, practitioners of tyrannical censorship that they are. This was a rough row to hoe. Simultaneously with the steep, uphill battle to break the steel wall of censorship with his demonstrations, all perfectly legal, was the equally daunting legal battle in the enemy-controlled courts when those demonstrations were attacked by gangs or broken up by police.

It worked. I dare say that if we as a movement were putting as much heart into it today as Commander Rockwell was then, we would indeed be seeing those "white riots" in the streets of major cities all across the country that we must see if anything is to ever change. As I said, it was much rougher than most have the power to comprehend. The blurb "cost effective" had yet to be coined, but had it been, then that unquestionably would have been running through everyone's mind constantly. Commander Rockwell died still under threat of a conviction and jail sentence in Chicago for having gone to the local sheriff's office to inquire what he had meant when he had stated to the press that he would arrest the Commander on sight and think of a charge later on.

Of course there are still the local Klan rallies around the country which are superficially very much like the old rallies of the sixties. I'm sure the idea behind them is the same. And I do know that in some cases a few good people are brought into the "Movement" by them. However, there is a critical factor here that never seems

Back in the sixties there were next to no talk shows the likes of which we see today. "The Joe Pyne Show" was the big exception and, fittingly enough, Commander Rockwell made it onto that show and made a monkey out of Joe Pyne, whose job was, just like today's talk show hosts, to make anyone remotely anti-System look like a fool or worse. However, as I said, that was the exception. The Jews of the media knew Commander Rockwell was too powerful and effective to allow onto television, and so he was not. Today it is not uncommon to turn the dial and catch one or another racist, or panel of racists, on these talk shows. Has the media let down its guard? Hardly. They've just smartened up.

There's a term known as "clay pigeon." That makes up over ninety percent of those who claim to represent the "Movement" who are allowed by the media masters to appear on these shows. They may be sincere and dedicated, they may see and know what's going on and be fighting it with everything they've got. However, they are not qualified to be "Movement" representatives. They are nowhere near to being able to match about attacking races as being merely an annoying symptom. Do not cry for "law and order" as the conservatives do, call for revolution to sweep this entire System into the ashtray. Not to mention the impossible proposition of pretending to be able to play it straight with a System minion.

At the opposite end of the same spectrum as Commander Rockwell's unshakable personae as a scholarly officer and gentleman, with all the facts at his fingertips and a ready wit and humor with which to dismantle any smart-ass Jew, is the radically new and different tack deliberately assumed by Charles Manson, whereby he acts even more of the maniac than they are trying to make him out to be. The same key in both? No defense, no retreat, no explanation, no apology, no equivocation. "Yes, I'm a Nazi and it's too bad Hitler didn't gas more of them!" and "Yes, and if I ever get out of here I'm going to do a whole lot more killing!"

Then, there are those occasions when someone who is capable and articulate gets onto one of these shows. Against the host who's paid a fortune to bait them and make them look as ridiculous as possible, to abuse them, etc., and a studio audience that is no more than a zoo, one wonders what really gets accomplished after all. Instead of the old news-clip souvenirs, we now have video tape souvenirs.

It finally hit me about a year ago when I happened to be in Chicago as part of one of those very shows. The topic was Charles Manson and the guest panel was quite remarkable indeed. On the one side was Vincent Bugliosi and the sister of Sharon Tate. On the other side was Sandra Good, a close associate of hers, a pair of brothers who produce pro-Manson shirts, etc., four very young people from San Francisco that I had spent the previous day briefing intensely for the occasion and, presumably, myself. As the hour-long encounter bogged down into the killings, and no one was able to break the knot, I saw the time ticking out and the increasingly evident tactic of the producers not to allow me even onto camera. It was obvious I would have been a counter-weight to Bugliosi, complete with a little maturity and a book to my credit. However, they paid me as if I had been on. Still, the show wasn't bad.

It was then that I asked myself whether I could imagine Hitler on one of these things. Indeed, whether he'd even deign to accept such an invitation. Credentials? I guess so. Camera presence? Know how to work the microphone? Unflappable? On and on I could go. Not a question of how he'd come across or whether he could handle himself. No.

Would he want to lend credence to them by his presence? Would he ever, in a million years, condescend to directly addressing or being addressed by a Jew? Or a Negro? Or being jeered by an audience of brain-raped zombies? Or, to explaining himself for the entertainment of the bored housewives at home? Or to help sell products for Jewish advertisers?

It has to be directly compared to participating in these so-called Democratic elections. By participating, you merely validate them. Can there be any advantage for us in that? Debate is one thing and we must be up to it always, but I do not class debate along with propaganda and it is only through propaganda that we will undermine and demolish the System. Effective propaganda must be unfettered and not interfered with. You may ridicule or you may indict but it has got to be your show and no one else's. A carnival atmosphere is hardly conducive to moving anyone. Now that there is home video, we have a huge weapon at our disposal with which to accomplish this very thing.

I do not propose to withdraw from the field. However, if you are determined and willing to engage in this style of conflict with the Enemy, please, for the sake of us all, be fully prepared for it and know what to expect.

Setting the Stage

by James Mason

I make it a point to read the daily paper in here as part of the routine. As Manson says, the System media only reports about five percent of what's actually going on and that much is distorted. However, I'm nothing if not adept at reading between the lines and unscrambling Big Brother's double-speak.

Sometimes, though, it doesn't require a whole lot of understanding to interpret certain headlines; only a clear delineation of which side of the fence you're on.

In the wake of the bombing in Oklahoma City, the press hasn't stopped buzzing about "White Militants," "White Supremacists," "Armed Militias," and a host of others who are anti-government and outraged by and out to avenge Waco and the Weavers. This is the stuff of mass movements. Even the NRA is showing positive signs when pressed to use it or get off of it.

Today brought forth a milestone: they blocked off Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C. The barricades won't come down again until the fight is finished. Moreover, by putting them up, the System has acknowledged that the fight has now begun.

Through two world wars and several assassinations, there were no barricades. Through the Depression "Bonus Marches" and the Vietnam "Peace" Demonstrations, there were no barricades. Now there are barricades. Even if the millions upon millions of people who are to ultimately make up our army don't yet realize it, the System knows better than any what the real fight is about and who will wage it.

No one will "trigger" it. It has already begun. One must grasp stages and degrees. How many generations ago, what transgressions of comparatively minor significance on the part of someone in a position of authority led to this? How long ago did some lonely, idealistic fanatic scatter a handful of leaflets that led to this? Make no mistake, now it's a snowball. Now it has a life of its own, and, rather than being forced to nurse it, we are being swept up in it and by it.

The System sees it in entirely a different light; Frankenstein. However, it works the same way and has the same result.

What else does "Death to the System" mean except a push for our program? Anything and anyone anti-government must ultimately gravitate to us and serve us.

...the government is the enemy... Revolution and not reaction is the answer... anything that hurts the System is good...

The mistake of the past was in confusing ideology with strategy. The belief that truth alone could make one free. The false illusion that the System could be utilized to fix the System. Real strategy makes use of every event, regardless of how tenuous or negative the first early steps, until the time when it can make events. A real ideology maintains itself constantly on the farthest extreme so that events, once on the move, can never come to rest until the very circumstances or the situation has come to perfectly reflect that ideology.

Serious revolutionary fanatics will always be found to be in tune with the moment, never with make-believe or wishful thinking. You will either start where you are or you will never start.

Who wants the death of the System but us? Until 1974, we had neither an ideology nor a strategy. Only then did we see that the enemy had won; that the government is the enemy; that revolution and not reaction is the answer; that anything which hurts the System is good; anything that disrupts is good, up to and including earthquakes and plagues; that the existing order itself is the enemy.

Society is coming unglued, that is clear from inside here. "Crime" is society falling apart and as such, it is an ally. Courts, police, prisons are all nothing more than a money-making industry. A mockery of actual order and justice. They have no idea what they're even doing or what they're up against. They fight a losing battle.

One day there must be a thousand "Oklahomas" and a thousand barricades. On that day, our program will be totally reflected by events. Until that day, totality exists only within our program. Until that day, disorder and confusion are our allies, because only we are able to see clearly through the mess. The rest perceive only shades of gray, whereas we see black and white.

It is coming to this: the loss of will on the part of the System. They're going to tighten up and they're going to strike back. But in so doing they will mobilize our army for us. Gone are the days of non-existence and all being well in the land. Only a fierce fanaticism will prevail in a contest such as this.

They've had it easy. They're in it for money. Break the economy and you break them. We were in it for life or death at the start, to borrow from Manson, and we'll still be in it for life or death at the end.

Now and for the rest of the duration we must hone and purify our program; "Death to the System!" And that, in its clarity and purity, will establish us to the core and magnet, the conscious and brain of the revolution that is building. Offering no compromise, all elements will follow us, willingly or unwillingly, knowingly or unknowingly. Ours is the bedrock which exists nowhere else.

At any point from now on, the climax is probably closer than we think. By putting up those barricades in D.C., the System itself has set the stage. I'd much prefer storming their barricades to their storming ours. Imperceptibly, the shift in power has come about. They're scared and their flabby constitutions can't take a lot of fright.

At this point, a child's bursting balloon could shove them all the way over into full-blown panic. Events together with who can maintain their will.

Both Populism and Elitism

A Personal Racial Poetics

I do not like the philosophy behind most modern poetry. If the greatest images in the world and the most harmonious meters say something shallow, something untruthful, something solipsistic, then I dislike the writing. On the other side, I don't want to be dragged all over with wild metaphors even if it leads to serious philosophy, that is too much work for the reward.

Popular songs are on the right track with their poetry, if they eliminated some of the clichés and dumb ideas, which I wouldn't expect them to do. These songs, this poetry, reaches the people. I think art should be populist and elitist, art should reach both up to an elite and down to the people; the best art does this. This is seen in the classical rule of simplicity and restraint in art.

Elitism pushes art toward evolution, meritocracy, positive eugenics. Populism brings art back to communication and affirmation. This balance compares to the balance between orthodoxy and skepticism in healthy cultures, without both, society declines.

I do not think that Ezra Pound and T.S. Eliot went far enough in ridding poetry of the self-consciously 'poetic', even if they developed a harder edge and rejected mushy, decadent, late romantic forms.

With me the philosophy comes first, and it must be grounded in biology or sociobiology, otherwise art branches off into decadence. This was and is the central problem with modernists and post-modernists. Pound could therefore miss the emphasis by believing that "the history of culture is the history of ideas going into action". Culture follows biology. The genetic component is about 80 percent, the environmental 20 percent. The poet's hatred of science can no longer be tolerated. Let us allow W.B. Yeats to be the last poet to turn his back on science. Neglecting science today makes one half alive, with half a mind. Modern poets who ignore science must be considered archaic. Science can help rid poetry of its shallowness, of its foolish modern liberalism, among other things.

Art should reflect not only this biological activation but the racial traits of the artists. I think the standard definition of classicism reflects Northern European racial traits: simplicity, restraint and proportion.

But how one defines simplicity, restraint and proportion also separates forms, styles and races.

"Simplicity", for me, rejects predetermined meters, but these things can be included, (as well as rhyme), if one chooses to fit them here and there into the free format. The context should not be distorted by the form.

Simplicity and restraint, for me, reject the self-consciously poetic idea that poetry should remove all explanatory words of phrases. The fear of abstractions in poetry, of over-explaining rather than letting objects and events tell the poem, is generally a good value for poetry. But modern poets avoid ideas as they avoid morality and philosophy, their philosophy is relativistic, or they don't believe in anything but the self; this is the main reason why modern poets avoid abstractions and explaining in poetry. A little explaining now and then if it isn't preaching, is fine, it is justified by not being relativistic about morality, philosophy, and life itself. The audience is supposed to comprehend - at least poetically - what you are talking about, and not merely other poets.

The biological base of human nature sets up a bond with one's race that makes reaching one's race with art, imperative. This biological base can also negate cultural elitism, where elites become a fussy priest cult of formalism no longer able to reach people.

My View of the Bombing

by James Mason

My re-entry into the prison system coincided with the Oklahoma City bombing and the 50th Anniversary of "V-E Day." I remember when the media began this six-year long ordeal of remembering World War II in the Autumn of 1989. I was thirty days in a hole back in Ohio.

My reference to a "V-O Day" doesn't refer to a drink. The Oklahoma City bombing thing definitely perked me up as it came within days prior to my sentencing. I considered going to court that day in a Ryder truck.

Always fascinated by how the media handles things when presenting them to the public, I couldn't help but notice the big play-up of the dead women and children in Oklahoma. No statistics were given as to the number or classification of dead System criminals. That's how both sides, during World War II, played one another's bombing raids of their respective cities. Confirmation: This is war!

With regard to "V-E Day" ceremonies, the media played up a lot of elderly veterans who were recalling the best days of their lives, plus a coterie of System assholes who piously recited a load of tripe fifty-years old as though it were fresh and new. However, the ceremonies were not well attended.

The media can and will paint any picture the way it wants. However, does anybody really give a damn? Is anyone listening?

After the Oklahoma City bombing and all the hysterics directed against the right-wing and specifically against the "militias," the local paper ran a street poll on whether or not such things as armed militias should even be allowed. The response, from people allowing their names and faces to be printed, ran fifty-fifty. Very excellent.

Had the complete picture been presented to the people, that number would have been nearer to one hundred percent in favor.

I was busy at the typewriter when word of a bombing came to me. I didn't bother looking up from the typewriter. When I learned that it had been a Federal building, I became more interested. When the face of a clean-cut Aryan was flashed across the news, under arrest, I wasn't surprised.

The media talk of some viewing the attack as a reprisal for Waco, Texas, and the numerous referrals to "right-wing hate groups," and armed anti-government militias was most heartening. Naturally, it is clear that the System, monstrous coward that it is, has established for itself a pattern of hiding behind women and children; that is, when it isn't murdering them, as with the Weavers.

The Barbarian Winter Is Not The Goal

"In modified Spenglerian terms, a race is the Spring-time, a nation is the Summer, an empire is the Autumn and the return to barbarism is the Winter..." (The Ethnostate, Wilmot Robertson)

The historical sequence goes the following way:

Hunting band / Tribe / Beginnings of homogeneous state or nation / Population becomes heterogeneous by attracting immigrants / Polyglot empire, held together only by military strength, a ruling party, which prevents internal hostilities and foreign enemies, as long as power is maintained.

Nations beget the multiracial enormities known as empires, "which after alternating periods of affluence and poverty, after stunning military victories and disastrous defeats, exhaust the energies of the original cultural bearers, who then revert to the barbarous condition from which they originally emerged." (Robertson)

Robertson's view of history supersedes the views of Spengler and Toynbee. If the suggested patterns or cycles of history follow, Ethnostates will eventually emerge from out of this barbarian Winter. That is, barbarian behavior is not the goal, it is only the beginning of the Winter, or the end of the degeneration of the Empire. The goal is to come through the Winter of barbarians into the Spring-time of the race, with the rising of the homogeneous Ethnostate.

The Ethnostate will not contain a barbarian culture, but it will emerge out of barbarous conditions into higher culture. The Ethnostate should judge the greatness of a state by its science, art and government and not by the wars it has won or the territory it has grabbed. The Ethnostate will certainly have superior military defense, but it will not be a "military state." The military is classically the caste just below or at the right hand of the leadership.

Can we support the present white barbarians of Winter and will they help to usher in the Ethnostate? We can, perhaps, see them as a historical necessity, but we cannot therefore affirm barbarism as a philosophy of life. We can sympathize with the young whites who stand up openly for the white race when virtually no other whites will do so. But barbarians must eventually evolve into civilized Ethnostates.

There have been those who seek to incorporate the Barbarian into their philosophy, who affirm an irrational, dark aspect of man, with which they attempt to justify barbarian behavior. The end goal does not justify any means, the end reflects the means; barbarians beget barbarism, noble behavior begets higher civilization. Reason does not destroy the irrational, it sublimates it into something higher.

The danger with barbarians is that they can unthinkingly bring the reactionary forces fiercely out against the new movement, possibly sinking the rising of the race and the Ethnostate, before it can emerge.

Someone recently said: Why kill the dying Empire when it is in the process of committing suicide? Barbarians, by nature, are not going to do a lot of thinking, they rush in with great courage, but they often self-destruct in the process. Let the Empire continue its suicide, don't try to slow down the suicide (Conservatism) or kill the suicidal Empire (Barbarism). "Only after the diseased whole has fragmented can the pieces be rearranged and reorganized into Ethnostates." What can we do now? "Educate, Arouse, Act," in that order, we can work for our secession into ethnostates, carefully planning, with no sudden separatist coups. Let the rotten Empire dissolve.

The Real Enemy

by John Jewell

Is the Jew the enemy? The enemy? Among ultra-rightists, evil itself is invested in a single loathsome foe. Look at it looming before you; the hideous, leering face of the Eternal Jew. But is the Jew the enemy?

What we face is not strictly "Jewish." To describe it as such is as short-sighted as was Joe McCarthy in calling it "Communist." A "Jewish conspiracy" does exist, but it has far more facets than mere "Zionism." However, it does not stand alone. The Jews have never come to power, nor ruled, through their efforts alone. Not even now. Organized Jewry forms a segment of a monstrous consortium, a great coalition of historical and economic forces. Jewry holds powerful status, but not total supremacy.

That force, which is attempting to destroy the White race, is more properly called the Anglo-Jewish conspiracy.

The Anglo-Zionists

At the prelude of the modern capitalist era, the Jews tried and tested a number of host-allies; Italian, S. German, Flemish and Spanish, but in the end they settled on the Anglo oligarchy. True, the horse-faced Khazars, still west-migrating, sucked a long time on the fresh blood of the Germans and Russians. However, in the end, they too recognized the Sephardic wisdom: the most stable host is the Anglo ruling class of Britain and the USA.

Again and again, the Anglo oligarchy proved its utter contempt and deadly hostility toward its own yeomanry: the Anglo-Saxon or "Anglo-Keltic" freemen. Over and over the Anglo rulers (Anglo-Norman, Anglo-Dutch, Anglo-German) tried to crush and exterminate the White free-holding class (inheritors of the ancient Germanic and Celtic tradition; owning their own rough weapons and tools, land-plot and hovel, and possessing therefore a vote in council). Yeomanry, clans, pioneers and homesteaders, free-soil farmers, White artisans and mechanics, small farmers and ranchers and fishermen, White industrial workers, lower middle-class entrepreneurs. No Black or wog was so systematically attacked.

However, they could not kill us. And so the Jew whispered in their ear: "Breed them with Blacks and thus to racial extinction." First adopted by the Boston Brahmin (who as rum-sugar merchants noted approvingly the debased condition of the poor-White "red-legs" barbaodod from Britain and Ireland to the British West Indies), it was eventually taken up with enthusiasm by the entire Anglo oligarchy of both Britain and the USA. It was learned, however, by the Boston Brahmin following the American Civil War, and by the British after the Boer War, that overt suppression only lead to increased resistance. Far more effective was a more subtle, long-term campaign of ideological brainwashing, guilt-fixing, smears, and selective repression. Here entered the Jew with his own specialized skills in "psycho-warfare."

In the United States, the Jews do hold most of the actual reins, not due to numbers or wealth, as the Anglos have greater holdings and political power, but through their great ideological cohesion. The Anglo-American upper-class is completely degenerate; addicted to sexual degeneracy, drugs and flashy toys; bearing a world-view blinkered by the pissiest sort of left-liberalism or neo-conservatism. Jews, however, possess a driving messianic will to power, called Zionism (or in another popular variant, "Trotskyite-Bolshevism"). It is the glue welding their community, financial holdings, and monopoly of the media into a unified, coherent force (despite all its inner tensions, rivalries, and vendettas).

In Britain, the Jews remain Hofjuden-court Jews-still servitors to the Anglo land and finance oligarchy. (For one thing, the latter are degenerate but still coherent. For another, the Jews simply lack the numbers to staff all important positions). In the UK the Jew is the wire-puller and intriguer par excellence.

Planet of the Apes?

by James Mason

Never was I much of a science fiction fan. The problem was that I was impatient with the space program, as it was and largely still is. Even by the standards of the old sci-fi films of the day, the space effort has fallen way short.

For one thing, they're still using internal combustion to push their space vehicles out of the Earth's gravity and that is a left-over from the 19th Century, barely removed from the horse and buggy. Until they can master electro-magnetism and anti-gravity, I don't want to hear about it.

Bigger than that, however, would be whatever their motive is in even dallying with space, as they are now doing. Why bother? One hears gibberish about exploiting the Moon for whatever minerals or resources it might have. There's even talk about prisons on the Moon. This well fits the prevailing mentality.

The only reason to explore space or anywhere else is for the purpose of colonization, expanding, and safeguarding the race and culture. This would never occur to them. Or, if it did, it would mean transplanting this same sewer, as we see it today, to other worlds.

I assure one and all that it'll never happen.

Then, there are the "Trekcees," the fanatical followers of the long-running "Star Trek" series in its various stages. This piece of media pap never once impressed me from the day of its inception thirty years ago. Not science fiction, but merely costume drama serving as an entertainment vehicle for typically silly and stupid liberal ideas.

Get this: the crew of the "Enterprise" is composed of a racial and cultural mix the same as might be found on any street, in any major US city in the present. Problem is that "Star Trek" is set many centuries in the future. If the social trends in action here today, which are glorified and postulated in "Star Trek," aren't halted and reversed, then well before the time "Star Trek" is supposed to take place, there will be no distinct races left and, certainly nothing remotely resembling civilization, much less a space program.

I am further insulted by the menagerie of freaks and oddities presented on these idiotic television and motion picture shows as other forms of higher intelligence who have the power to transverse space. The point is further missed. To even approach, much less achieve the kind of technology required to affect this, a state of God-like humanity or being would have to be attained.

That is precisely what we on Earth are in direct danger of losing for all time. You hear the cry? Cut space spending and increase welfare spending. Deal a death blow to an immortal future and usher in Planet of the Apes, without an apocalyptic war.

Of course, it is all keyed to the survival and existence of the present ruling System. Nothing can be expected to change as long as it is in power. What research as is conducted will remain backward and geared toward the eventual rape of other planets, just as the Earth has been raped. All the while, the population base will continue to grow and to darken to the point where, in the not too distant future, the "natives" will be squatting in the shadows of the great rocket and missile launchers in Florida, just as they are now in the shadows of the Egyptian pyramids.

It comes back around to will. Does higher humanity on Earth have the capacity to muster the will necessary to overthrow the alien regime now dominating and slowly destroying them, and to truly reach out to the stars?

From Rodney King to O.J. Simpson

by James Mason

Here are two test cases. Not of so-called "American Justice," but of you and I. Where are we at, in terms of politics, philosophy, revolution and reality?

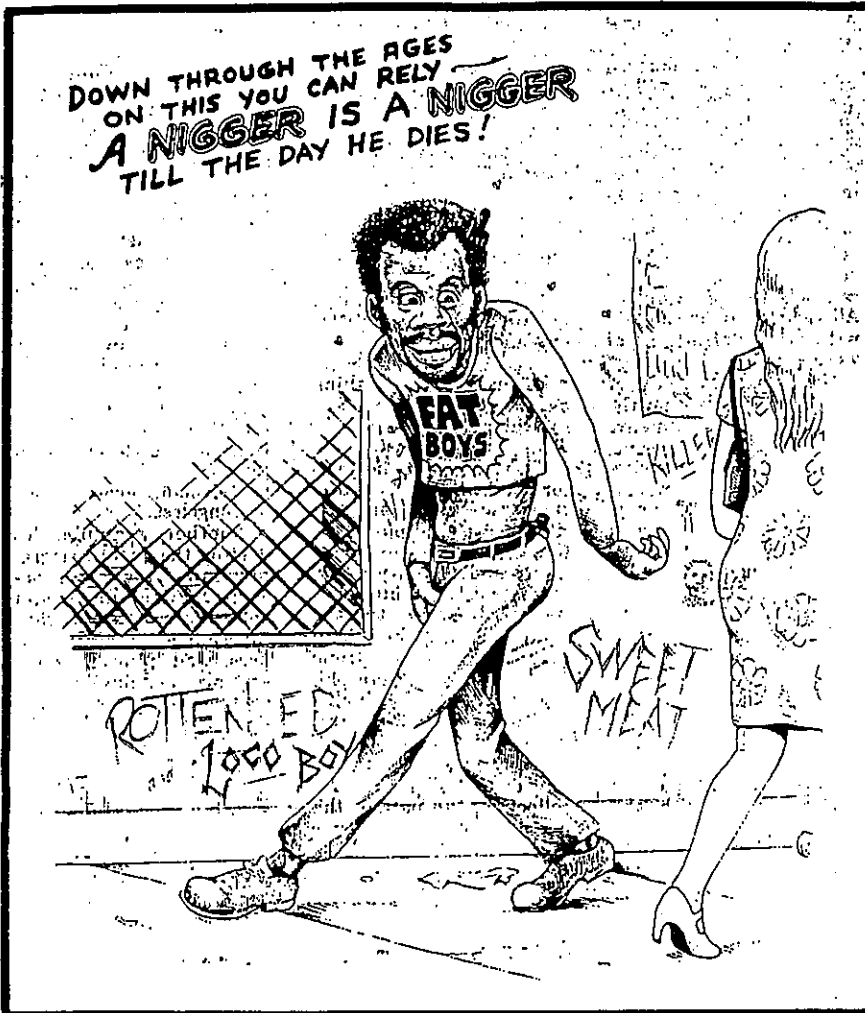

I know for myself, as a very young person during the mid-sixties, I would have unquestionably supported not so much the police, but the "hammering" of these two individuals. For the narrow reason that they are Black and shit-disturbers. To my credit, I never in my life had any love for police.

This does not speak for an awful lot of the reactionaries out there in TV Land, not to mention the Conservatives. Both types feel personally offended and threatened whenever anyone steps outside the law. Whether to resist arrest or to kill his wife, if the perpetrator happens to be Black, all the more chills up the spine. To these types, the law is everything, and brutal, cynical police are heroes.

As my education as a revolutionary grew, it eventually brought me to my present orientation regarding all such situations. It's simple, clear cut and will never need alteration. Never support police. Never want to see anyone convicted by the System of anything. In this I am a true Democrat. Because it directly includes the cases of Rodney King and O.J. Simpson.

Usually, unless you've been personally attacked by the System police and courts, you can't be well enough acquainted with what I'm talking about nor can you harbor the passion necessary to evolve my own outlook.

However, it's more than a mere outlook. It only makes sense if you're aware and serious enough to be classed as a revolutionary. In exactly the same sense is the struggle being waged, coast to coast, between police and so-called "gangs." The gangs are non-White and are supposed to be pretty vicious. However, I'll be damned if I've never been hassled by any gang members. I've never had anything taken from me or been jailed by them. I'm sure that I'm not in their computers.

There are plenty of gang members in here with me now. This is Ad-Seg (Administration Segregation). The prison system is so terrified of anyone, of any color, with a bent towards anti-System organization or activity, that this new classification was hastily whipped up and rubber-stamped through Colorado legislature by more terrified System bureaucrats. It, in short, ends the U.S. Constitution. You don't have to "do" anything. It's who you are and who you know. It effectively ushers in the official status of the political prisoner in the United States. Perhaps I should say the first "peace time" status of political prisoners, but then, we are at war after all, and they, at least, realize it.

There are Whites here also, in maximum lock down, mostly with their arms covered with tattoos. All are young guys who started with a certain amused disbelief that this old, mellow, White guy with glasses was in Ad Seg with them. Until we started talking. I think they invented Ad Seg just with me in mind.

The only thing that is going to clean up America is a complete end to the ZOG System, total separation of the races.

As I tell everyone, this is a well-down-the-line manifestation of the System's fear and desperation. This is Big Brother and beyond. The repressive ultimate in a judicial and prison system, with repression as its reason for existence. This is where the whole society would be if the System had its complete way.

And with your "Support Your Local Police" and "Get Tough On Crime" attitude, it will have its way. However, the target is you! The out of control colored gangs and the rampant crime wave, in general, are merely the "cover" and the excuse.

The average person has a hard time with this. It tends to go against their law-and-order nature, as well as against the way things seem to appear in black and white. All those manly White cops beating the hell out of Rodney King, or that racist, white cop setting O.J. Simpson up for a fall. Aren't they actively engaged in "cleaning up America?" No. They're actively engaged in repression.

The only thing that is going to clean up America is a complete end to the ZOG System, and total separation of the races. The entire problem is multiculturalism and multi-racialism. People like Rodney King were never intended to live under or abide by the same kind of laws as you and I. The O.J. Simpson affair would never have taken place under total, geographic separation of the races. As for the gangs, they are merely the reassertion of peoples and customs long held subject by this dying society, which has lost its sense of self preservation. Wish them well.

Whites need to get it into their heads that this government is not their government. It may be grafted onto the framework of what began as a White government, and it still may be mostly manned by nominally White types, but its ultimate control, guidance, purpose and results are far more against the interests and well being of Whites than any of the colored groups who also make the same mistake in believing it is "the White Man's System."

What the prison system (the ZOG tyranny) has, is exactly what it wants: naked repression. Outside, it still, has, a little way to go. Anytime police make a bust going on the basis of ZOG laws it gets jammed up in the courts. This is good, even if this has to come about by coloreds sticking together where Whites won't, then it is a victory for liberty for all of us.

We do not want to see this vicious, anti-White system working. We want to see it rendered impotent, looking ridiculous and in a state of collapse.

Take Nothing For Granted

by James Mason

Sweating out the demise of the System is a lot like sweating out a prison sentence. The main difference is the former has no date attached for its termination, while the latter has. The main similarity is that we are all, to varying degrees, prisoners of the System.

In really familiarizing yourself with them both, it becomes obvious that the inherent folly and evil of them dictates that their days, or years, are numbered.

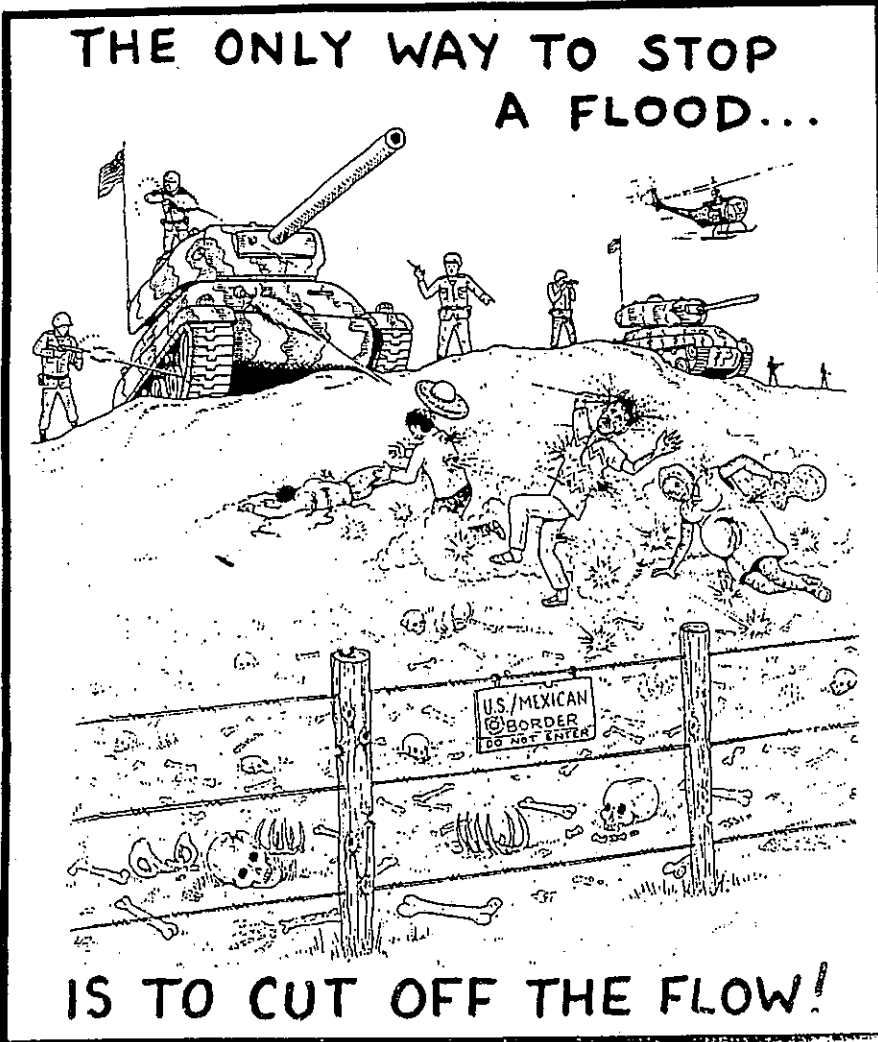

In here we tell one another stay strong and positive. Sure, anyone might think, that's great advice, but isn't it a lot easier said than done? People not familiar with extreme hardship or sudden and radical adversity tend to be bowled over and petrified.

To everything there is a trick to be understood. Sometimes the same trick, in this case a philosophical outlook, can be applied to more than just one situation. The purpose of knowing of such tricks is to make the task less difficult. In this case it would serve to keep one strong and positive in the face of negative circumstances.

I have never been a believer in or practitioner of self-delusion. My faith must have some tangible basis. And I don't believe that merely acting a certain part makes it so. So it is to these tricks, principles actually, that we turn to reassure ourselves when we might otherwise be tempted to despair. Remember, Commander Rockwell said to fight as hard as we could for what we believe in but also to enjoy the fight. Being able to take heart in the face of a long and lonely grind is key.

Playing my own mind games here in the prison to bolster myself that, one, things are actually okay and, the conclusion is coming up. It happens that the same thing applies to the world situation. A large part of it is in never taking anything for granted just because it may now be in the past. The hardest thing about embarking on any long journey are the first steps.

All the milestones lie ahead. The goals, what is hoped for or expected. The results when they finally materialize. There will be and always are the surprises, good and bad, but to just keep your eyes fixed on turning corners is sacrificing a lot of opportunity for increased assurance and higher spirits. Anticipation is a good thing but it should be backed up with reflection.

A friend and I mused back in the Spring, as our respective terms were beginning, that it would be good to see the snow fly. We knew it would happen but the thing was to get there. Now that it has happened, it's well to remember how it was in May. Now, we may both, in our separate locations, have heart to look to Spring when we might expect dramatic change in our circumstances.

I'm approximately one year away from my own thirtieth anniversary of the Movement. I remember how it was. How apparent social stability has turned to quicksand. How an apparently water-tight economy has become a sieve. How insanity and degraation have become the norm. Commander Rockwell murdered. Rhodesia, South Africa. All the while there was the old line about the pendulum that always returns. True enough. But mightn't it be misapplied here? After all, only bad things were happening, albeit things prophesied by Commander Rockwell.

Then came 1989 and the collapse of the Soviet Union. It was so sudden and so easy as to be sur-realistic. I recall standing in front of the television screen watching the Berlin Wall torn down by Germans of east and west and being unable to think anything other than, 'I'll be damned!' I could remember the basement fallout shelter at home and the nights of sleeping in our clothes during the Cuban Missile Crisis. Militant Communism; unbeatable.

There was an object lesson not to be lost on me.

There were other juggernauts which were and are part of the un-human, un-godly New World Order established at the close of World War Two. The artificial bandit state of Israel is another. I remember the wars of 1967 and 1973 when the entire Arab world seemed powerless to dislodge the Jewish enclave in their midst. My Movement awareness then revealed that it was the Jewish grip on the United States that made the seemingly impossible possible.

Fear and frustration. Seemingly without end.

Then the Jews in Israel began to lose their will much as the Jewish Commissars of the Soviet Union had lost theirs. They began to make concessions, to compromise with the Palestinians. They had it all. Why were the Jews now starting to yield? Overconfidence? Weariness? Ground crumbling beneath them? The Palestinian children with rocks were beginning to win.

Where direct warfare had repeatedly failed, the grim, unrelenting hatred and determination of the people over time was winning. Now we see Jews killing their own prime minister and the threat of Israeli civil war.

Anyone to have predicted this then, would have been thought mad. This is yet to play itself out but we have seen the beginning.

At the moment, vile sell-outs in Washington, D.C., are letting the characters that they are playing go to their heads and are engaging in a potentially dangerous game. In a childish bout of tom foolery, they are flirting with a partial shut down of the federal government. To allow for one moment the facade of the all-powerful, eternal and infallible system to crack in such a stupid manner could commence a fatal trend. However, isn't this the very thing we've been hoping and praying for these long and dark years?

Goebbels in 1945, shortly before his suicide, uttered the words, "After the deluge, We!"

If he could say that then, who are we today, still in relative peace and comfort, to do anything other than stay strong and positive?

A miracle is only an event off in the future to which the means of accomplishment are not yet clear. We have miracles behind us already, but we need to resist the tendency to dismiss them with the passage of time. While they were still before us, they were formidable indeed, a source of great anxiety.

Things could be expected to heat up one day, to get fast and rough as the climax comes. Could anything be as rough though as decades of time when everything appeared hopeless? That is what we have behind us. If, at any time, the future seems too hard to bear, all any of us ever has to do is remember where we've just been.

Don't take it for granted.

What on Earth is a Jew?

by James Mason

To this most important question, there is no easy answer. It was brought up to me about a year ago by a very new but dear friend. Educated and intelligent, good hearted and good instincts, and entirely fair-minded. She knew who and what I was and posed her question to what she supposed to be an expert in the field. Expert, perhaps. Admittedly one who has seen and investigated certain facts and information which the Jews -- as the Masters of the Media -- don't want disseminated or studied. Also as a National Socialist who does not mince words about the Jews being the World Enemy and who bases all his decisions on the evidence and makes all his pronouncements and takes all his actions on the basis of correctness and necessity -- never fear.

Adolf Hitler said of the Jews that they were the great counterpart to the Aryan. He also said that being a Jew is a psychological state. He said they were the masters of the lie.

George Lincoln Rockwell said that a Jew could be anyone or a combination of three things: race, religion and nationality. He noted that unless one went happily along with the Jews and their programs, they would drop their "Apostles of Brotherhood" mask and become quite vicious.

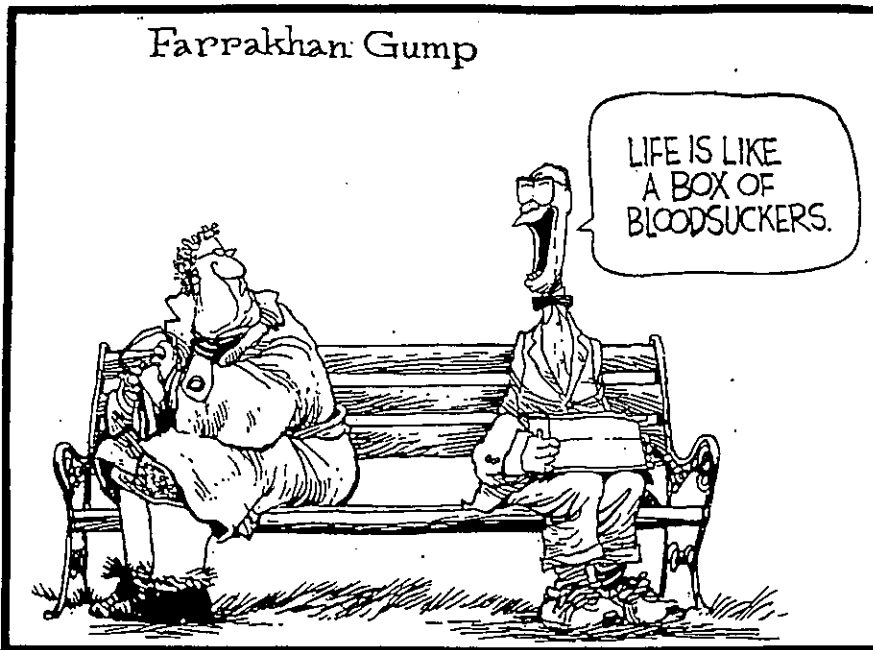

Any child on the street knows the saying, the twin to "I was Gypsyed", is "I was Jewed". It's become an article of faith nowadays to be hyper-aware of the supposed persecution of Jews especially in National Socialist Germany but all throughout Western history. A "special", very different people for sure.

But none of this answers the question of what a Jew is.

Hitler and Rockwell pointed the way when they saw that, for one, in most instances, a Jew can be spotted by his face. Secondly, Jews, for the most part, are to be found heavily involved in pursuits and social movements that tend toward the leftist, liberal, equalitarian and cosmopolitan. A distinct type with it's own agenda.

These are things that anyone can see and observe. It still doesn't answer the question.

A major piece of the puzzle isn't too difficult to dig out of the history books if a person is particularly diligent. Most people imagine Jews to be some form of White people who happen to adhere to a slightly different religion from Christianity. But this cannot explain the truism that the typical Jew didn't get his looks by attending synagogue. Rockwell loved to point to the "Atheist Jews" of Bolshevism. While not being a true race in the strict sense, Jews are a distinct breed.

By far the majority of those who are and who have been identified over the last millennium as Jews are a people related to Turks who were known to history as Khazars. This nation which was originally located in Southern Russia converted en masse to Judaism about the same time as Charlemagne's realm in Western Europe was converting to Christianity. And among Jews today, they are referred to as Ashkenazim. They make up ninety percent of the world's Jews and are in no remote way related to the people of the Bible.

The smaller group is referred to as Sephardim. Their history and origin is more complex and obscure. One can start to trace their beginnings by reading the latter books of the Old Testament. The ancient Hebrews, or Israel, had turned their backs on the Law and, as a result, weakened as a nation, split into two parts and eventually both parts were taken into the captivity of the Assyrians and Babylonians, respectively. So ended Israel and the Hebrews.

After several generations of captivity, around 700 B.C., the Assyrians and Babylonians warred on each other and so weakened themselves that the former Israelites were free to rebel and to depart; only a small remnant returned to Palestine. And of these, a great many had become racially mixed during the Assyrian and Babylonian period. Further, they had adopted much of the religious practices and beliefs of their captors. Hence, the Jews of today do not follow the Old Testament nearly as much as they do the Babylonian Talmud.

The word Jew is troublesome and deceptive in itself. It is a piece of ancient Greek slang introduced when the Bible was first being translated. It could refer either to a member of the Tribe of Judah or to anyone who happened to reside at the time in the province of Judea. So then the biblical reference of "Jew" could mean the same thing as referring to someone as an "American". You really didn't know what you had.

At the time of the captivity, the lands of ancient Israel were left empty but not for long. Other peoples from other lands soon entered and repopulated the vacated spaces. This is what the already mixed remnants found when they returned. These are the Samaritans, Canaanites, etc., mentioned in the bible. Rather like a big city neighborhood in modern America changing in the course of a few generations.

Such was the racial miasma that the Romans found and with which they had to deal centuries later. It eliminated in the Jewish revolt of about 70 A.D. which led to the utter destruction of Jerusalem and the final dispersal of its people.

Centuries following this, the empire of the Khazars was destroyed and scattered militarily. Both groups made their way, piecemeal, into Europe. Both the Sephardim and the Ashkenazim have picked up varying degrees of white blood along the way. There are blonde and blue eyed Jews who still betray the familiar Jewish countenance and psyche.

What then is a Jew?

In a few succinct words, the German Film,

"Der Ewige Jude", states "the Jew is a bastard." But not an ordinary bastard.

Something common to the blood of these types -- or something given rise by this mixture -- along with a peculiarly pernicious doctrine -- not only binds them together but has driven them over the centuries.

They are citizens of every nation but prefer to concentrate in areas of greatest wealth. It is here they proceed to go not only for riches but also for control. What few seem to realize is that they do not stop at control. Without producing anything, they drain the life and wealth until there is nothing remaining but a husk.

In this then, the Jew is a parasite.

For modern Jews to associate themselves or allow themselves to be associated with the people of the Bible, to pose as "God's Chosen", makes them impostors. Jesus of Nazareth called them "the children of their father, the Devil".

Along with instrumenting and championing liberal and leftist movements, Jews, as Hitler said, may be found at the bottom of every racially and culturally poisonous drive. What they come to control they also come to turn rotten and perverse.

In this, the Jew is a survivor.

To pass themselves as Whites -- through conversions, name changes and plastic surgeries -- in order to infiltrate and lead White society over a cliff makes them a criminal conspiracy of counterfeit humanity.

Sometimes too late, sometimes not -- as in the case of Germany -- the host people wake up to this in an extremely angry state. Here is where the phenomenon of "persecution" comes into play.

Dr. Robert Ley said of the Jews, "As the potato bug destroys crops and fields, as it is his nature to do so, so the Jew destroys people and nations".

Would this not define ultimate evil?

The Basis of Religion

by James Mason

Owing to severe restrictions upon reading matter within this facility, one is limited to either trashy novels or the Bible. Realizing that there was no chance whatsoever at gaining knowledge or insight from the former, I chose the latter. Also, since this isn't a prison but a jail, there are no real programs to attend save for a handful of religious ones each week. Primarily to get out of the block, secondarily to experience something akin to a visit.

I remain an atheist but were I of the more energetic, ambitious and unscrupulous sort, I'm perfectly confident that I could do all right for myself as some kind of phony evangelist-for-profit. I'm told often enough that I look the part. To my credit, I suppose, I approach and treat every matter with the respect it is due. And I have a broad enough grasp of the profundities of the subject, to come across like some manner of expert. But, alas, I'm a lazy individual and only dally around with it to amuse myself and to perhaps satisfy some curiosities.

Until very recently in my life, I gave short shrift to the Bible. I had never delved into it much but I based my disconcerted attitude regarding it on two factors that tend to tell the effective tale on most things.

Everybody seemed to place great stock in it; and that which constituted "everybody" was hardly worthy of serious consideration. Indeed, something for "everybody" could hardly be worth a damn for anybody.

My own religious background? My mother was nominally a Methodist, most for the sake of appearances. My father, always rejecting anything on the basis of appearance, was a casual atheist. As a child I will remember all of a sudden asking him, "There's no God, is there?" He matter-of-factly replied, "It doesn't look like it". But my mother had me baptized soon after birth. At her behest, I, at age twelve, took what was literally called "indoctrination" and was taken into the Methodist Church.

It was the last time I was ever there.

As an epilogue to family practices and values, on the day in the mid-seventies as the three of us sat in the attorney's office drawing up our wills, we mutually agreed to simple cremation.

And in the two decades that followed, first it was my father and then my mother's turn to go. Their and my wishes I solemnly carried out minus the customary fanfare. No last minute cop-out due to a very primal scare.

During the intervening years however, that is about 1970-71, I, through Movement activities and contacts, met a man named John Crites. He was garbed in black as a Catholic priest, maintained his own church building on the outskirts of Akron, Ohio, and was staunchly, militantly Christian - and a racist and an anti-Semite. His reputation was so well-known, his sermons so provocative and the presence of inner-city blacks so close, that I was once moved to inquire of him what he would do should a number of car loads of them come screeching up suddenly. "We'll blacktop the parking lot with them", he responded with no particular emotion or effort at drama. He then showed me the twin .30 cal. machine guns concealed behind the altar plus the pistol lying on the lectern, just out of sight.

To put it directly, this man was espousing an "Ancient Astronaut" theory long before the world had heard of Erich von Daniken. God was mortal. In fact, there wasn't one "God" but an entire race of them. Of course, we are their descendants, their offspring, their creation. "God created Man in his own image". Clear language. What's unclear then is exactly who and what "we" are.

Crites lugged approximately his own weight around in Biblical concor-dances.

"Thou shall not commit adultery" was either confused or deliberately obscured to refer to not having sex out of wedlock, when, in fact it directly forbids the adulteration of the bloodlines. "Love thy neighbor" was broadened into meaninglessness from its original intent of referral to one's racial kinsman.

Genesis provides the most awe-inspiring reading of all. What's this about Cain, the first murderer, going out into the Land of Nod and taking a wife? Weren't the first and only "people" still confined to Eden? How about the Sons of Gods taking as wives, the Daughters of Men? The account indicates the flood of Noah was intended to erase an experiment that had already gone rotten ages ago. But was the disaster global or localized?

Stories of "angels" visiting homes, accepted as normal people sitting down to eat at the dinner table, and when accosted by the "gay" citizenry of the day, causing the whole place, Sodom, to be "nuked".

The first books included in the Holy Bible are called the books of Moses and he is the attributed author. By the accounts of the Bible, Moses had achieved the stature of an Egyptian priest, long prior to the famous "Exodus". The arcane wisdom and knowledge, the monotheism as well as the ability to perform "miracles", he stole from the ancient Egyptians.

The story of Exodus as well as Esther reads very familiar to many of us as classic examples of two nationalities, Egyptians and Persians, expelling or attempting to expel a Jewish presence having long since grown pernicious.

Here is the first stumbling block as far as I am concerned: What we know as Jews today and what obviously were Jews thousands of years ago could never be by any stretch of the imagination, the "elect" of God. By their own admissions in the Bible, they were and are a wayward and treacherous lot. Where did they originate? What exactly are they? I do not know. But by Biblical accounts, by the time of the exodus, they numbered in the millions. For that day and that place, that was a lot of people.

Unmistakable references to direct intervention by and direct contact with UFO's is contained heavily throughout. If Egypt had become so bastardized by that time, one could understand why the Extra-Terrestrials would have abandoned them to their fate. But why so "bless" the Jews as to part a sea and to guide them with a saucer in a cloud by day and a "column of fire" by night?

As most reading this will know, there is one section of the Racialize Movement, the Identity Christians, who have it that the "Lost Tribes of Israel" went on to found the nations of modern Europe. This is what John Crites preached and he and they have a lot of evidence by way of history to support it. I don't know.

The historical evidence also shows that part of the globe and this group of people were not the only one's experiencing Extra-Terrestrial involvement. Literally every ancient culture records similar such contact by "Gods". So it needs to be strenuously borne in mind at all times that the Holy Bible is far from being the only "holy" test around. And they each say much the same thing. Also, quite naturally, each one claims to have been given by "the Creator" to just those respective people as some form of "Covenant". It may be safely assumed that the local "Prophets" had something to do with this.

It is admitted by most modern Christian scholars that the later "Apostles", beginning with Paul, made that philosophy into what they believed would catch most readily on among the already bastardized slaves and masses of the Roman Empire.

It is just as openly maintained by these modern Christians that the Jews killed Jesus of Nazareth because he was rocking their boat. Of course, it is well recorded in the pages of the New Testament what this man Jesus thought of the Jews

All throughout my whole life - until this very year of 1996 - I could not fathom the reasoning or significance of a God sending to earth his "only begotten son" to die horribly so that, by some means or other, we, the rest of the population of Earth from that time down through the ages until today, could be saved from our "sins", whatever they may be. It made no sense at all.

It is exactly here where we must step back and get a grip on what we're actually discussing: fable, analogy, allegory, history, fact? I think a combination of each but with a basis in hard reality. Matters are being dealt with in the pages of the Bible that were scarcely understood even by those prophets who were recording the words we read today. Here is what I have been able to make of it.

Modern Christians, explain the advent of Jesus as a practical demonstration on the part of "God" that his "Son", could successfully assume human form, just like all the rest of us, and still retain and return to "godhood" despite all earthly temptations.

Now it had become more clear. Not at all a childish matter of simply "believing" or "accepting" a strange tale, but instead an example to be followed in order not to "go to hell" in a figurative if not a literal sense.

But what was the example supposed to show?

That is what's missed every time and that is why the Christian Church is useless and dangerous.

These jailhouse religious gatherings are a pitiful scene. Church people from the better, more conscientious and professional strata of the society volunteer to come here in order to "save souls". Most of those who attend these groups do so for the reason I do: To get out of the block for awhile.

Aside from that, they do so for purposes of communicating with friends in other blocks, etc. Not a few want to have a go at a "covenant" of their own with the "Lord": "I'll pay you lip service if you'll get me the hell out of this place." Closing prayers will always include certain family members but, just as often, "requests" that tomorrow's court hearing goes right. Most importantly of all is that the general complexion of these gatherings resembles that of coffee with cream.

I somehow don't think that this is what the Lord had in mind.

The admonishments in the Bible all tend to say the same thing: fight with everything you have to part company with animal nature and struggle upward - back toward your Astral father. I say "back" because that is the clear implication given in the opening books of the Bible: The fall of Man from a high original state of near-perfection to where in recent years modern "science" has managed to see him as having descended from apes and, worse still, to where he is breeding himself right out of existence with the "Original Sin", by mixing with those "others" from the Land of Nod.

If the example of Jesus has any real meaning, then it has to be that one "pure in his generations" can exist in the midst of a racial morass and still retain his identity, be immune from the surrounding and prevailing evil, and return to God, his creator. In his secret meeting with Nicodemus, Jesus said that nobody not having originated in heaven has any hope whatsoever of returning to heaven. The threat then? Racial bastardy.

All the emphasis on spirituality? We each know and have seen that a people do not go to hell overnight. The road downhill is a long, tortuous and shameful one before the final abomination is arrived at: miscegenation, adulteration. It begins in the mind and it ends in the mind. Worldly things versus heavenly things. A cheap whore, a quick fix or a struggle to the stars?

All the emphasis on faith? Man has practically lost altogether the use of the unlimited powers and abilities of his brain. Little better than trained monkeys at best are the majorities of humanity. Manifestations of ESP, telepathy, telekinesis, etc., are all pitiful remnants, tiny examples of what we once commanded. To believe, as it is meant in the Bible, is to fight with everything you have to try to recapture all of these innate abilities.

Walk-on water, etc.,? There is no real reason why not.

Then, as the story goes, after the Jews murdered Jesus, he was resurrected and "taken into a cloud".

Two thousand years later, the "Image of God" is threatened with final extinction. It will shortly, in historic terms, become a planet of mud. Satan will have won the bet.

But we end up with the Book of Revelation. No, please don't expect me to explain the number 666 because others far more qualified than I, have already tried, unsuccessfully. But there is so much more than that which requires no such second-guessing.

It's been postulated by science that a crew of Extra-Terrestrials who had the ability to travel at the speed of light could still be around today, having previously witnessed both the beginning and the end of existence on earth. And what they appear to be telling us in Revelation is truly astonishing.

As the climactic hour arrives, a giant ship from space will appear. In form, a cube about 1500 miles square. The "New Jerusalem", as it is called. It will take up a fixed number of people, for departure from earth: 144,000. And apparently everything and everyone else left upon the surface of the planet perishes in a very literal hell.

A great pre-ordained culling of a colossal biological experiment? If that number seems small by comparison to a world population of over five billion, then we may be assured that the Great Scientist is truly going for perfection.

In truth, how few are 100% racially sound? Of that number, how many fewer are in touch with themselves, their Creator, the Truth? I personally think the figure of 144,000 to be wildly optimistic.

Anyway, as a National Socialist, an atheist, and no believer in fairy tales, I might just repeat the warning from scripture that one be ready to go without notice - assuming he is of good blood as an absolute prerequisite. Not as a means of escape or reward but simply because it is THE way to be.

So, the basis then of religion would appear to be very ancient fact and wisdom. But via many translations & interpretations, it has devolved into a state of superstition, dead and useless, the epitome of un-wisdom.

Truth and wisdom are as ageless and vital as racial solidarity. The former being far more ephemeral and yet the latter is thrown into immediate jeopardy minus them.

Fresh, new impetus then is what is required to give new life and meaning, new clarity, to ancient wisdom so as to enable it to do its only real job: Act to preserve and advance the species, High Creation. For me, this is and always will be National Socialism; External, current and tamper-proof.

What's Happening - What's Going to Happen and What Matters?

by James Mason

If I can make any contribution at all to what is loosely called the Struggle, it would be to do my utmost to cut to the very bottom line, in order to spare the rest from going on and on in dead circles.

I'm fortunate enough to receive a heavy correspondence in here, which goes far to make the days speed past. Over the past couple of decades, a lot of significant headway has been made in the thinking of the average White activist. Yet, I can't help but notice some static remaining, and it hits me just like static coming over a radio or television. It annoys me.

Assuming two primary forms, or perhaps only two variations of one basic form, it seems to run about like this: Concern over some affiliation or image within the Struggle the way it stands today; whether one is better or worse than another; and internal strife and personality conflicts. "Who's an agent," "who's a fool," and "who does it my way?"

If there is a second aspect to this it is to the extent to which avowedly dedicated people still cling to the outmoded and compromised notions and forms, all of which have but one result: Holding one firmly within the margins of the System itself and wholly ineffectual. Too many, even within the Struggle, continue to miss the point.

One leap of light-year proportions for the Struggle was the coining of the term, Zionist Occupation Government (Z.O.G.). That brilliantly and succinctly cuts to the very bone of the issue. The White man has lost the struggle, if there ever truly was a struggle, for control of America. This land, just as every White land, is Enemy Occupied.

How could any informed and realistic person imagine that the shenanigans which did nothing to prevent this from coming to pass then, could hope to have any effect of undoing it now, in the present?

The old Right-Wing thought of, "I told you so," is of no value whatsoever. In the Sixties, it was surely imagined that once all of our dire predictions came true and it was seen that we weren't nuts after all, the common people would wake up. That was thirty years ago; all of it and more has come true and no one is waking up, not really. We're not nuts, we're marginal. Then and now. Besides, to say, "I told you so," directly implies that the damage has already been done.

THE JEWS ARE A RACE SO REPULSIVE... SO CONNIVING... SO DESPICABLE THAT SOME PEOPLE ARE WILLING TO DESTROY THEMSELVES JUST TO RID THE PLANET OF ONE OR TWO!

That line in the sand keeps receding more and more before each fresh outrage and incursion. Leaderless, directionless, looking always for the course of least resistance, people will take more than anyone would have thought possible. Some retreat, others will cower and roll with the blows, still others will succumb and join the other side. However, they will not accept counsel from the margins-never.

You may be assured that you are in the margins if you diverge radically from the System's cardinal points, yet still imagine you can affect something positive through conventional means. 'Truth' and 'right' have no meaning in this. How can the inertia of the government or the hoopla of the media be competed against? It's been tried.

The advance and the assault of the Enemy government and media against White America has been impeded by only one thing all throughout history. That is the trepidition of the System itself in not wanting to push too hard or too fast, thus risking a genuine backlash. Digest that for a moment. Nothing has stood in their way except their own timidity.

After all, all along they have realized what they're trying to do. Who would really expect a targeted people to put up with being turned into drug addicts, homosexuals and race-mixers? You know what happens when you let a bully get away with something or let an animal smell fear? Remember what a handful of Jews did to Russia when the Russian people failed to get it together? How about formerly cringing Black slaves, now boastful and arrogant as hell?

You've really let yourself in for something this time!

So, you're going to go on worrying about what name to give your group, what symbol you're going to use, the wording of your membership application form, the cut of your uniform, who else in the Struggle you're going to attack, or who you're going to club up with. If, "I told you so," won't work on you, how do you expect it to work on anyone else?

Your mortal enemies

no longer have the least bit of respect for you. It's in the air. It's going to set the entire tone for the next century. And it won't be pretty.

You want to know what's going to happen?

The White bio-mass is going to absorb blow after blow, take loss after loss, sell-out after sell-out, and they're going to keep picking up the bill for it all. The gates are practically wide open now. You'll really start to see more instances of small-scale violence and more cases of individuals going over to the other side. So, watch out and don't be surprised.

The outcome will depend entirely upon how well and how much punishment the bio-mass can take, for again, there will be nothing to ward off the blows. Nothing.

Can we play a game of give-away until the System becomes viable? This is the question.

You, with the grand designs, the intricate angles, and the very highest of ideals, will find this summation most unacceptable. However, it will come down to the Enemy weaving himself out hitting and kicking and helping himself to the limp body of the White bio-mass, until he has exhausted himself and collapses in a heap.

Not a lot of glory there for anyone.

Survival? The word is happenstance. In isolated places the blood may continue unpolluted, while in metro areas it will disappear. Some will end their bloodlines willingly, while others won't get around to it. Not enough colored types to go around. No pride, just the numbers and the odds.

It's there for the taking. Can the Enemy take it?

The bright spot? It's a catch-22. This Enemy assault upon White America has been and still is shouldered by the Whites themselves. You can't suppose that the colored races did this on their own. The System, controlled by alien Jews, which the Whites still suppose to be their own, is the central generator of all evil, not only here but in the entire world. It is complex and sophisticated in the extreme. It relies upon White dupes and sell-outs to make it function. Just as the alien media needs White sell-out actors to create the pervading death wish. And, it needs a certain level of orderly and productive White society to feed its expenses.

Go beneath that certain minimum of inherent responsibility and decency, and not even the most bloodthirsty of despots can make it work any longer. Witness Haiti, etc.

The program of the System decrees its own demise.

Any bets as to whether the System will crack before the White element evaporates, or whether any of us will be around to see it?

Coloreds consider Jews to be White.

Only when the System dies will things change.

What can you do that matters? You can't wake anyone else up. You can only do it for yourself. Pretending and posing in front of mirrors doesn't count.

I could have given this piece a different title. "Helter Skelter" would have been perfect. However, that conjures up an image of truth so harsh and real that the Great Pretenders can't stand it.

They'd rather go on as the "Captain of Mamsan," to quote from Him, the Servant of Truth.

Shades and Degrees

Science has it that a mere two percent difference in DNA is all that separates us from chimpanzees. If that proves anything it is that a terrific lot, the crucial difference, can be, and usually is, contained within a very little.

We, in the movement, have always been aware that there exists on average a fifteen to twenty point IQ difference between Blacks and Whites. An awful lot is contained in those few, top-most points.

However, to those for whom nobility, culture, civilization, decency, responsibility, love, kindness, higher meaning and purpose count for nothing, those points are not only expendable, they are an embarrassment. They put the lie to the garbage that, "The only difference between the races is their skin color."

The human system normally runs at 98.6 degrees in temperature. On the surface, one might think there would be plenty of latitude for variance in either direction. But in truth, only a few degrees higher or lower can result in convulsions and death.

As racial separatists, we know only too well how a healthy, happy and proud people can be reduced within a few generations to a lost and degraded rabble.

A slight twist to the culture, an injection of a subtle poison to education, the selling out of the small upper percentage of the population and, with time, the small initial divergence has achieved a radically wide curve.

Because time only runs in a forward direction, to most this is all seen as 'progress.' To each living generation, their time is always the most advanced and enlightened of all. How then does one account for the longing for the 'good old days?' Smart and sophisticated, including many of their Negroes, why do their problems mount, seemingly unsolvable?

We know the answer, but that's not the point to be made here. Where's the trick or the wonder in fouling up a society and a population when one has already in their hands all the workings of government, the media, etc.? An even better question would be, why? However, neither is that the point here.

We need to appreciate and understand how the workings of shades and degrees, gradualism, can be harnessed by us for revolution. It is right here where an understanding has to be achieved regarding why revolution is the only realistic course, as well as how precisely is the tactic of gradualism to be applied.

Whites who make it possible for this mess to continue year after year when, left naturally on it's own, it would have expired or blown to pieces long ago.

Only a tiny minority provide the criminally insane impetus to continue on in what is clearly a suicidal path. The huge masses don't even factor in.

Opponents have said that we have no constituency. This is true. But outset of the Second World War: he, and they, didn't see the limitless extremes of the insane determination of those in control to stay in control even if it means world destruction.

It is well to remember Hitler's words written inside prison in 1924 following the failure of the Munich Revolt:

To paraphrase, Hitler commented that we ought never to bother worrying whether the task is even possible. Only that it is right and necessary. Having determined that much, we then determine it is capable of accomplishment. The stage being set as it is, Hitler's thoughts on numbers are equally important to us today. He said that a minority movement, if they possess the majority of will and determination, will, "with mathematical certainty," overcome and prevail.

The System will fall. It is falling; except in slow motion. The Police State is practically here. They are now talking of printing more phony money, of 'raising the ceiling,' so that the government will not default on the interest of the impossible national debt. These are close to last-ditch measures and were entirely predictable for the System. It is that, or else.

The Whites will endure more taxation and work harder and longer. The coloreds will continue to multiply and exasperate the problem closer to the breaking point. The pressure will mount. Big Brother will clamp down on an ever tightening lid.

The System's dilemma is this: To change and adopt a sane, correct and appropriate course, which primarily would mean permitting a genuine alternative, would amount to direct suicide. This, they will not do. To continue on the same course will certainly buy them some time even though guaranteed to carry not only them but the whole country to ultimate disaster. This, they will keep pulling out all the stops to accomplish. Through this, we can predict every move the System will make.

Statistics. Regardless of where one wants to look, from crime to unemployment, to inflation, to drugs, welfare, immigration, etc., the picture is a worsening one. One or another may temporarily alleviate, but the trend is unmistakable as it is inexorable. The country seems to be groaning but I remain amazed at how low the actual numbers are.

Yet, signs are definite that the System knows it is in trouble. The question posed to us then is how much more can the System absorb before something cracks, before mere media denial and bureaucratic hocus pocus can no longer cover up or smooth it over? Even more to the point, how much 'trouble' is more than the System's pigs can swoop down upon and bottle up?

The answer is, very little. However, the key is in the suddenness.

Economy. The System is in trouble on two fronts. The fabric of society is unravelling and the money is weakening. However, as long as there is even 'funny money' circulating and being accepted, the System can continue to use the media to maintain the brainwash, keep services on and pay more pigs to hold the lid on. In fact, the System is using 'crime,' etc., as its excuse to bolster the economy through building the Police State and ushering in more phony baloney.

However, it would be obvious to a blind man that this most far-fetched stratagem is fore-doomed. Where is the productivity in it? To this they have no answer.

There is a final question that we must ask ourselves and that only we can answer.

Among those who have a perfect and abiding faith in the death of the System, there is also a division of thought. Those who favor exclusively retiring to the Northwest to dig in and let the threatening storm blow over and those who cannot resist giving the System a shove.

Rather than a 'kiddy club' mentality and approach as in years past, the struggle is now clearly assuming the proportions of a natural event. The dinosaur dies as the mammals venture into the open. Some improve their cover while others are hungry for a piece of the former lord and master.

James Mason

Time. Assuming, for the sake of argument, that we could retake society's institutions in the same way that they were subverted; the length of time that it would require, given the trends and statistics already set in motion, would render the populace we would be inheriting as hardly worth bothering about. The fundamental difference between us and the System is that we don't want a country full of non-descript biological slob, yuppies and miscellaneous perverts. We demand a nation of Aryans.

Because we acknowledge that nothing and nobody can salvage the government or the society, we are not under any time constraint. The country can go to hell. The government can go to hell. Much of the populace will go to hell. What is a mass of third world muds worth versus a solid nucleus of Aryans, conscious and proud of what they are?

Today it is a tiny fraction of only the most ingenious and industrious when they say that, it is with the assumption that we are somehow playing their game or possibly have an interest in playing their game. The alien usurpers of societal control have, as their millions upon millions of 'constituents,' demonstrate only the dupes which they themselves have created through brainwash. We have not the means and, more importantly, we do not have the desire, for brainwash.

It's been my own contention for a long time that not much is holding this together. I'm not alone in this, however, in this philosophy there are two schools of thought and mine is the junior of them. People have been saying for a very long time that the end of the System, by whatever name or whatever means was imminent, and in not just a few instances actually placing a date on it.

The above is true in theory. These people make the one same mistake that Adolf Hitler made at the

WAR

The Revolutionary Position

by James Mason

If there were anything I might hope to convince anyone of, it would be to never get caught up in trivial issues of the moment. A revolutionary wouldn't be found absorbed in such things as professional sports or television soap operas, so why allow yourself to be sucked in by the daily news?

Remember, that a revolutionary is apart from, not a part of, present alignment. He is apart from it, because he sees its folly and futility as well as its hypocritical tyranny for which he hates it. Though few in number and disorganized, he can plainly see the decomposition of the System's base of power now on a year-to-year basis. And he welcomes it with anticipation.

Yet, emotions remain. Hopefully he won't be found like the others, frantically and fretfully concerned with the latest band-aid on the cancer of society, praying the status quo of relative comfort and comparative security will manage to hang on at least to the end of their own days. Ideally, he will find confirmation and encouragement with each chunk of the decayed society that falls away and remain eager for the day of equalization with System forces.

Rather than be a slave to his emotions, he will have become their master and will be able to fully utilize them in others by helping them see through the maze of phony, divisive but highly emotionally charged issues, whipped up by the System media to maintain their spell of helpless confusion over the masses.

These artificially engineered flashpoints are as many as they are varied. But they all are as dead-end, 'lose-lose' as betting on which team wins the big game or which handsome doctor gets the girl on television. Essentially, the System, through its media, picks on one or another social aspect that ought best to be, and hitherto was, left alone. Sometimes they have an ulterior objective in this, but always there is the effect of dividing the people against themselves over matters which do not count in the great scheme of things.

Then, via media hype, emotions get hot. Attentions are diverted to the tiniest details, with the greatest of energies brought to focus. Regardless of anything, the overall trend continues unchanged and the best minds are left wondering why.

I'll take three of the best examples of this phenomenon, guaranteed to force anyone to instantly choose a side, ala the Civil War. These are: The Death Penalty, Abortion, and Gun Control.

The psychology wizards know that certain personality types will react in predictable ways to given situations. These types have divided themselves into two categories: Liberal and Conservative. Please note that on key, critical matters such as race or the role of Jews there is never any debate permitted and both 'parties' will be found to be in concert there at any time: trombling acceptance of Coloreds and fawning cowtow to Jews.

Certain personality types will be programmed to accept or reject a pro vs. con stance on the flashpoints, or buzz words, I listed before. There's something genetic in this which the media masters understood early and determined to exploit. Part of the opening of Pandora's Box of evils and confusion that we'll play hell getting closed again.

You'll find Liberals in favor of abortion and gun control, while Conservatives will support the death penalty. Liberals are great champions of 'rights,' while Conservatives are staunchly 'law and order.' Liberals make up the Democratic Party, while the Republican Party is Conservative. These divisions only affect the Whites. Coloreds and special interests act and react as blocks. Such is part of the fraud of Democracy.

Each of the blurbs I've picked amounts to nothing more in human societal terms than a tool. A mere tool. Nothing whatever to get emotional about. But the media has taken them and supercharged them to the point where they have replaced the former 'dirty words,' that since have become part of the mainstream vernacular. (To briefly digress, the replacement for the 'F' word, of course, is now called racism).

Take an impossible and useless proposition and, worse, take it out of context, and any stance on it whatsoever is ridiculous and meaningless. Yet, each of these directly involves life and death.

Let's start with the Death Penalty. Liberals charge that it is cruel and unusual, that it does not deter crime and, worst of all, its application is 'racist.' Conservatives maintain that a dead offender does not re-offend. Both are quite correct, but both miss the actual point completely.

Since any debate on the merits or disadvantages of a multi-racial society is strictly forbidden, the answer cannot be gotten at. Coloreds commit crimes far in excess of their representation in population. And their numbers are gaining. As Whites are compelled to desperate measures of self-defense and self-preservation (read 'hate crimes'), they are more and more apt to become themselves targets of any death penalties.

The deaths of a few or a lot more Colored murderers or rapists does not balance well with me against the death of even one White Separatist. For every common criminal type thus executed by the System, ten more are being bred by the System welfare. And what about you? You don't know what you may be forced to do tomorrow. Do you want even the possibility to exist of your sharing their fate?

If the death of the System is the answer, then rampant crime and overflowing prisons, as well as runaway welfare, serve to hasten its inevitable approach. To mandate the power of life or death into the hands of the alien, enemy System is purely insane.

Get the System out of the way and we'll erase crime. Meanwhile, it is a distinct ally.

Next, Abortion. The liberal argument is that the woman should have control over her own body.

Conservatives counter this by insisting that life is precious. Both are correct and incorrect. Again, both miss the real point.

We're dealing here with reproduction and in this most vital of all natural functions, there are no 'rights,' but only duties and responsibilities. Once again, no discussion of the racial or genetic factors are permitted, and so they grope about in a thick fog. The purpose of the sex act is for the increase and improvement of the species. Nature imbued it with pleasure lest we neglect it. However, the alien System has, as with all else, managed to pervert it to the point where the resultant pregnancies are real 'drags,' and 'cold towels' to the fun. (Digression: as is AIDS with regard to another actual perversion).

Forget about upbreeding the race, these modern types merely are concerned with escaping responsibility. (Just as is the cry to discover a cure for AIDS). To me, this is disgusting and loathsome.

On the other hand, human life, far from being a precious commodity, is a glut on the world market. There is nothing inherently sacred in human life. The sole exception to this is in the area of Eugenics (upbreeding). The quest for the Superman, which, of course, was discredited at the close of the Second World War when the System assumed undisputed control of the world.

Today, abortion is only one of the more odious of the manifestations of the System's moral bankruptcy and barbarism. This, because of its very indiscriminate application. For now let it symbolize the pool of blood the System will ultimately drown in.

Tomorrow, after the death of the System, we will utilize abortion and any and all other measures to safeguard the benefit of the White race

Twister Movie Review

by WAR staff

Somehow, an Aryan message film, like the massive hit, Twister, occasionally slips through the claws of the Hollywood Jew community. I almost fell out of my seat when the hero gives up his rich Jewess therapist girlfriend to return to his feisty, smart and courageous (but poor) Aryan wife! There are many positive messages:

home in the countryside, while the city Jewess is quite dysfunctional without her cell phone;

7. The Aryans stand in awe of Nature, while the Jewess cowers in sheer terror;

8. An Aryan woman is deeply cautious and thoughtful about the prospect of divorce, and finally lets her man decide for himself;

9. After a disaster, Whites rush to help one another, even at the risk of their own lives; and

10. An Aryan husband and wife are depicted in a true heroic partnership.

1. An Aryan father sacrificing his life to save White women and children;

2. Aryan men and women excited about challenging Nature, while the lone urban Jewess screams in fear;

3. The Aryans are interested to the point of fanaticism in natural science, while the Jewess is a sex therapist, representing media-generated, pseudo-science;

4. Whereas the Aryans simply want to understand the power of Nature, the Jewess assumes they should be trying to control it;

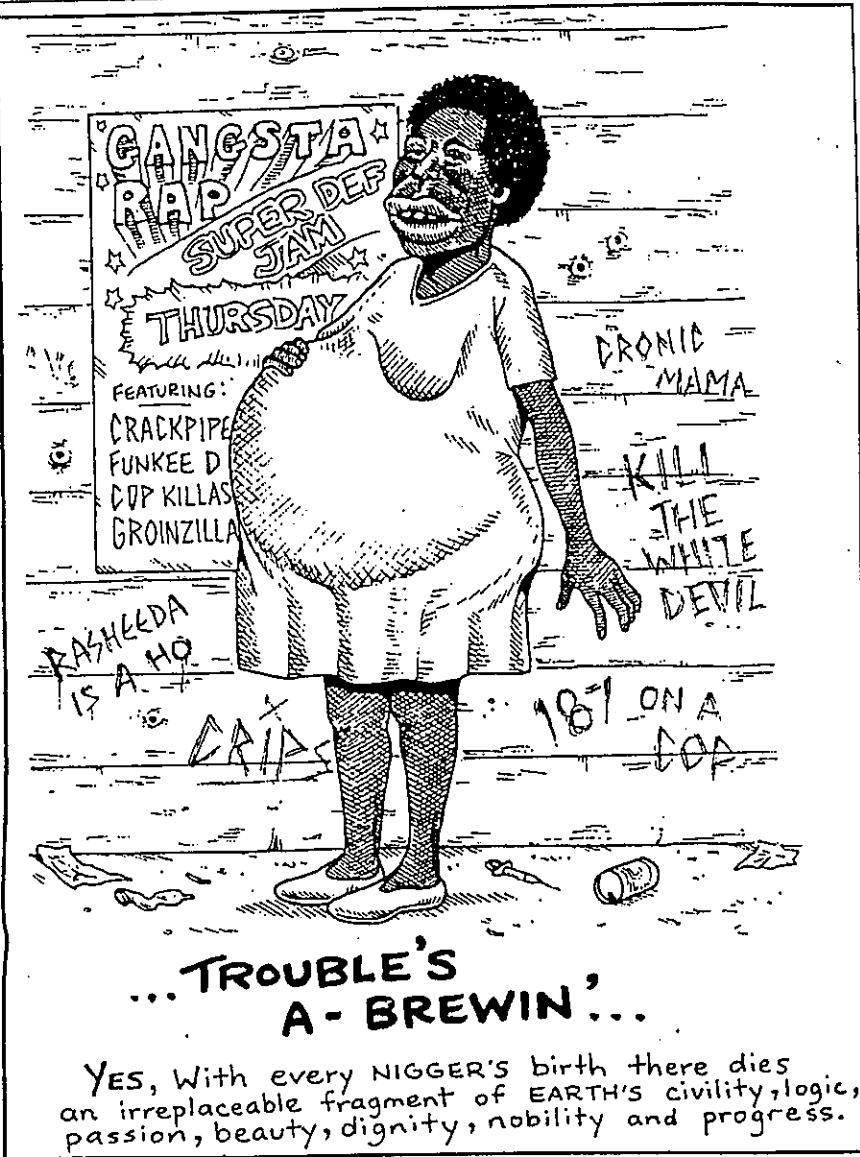

5. The Aryan hero is so in touch with Nature, he clearly has a spiritual relationship to it (no Amer-Indians need apply!);

There is a token "bad White," a self-promoting salesman type, quite believable, who leads one of his lackeys to a mutual death, sucked into the sky. There is even a hilarious scene where the Aryans sit down to a meal of meat, carbs, and meat gravy; and the Jewess doesn't know what to do with this "White folks' food!"

All in all, a really good message film about how we can get along without them.

against mongrelization and deformity, thereby speeding by leaps and bounds toward the attainment of Godlike humanity.

Finally, Gun Control. Liberals began with the specious argument of somehow curbing crime (though the increase in crime has increased hand-in-hand with accelerating gun control measures). Now, their focus has shifted to child safety in the home (though we've done just fine up till now). Conservatives cling to the Constitution's guarantee to keep and bear arms; here they are both farthest from the truth.

One last difference between Liberals and Conservatives is that the Liberals often believe what they advocate, however badly misled. Conservatives are often dishonest and cowardly.

If open and frank talk about race is forbidden, then any question of Jewish involvement in any possible conspiracy to control this country or any other will automatically get anyone immediately trounced out of the Establishment which serves the System. So, the crux of gun control cannot be approached even remotely.

In Hitler's Germany, every individual and every household was encouraged to possess and to be proficient with the use of firearms. There were state-sanctioned competitions and awards for this. Crime had already been eliminated, not played with, by the Gestapo and concentration camps. The nation was at one with the state. The leader was one with the people. Disarmament, or gun control, only came in when Germany was overrun (read 'liberated') by its enemies and lost its freedom. This included children's air guns.

Here today we have been taken over from within by our enemies, the ZOG System, and because they need to conceal the conspiracy, lest a genuine revolt be sparked, they must gradually disarm the population by stages, using excuses like 'crime,' or 'home safety.' Their goal, of course, is a population helpless to resist a naked tyranny of enslavement and racial destruction.

Liberals would scoff at this and Conservatives would cringe and weave the knee. I, for saying this, would be the Liberals' justification for total gun control. Conservatives merely want to retain the ability to go on outings in the woods and boast extensive collections. Both are integral parts of the same System and wouldn't dream of harming it. Jefferson would puke.

In the end, the System will be brought down by the very forces it has unleashed and an armed or unarmed populace will play no part. So, at least that particular joke is on them and any others who fall for it as having any validity.

Be assured of two things: The System is going to do what it is going to do. With their mind-manipulating media, that can hardly be expected to fail. So, don't even bother about it. However, simultaneously they paint themselves into the proverbial corner. They hasten to keep their own 'Appointment in Samarra.'

By not playing their game with them, you'll hasten its end.

Family Values

by James Mason

A few years ago, here in Colorado, a wealthy businessman and some friends began a group they called Citizens For Family Values. Its founding coincided with a controversial legislation in Colorado to deny to homosexuals special protection against discrimination as enjoyed by Blacks and other racial minorities.

Typically, as Conservatives, their justification for this action was that homosexuals should not receive this protected status as do racial groups because their sexual orientation was a matter of choice, while a person's color was not. Secondary to this was the "Christian," moral issue against homosexuality and the contention that homosexuals, since they cannot procreate, must "recruit" in a predatory manner, thus threatening young people.

These Conservatives went to painful lengths to attempt to disclaim that they were "out to get" any segment of the population; that they did not seek to deprive anyone of their "civil rights," but that they did not approve of granting to those who chose a deviant lifestyle special rights. However, it was easily and generally understood that they sought to reserve their own rights not to have to employ deviant, undesirable types, or to have their children exposed to them.

It was, in truth, an attempt at self-defense on the part of the White, "Christian" majority. And their proposal was voted into effect.

Here the Conservatives may have received a dismaying surprise. For the Liberal establishment, the System media and judiciary, and, most notably of all, Hollywood, declared war on the State of Colorado, much as they had on Arizona for not accepting "Martin Luther King Day," and as they had on South Africa over Apartheid, etc.

Fittingly enough, the chief spokesperson for this high-profile reaction against the will of the electorate of Colorado was the Hollywood Jewess, Barbara Streisand. All of the filthy rich were out to boycott their favorite watering holes and playgrounds, such as Vale and Aspen. Instantly following suit was the Supreme Court, which declared the new legislation to be "unconstitutional" and blocked its implementation, probably much to the mystification and outrage of the Conservatives and voting public.

To my mind at the time came the experience of the newly reawakened and liberated National Socialist Germany in 1933, which instantly was faced with an openly declared economic war by international Jewry. White people, White states, and White nations were not supposed to assert their collective wills. Most definitely they were not supposed to take any measures to protect themselves against compromise and degeneracy. Most of all, flaged dictatorship. Worse than that, one in league with, or at the very least perfectly willingly to utilize the vilest, most loathsome degeneracy to fulfill some equally dark agenda.

But no. Only mild protestations and lukewarm explanations. Note what actually took place. Persons integrally part of the mainstream of society, successful business people with influence and resources, attempted to make an effort to protect their society, as they perceived it, against what they saw as the final straw of the abominable threat to its integrity. And they affected concrete results on a waited too long to draw the line. You've allowed too much to go unchallenged. You've accepted a fatal dose of the poison already and you are no longer in control of your destiny. It means you are dominated by something which you do not know, but something which knows you and has your demise in mind.

Family Values has since been co-opted by the media and the System for its own ends. It has been turned into a rubber bear, a paper tiger, a hollow, meaningless blurb. Rather like the "War On Drugs," or "Balance the Budget." Empty. You hear it all the time now that it is the Civil War. Do they realize that? I don't think so. The populace is groaning, lost and in misery. They cannot find their way. They are conquered. They are damned. They're powerless.

The "family" was the next-to-last target of the Beast System. The family being a component of the tribe or the nation. Confuse the meaning and definition of what the nation is and the ball is set rolling. Geopolitical, artificial, man-made criteria came to replace the only real basis for a nation, or a family, which is that of one blood. Religion was perverted to accomplish the same confusion. Suicidal notions and "tolerance" and "brotherhood" were subtly injected to pave the way for aliens to enter the workings of the society. Insane notions, such as "equality" were used to eliminate the barriers our forefathers had painstakingly erected to safeguard their bloodlines from adulteration. Pollution of the culture was intended to facilitate this same "equality." The liberal assault on authority, discipline and White tradition was aimed directly at the family unit. Women were set against men and children against parents in the name of "freedom."

Now, the individual is largely defenseless on his own against such things, abroad in the land, as homosexuality and miscegenation, besides drug use and violent death as a victim of crime. Those who have anything to lose? Whites only. Dark hellholes are in no jeopardy of disappearing in the world. They are what is entailed in the ongoing population explosion. Only decent White civilization is in danger of extinction.

So, the babble about "family values" needs to cease. It's too late for that and it's misleading. It plays directly into Enemy hands, as it tends to support a status quo he has created to suit himself and his purposes.

We need to focus instead on the words of Adolf Hitler's writings in Mein Kampf. "If, by the instrument of governmental authority a people is being led to its destruction, rebellion is not only the right but the duty of that people."

they were not supposed to resist, much less throw off, alien influences.

To do so was to enrage the Beast. For Colorado's mild effort, it was economic boycott and the State itself being pilloried in the System media with the will of the people being completely negated by those few who "knew better." In the case of Germany's breaking free from the "New World Order," it was the immolation and crucifixion of the entire nation to bring it back in line with the plan of the "Learned Elders."

Since then I've seen the founder of the Family Values movement on local television panels grouped, to his chagrin no doubt, with other so-called "hate groups," such as the Klan and the various militias. One might think, and surely expect, as aggressive and intelligent businessman to at least get the message, wake up and call it like it is: hidden tyranny; camoumass scale. The critical part is that these results were not in line with Big Brother's agenda. They forgot that the workings of the establishment have long since been the exclusive domain of Z.O.G., and, as with any occupation, ZOG struck back to squelch this popular and independent effort to buck the tide.

From the mainstream and into the margins with the rest of us "lunatic fringers," went the Family Values effort. Neutralization is the term. Homosexuality and AIDS marches on triumphantly. To borrow from J.B. Stoner: "They march triumphantly, but they march to the grave."

So, what does it mean when you attempt to defend yourself from some evil influence spreading like a cancer, establish some local success, only to be slapped down by "your own" government and thwarted? It means you've started with too little, too late. You've

"safe," without teeth.

What is then meant by "family values?" An interracial or homosexual union all neatly within the orderly and tax-paying framework of the establishment to the exclusion of violence and drugs and with a good education? "Up With People?" I rather think so. "Don't-Rock-The-Boat-Diversity." A nice, even keel diversity that will inevitably lead directly to, not a "melting pot," but a sludge pot of irretrievable decadence and misery. This is what your masters have your future locked on to. Try to change it from within, legalistically, as a "good citizen," and you'll only piss them off and let yourself in for a lot of grief.

They don't miss the point. Neither should you.

We should not be willing to participate in a charade. Some long for a return to "family values." In order to affect that it would be necessary to undo every piece of social legislation made since

Pit and the Pendulum

by James Mason

With apologies to Edgar Allan Poe, I seem to remember from somewhere a long time ago the assurance that the pendulum's swing always returns. The cause for the reference was the "pit" of bleeding-heart liberal Democracy that the nation found itself in during the 60s, along with the permissive insanity that was leering at the vitals of White society.

In the Struggle, we knew that the then prevailing attitude of "hand it all over as fast as you can" on the part of the government, media and education was alien-inspired and counter to the instincts of the people. However, neither we nor they were able to do anything about it. The degree of amazement at just what people would stand still for has never been greater.

The first hints of the "blessings" of racial integration, the loosening of the grip over primitive subject people, were becoming apparent with the racial riots and the appearance of racially-mixed couples. The "do your own thing" philosophy was giving birth to "recreational" drug use and "alternative lifestyles." Already, the ground purpose of "law enforcement" had been changed from "protect and serve" to "protect you from yourself." Crime began to jump. Anti-gun laws look place.

No amount of extra attempts at waking us were of any avail. Some of the more mature patiently sensed that the swing from Liberal to Conservative would eventually come as a matter of natural course. You can only ruin and poison and throw away just so long before there is no more left. It sort of made sense in a too-good-to-be-true kind of way. One still clung to the semi-certainty that sometime, enough would have to be enough.

Well, sure enough, it happened. Only when the comfortable middle-class were no longer safe in their suburban homes and only when it was clear that the foundation of their way of life was about to implode did the mood shift. Their own offspring could be drug-crazed, homosexual or race-mixing whores, but let no one seriously threaten property rights or income.

Remember the old "revolving door" comparison with the so-called justice and prison system? Gone, I assure you. Systems are truly reactionary and Conservative today. One obese radio and television commentator speaks for this new wave, the Republican Revolution, and does it well;

An outstanding degree of similarity to some of the moral and social things which Rockwell was saying in the 60s are heard coming from this man who has a huge following.

Yet, there is no cause for cheering to be found there. Unless money concerns are your god, the Conservative swing of the pendulum, so long predict-damage done three and four generations ago still unchecked, the population base becomes darker and darker every year. There is the only real problem and there is the reason it isn't getting any better.

The liberal phase of the past generation was used to knock everything fatally off-track. The conservative phase of today is to ensure is held to allow it to reach its completion.

I'll spell it all the way out: To change the face of this country from a White extension of Europe to a colored extension of the Third World. If you want to have a close look at that kind of a future today, search no further than a place like Haiti. That is precisely where "noble ideas of and control.

The media implants the information people have into their heads. Controlled news forms enemy-approved opinions. Hollywood generates emotions designed to fall in line with enemy programs. Such mesmerism by itself could easily spell death for a free and healthy society, for, because of it, such a concept as Democracy is rendered as nothing more than a shell-game.

The economy, in the hands of the enemy, provides them the physical means of repression. Army and Police are their hired hoods. The workers are their slaves. The carrot and stick of "punishment and reward" are theirs. Money power can drive opponents into the wilderness and then pursue them in order to murder them. Unable to think and too fearful of becoming the next victim, the people never organize to react appropriately.

This is all controlled by the same hands from the highest sources. It is from this point that the stage-managed pendulum-swings to and fro. Left-wing or Right-wing, it matters not so long as it remains firmly attached to the same unchanging point. So, do not remain hypnotized by this back and forth motion, as most of the rest are.

Of the two, it is the economy that should be the number one target of any who would destroy the System and liberate their people; for any attacks upon the media, so long as the economy survives, will be rapidly repaired, as would be anti-System attacks anywhere else. Then, the System Pigs will be turned loose as always.

However, to cripple the enemy economy means to hit the enemy where he can't stand to be hit. If the enemy can no longer keep the teeming colored population docile, if he can no longer toss crumbs to his slaves, if he can't pay his bureaucrats, if he can't hire his hoodlums, and if he can't maintain his dream and nightmare media machine on the air, he'll die.

Either we can take the steps necessary to bring about the downfall of the monster or we can continue to wait and watch.

W A R

ed, is just as heavily rigged and full of traps as was the Liberal era just passed. The reason is a simple one: the same people with the same agenda are in control. Note that the fat one in the media is a worthy worshipper of the Jews and will gladly give or deny the same. break to a poor White as he would a poor Black.

The same gang of alien criminals remains in complete control at the top while, thanks to social that nothing comes along to disturb or right the suicidal direction taken then. That includes, at the very summit, a collapse of enemy-controlled government and media machinery.

The damage to the society, to the people, having been done by the 60s, deliberately, after much resistance and with nothing remotely having been done to rectify or reverse the sick trends, the emphasis now is to make certain that course equality" will lead. Then, how will matters such as Liberal vs. Conservative figure in?

It's a game. A game of death. And it's rigged. It will stay rigged and the course of death for Whites will remain uninterrupted, with many Whites eagerly participating in their own destruction, as long as two things remain functioning and intact: the media and the economy. These are the twin pillars of enemy power

Bridges

We cannot fill our hollow hearts
With love of country.
We will be stateless,
Until Spring.

We must learn the complexities
Of dying and being born,
Of ending empires,
Of beginning ethnostates.

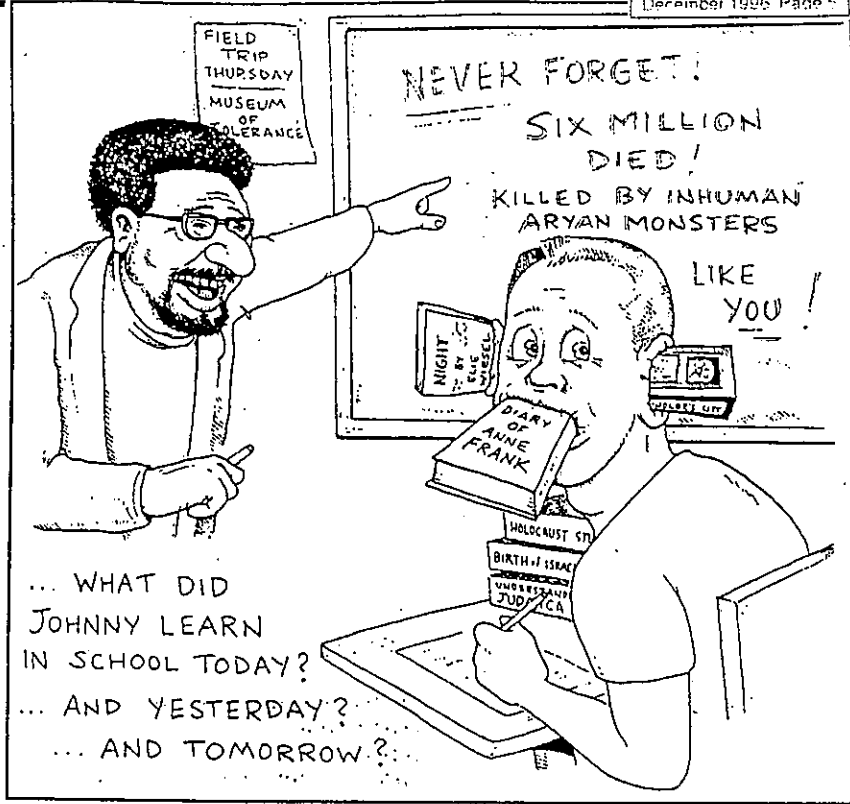

We will see that offspring come
From the spider empire
Which dies breeding.

America is a potbellied man in a muscle shirt
Gone to fat in foreign cities;
This raceless doodling,
This imperial hedonism,
This amoral provocation,
This global commotion is not civilization.

Future culture will be culture of ethnostates
Or there will be no future
And no culture.

We are bridges between Endings and beginnings,
We cover the gap
Until new teeth are grown.
Or new land is found.

Throw Another Log On The Fire

by James Mason

During 1995 there were two salient developments which captured our attention and imagination. The bombing of the Oklahoma City Federal building in April and the derailling of the AmTrak train in Arizona in October.

Many in the Resistance say that both incidents were System versions of the Reichstag Fire; that System agents, if not Mossad, engineered them both in order to further turn public opinion against the Racial Resistance and to further ram-rod more Big Brother repressive laws "to protect you from yourself."

These voices may be correct, but personally, I don't think so.

Yes, the System wants to elevate hate and racism to a more frightful and emotional level than any of the big "sins" listed in the Ten Commandments. And, yes, they have their sights set on a whole raft of new legislation designed to make this a full-blown police state.

And, they are doing it. However, they don't need such ramshackle, old-fashioned, "bloody-shirt" tactics as Oklahoma City and AmTrack in order to accomplish this. It's practically done already.

All they need is what has so successfully brought them this far; the media and colored crime. There's all the hammer and anvil necessary to persuade a jittery public into welcoming a police state.

On the other hand, the Resistance needs desperately to start landing some blows or else admit it's finished. In conjunction with this, the System needs to maintain the image of a weak and impotent Resistance in order to allow no dangerous slack to develop in its Psy-War.

With or without us, the System must and will attach the stigma of "racism" and "hate" to awareness and the instinct for self-preservation. They'll always have the old Klan and the Third Reich to dredge up to scare hell out of soft minds for these purposes.

The System believes in playing it safe. They prefer to prop up a dead foe than to panic the minds of the masses. While this is working so perfectly well for them, why would they risk pumping life into a sworn movement of opposition if there were none there? And to leak the "message" that both messages were in retribution for Waco and Ruby Ridge, which a numbing of people do identify with legitimately? They wouldn't.

The people in this Resistance who say these acts of terrorism were instigated and implemented by the System do so in hopes of somehow staving off the drastic measures of System repression that are almost here. They are whistling in the dark.

Let's talk about terrorism, briefly. They've made that into one more in their double-speak arsenal of dirty words. Hitler said the only answer to terror was stronger terror. Goebbels said, "We have the right. They have the law." They also have the media with which to make the Moon out to be green cheese if it suits their purpose. Terrorism is the poor man's way of hitting back against an insidious usurper of "legitimate" state power. However, I'll bet those victims at Waco and Ruby Ridge experienced their share of terror at the hands of System murderers.

Let's talk about those dreaded "1984" thought-control laws that some imagine can be avoided through a policy of "responsibility." I am in the tightest, most secure prison in the State of Colorado because, after five months of bumping around various facilities in the prison system here, they're finally snapping around to what they have; I did or said nothing. It was because of what I am. The law is called 17-1-109 and the excuse for its formulation were the Black and Mexican Gangs.

Any excuse, or cover, is better than none at all. And, in case you're wondering, this is Un-Constitutional as hell. That is very comforting to know, I assure you.

"But, it can't happen here."

So much for acting responsibly. Let's see what a little terrorism can do.

I was transferred initially from a small administrative segregation unit to a larger one while awaiting my ultimate destination here in maximum security. Many good White men were already there, some due solely to their tattoos, and had been there waiting over two months. No one wants to come here until they've been there. So, I settled in. Then came the train incident. On my tenth day, I was moved to where I presently am, ahead of all the rest. One man later wrote and told me a lieutenant had told him that I was moved quickly because, as he said it, I have "too many friends."

Terror hadn't gotten me into Ad-Seg, but it certainly improved my conditions suddenly. I had nothing personally to do with either. In that sense, I am an innocent party.

So, let's discuss the big hang-up most people have with "innocent victims." The System, as with all cowards and tyrants, will hide behind women and children. However, we are at war. We awoke to the System, we chose the fight. What excuse does anyone else have for doing nothing? We've sacrificed and suffered tragic losses, willingly and for a purpose. Like it or not, the masses of Whites are part of the fight.

The System's agenda has it for these people to be bled, turned into degenerates, raped and eventually bred out of existence. Our agenda is that they should live and prosper happily, as free, White people. The lines have been drawn. Is there any cost too high? Is there anything at which we should stop?

Rockwell said, "Only failure is immoral." Tommasi said, "Fan the flames."

This is the view from my vantage point: Should this place be the next target, I'd be delighted. How many of the System troop here would be as enthusiastic?

It Was Never A Matter of This

by James Mason:

For me, it is very difficult to get inside the head of those who have apparently no racial instinct, much less racial pride. A great deal have some vestige of it, however, for reasons of expediency, they keep it suppressed. And, there are those who are functioning completely without it.

Amazing, sad, and outrageous to see, this is the result of official, System brainwashing. Like animals in the wild deprived of certain, critical senses for the sake of some weird experiment, as if by radiation or the like, having no idea what's wrong with them, but having been left unequipped for survival and drifting toward certain extinction.

The hateful difference between animals and humans similarly afflicted is that the animals just suffer along, whereas the humans imagine their injured, mutated condition to be an actual virtue, a mark of "higher learning," "progressive," etc. The Media Masters who did this to them in the first place naturally tell them it is so.

At the same time, we, who somehow were immune to System Media Conditioning, have retained our senses and instincts intact and are labelled "monsters" and "criminals." It all quickly adds up and falls easily into place for anyone who has taken Brainwash 101.

In order for me to get any glimpse of what their world might be like, I have to take myself back to when I was able to count my age in years on my fingers.

It was the 50's and early 60's and we lived in a small, Midwestern town where there was no "mixin." Coloreds were present in the poor part of town. They worked the menial jobs. They were the "slow" students in school. My parents never preached "hate," but always stressed that we "get along," that Coloreds were excellent singers, dancers, and sports' players.

the notion of race and nationality come to suddenly confront me.

It must have been in Social Studies class, as the teacher was discussing the Hawaiian Islands, and she commented that there were practically no true Hawaiians left. This puzzled me deeply. I asked whether those people born in Hawaii were "true Hawaiians" or not. Her answer was a minds.

There was my introduction to perhaps the biggest single fact and reality in human affairs. What came first? Hawaii or the Hawaiians? And, does having been born on a certain piece of real estate determine what you are? How about the case of America? What constitutes an "American?" Obviously, by the lesson of the unhappy Hawai-

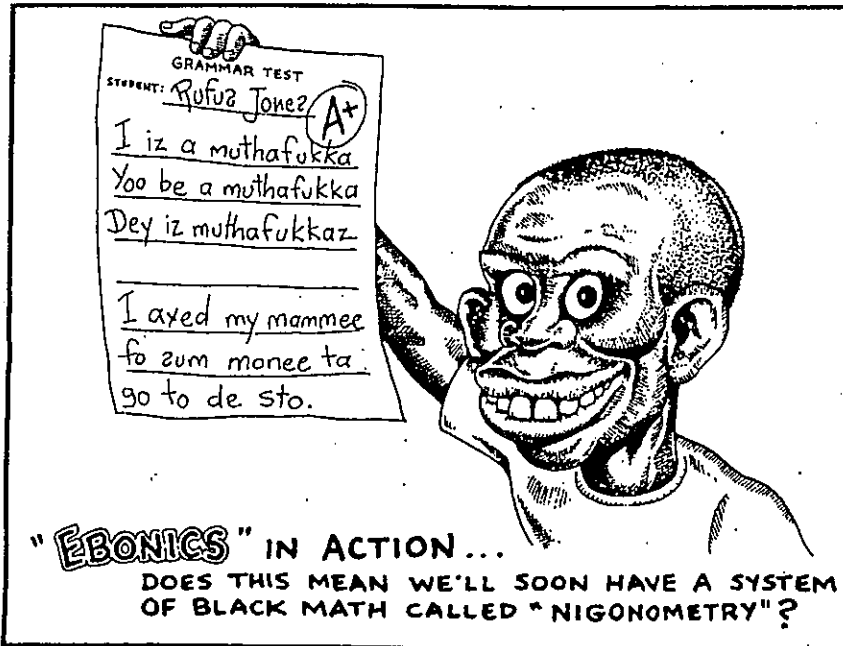

Twenty years of Media softening-up, of declining standards for Whites, of all sorts of financial and social and legalistic boosts for Coloreds was coming to flower just then. Coincidentally, so was the appearance of dope, faggy looks for men, hard-core trash music, etc. The first mixed couples began to appear in public.

With only the most minor exceptions, it was Colored males with White females. I recall Joe Tommasi once musing aloud on one of his Los Angeles "White Power Messages," that, "You Niggers may be stupid, but you ain't blind: Black women are just plain ugly." One of my older comrades in Ohio once remarked that the joke was entirely on them because the very moment a White female allowed a Colored to touch her, she was no longer White.

Miscegenation is miscegenation. A racial bastard is a racial bastard. What about the days when no less men than Washington and Jefferson were sneaking into the slave quarters for some "jungle fever?" And when you meet someone today named Washington or Jefferson, what do you usually have? A tragic shame and disgrace.

The country was on its way up all throughout that period and for the next hundred and eighty years. Why? Because racial bastardy was still considered a mortal sin and an outright crime. It was the Colored society being invaded, Colored women being invaded, and the mulatto offspring were confined

However, no way, at no time, was there ever any confusion about being anything more than "nice" and civil to them.

Race differences were simply not discussed in classroom curriculum. At the very same instance, what was taught as History was nothing more or less than the History of the White Race. However, even at that, it never dawned on me at the time what was going on. I guess I was too busy being a kid.

Not until I was in the sixth grade of elementary school did definite "no," that other variations of 'Oriental types had mainly taken over and supplanted the natives. The same teacher also posited that the question of racial differences and associated problems would one day be gone, as it was expected by whomever that in the future there would be only "one race." This, of course, would be accomplished through inter-marriage. Only one brown race of people on Earth. That was lightly tossed off by someone in charge of molding childrens' ians, these matters are subject to change.

Well, of course, your race doesn't change. Which brings us up to the late 60's in my hometown. It struck me then and it remains today my impression, that my generation was the "swing" generation; where the breach was made between ancestor and posterity. The subtle, poisonous propaganda of the evil, still-hidden Enemy, together with the officially non-committal stance of home and parents was just at this moment about to begin bearing its fruit.

to the Colored community and referred to as "high yellows."

White society was inviolate. The White male was in control and the White female still occupied a position of honor (one which she did not betray). Jews set to work to undo all of this through every sort of social legislation; under the guise of "Democracy" and "Freedom," along with a barrage of pseudo-science and "equality." Having taken care already to establish a media monopoly for themselves, the task was a cinch. Just a question of undermining, poisoning, and tearing down the self-defenses of a people and a society. Just a matter of time.

We see some of the results all around us today. To see the end results, we need only to look to some Third World hell-hole where racial bastardization has come full-circle. Can't happen here? Ask the Hawaiians. Ask the older citizens of most major U.S. cities. They'll tell you because they've seen it happen.

The lovely Peace-Love-Brotherhood Jews will tell you that a person has to be "taught to hate," that "hate" is not a natural emotion. Perhaps not. However, it's an old trick of the Jews to do word flip-flops and deliberately misrepresent something for their own ends.

What if it isn't "hate," but only instinct? The in-born sense of self-preservation? Without which any species will perish. The mongoose of India has to be taught to deal with cobras as an infant. Is that "hate" or is it self-preservation?

As I said before, my generation was the swing generation and in more than just one way. Not only was it the first to part company with its ancestors' outlook and practice, it was at the same time the last one to be able to recall living in a White society. As I remember it, it was heaven by comparison with the hellish nightmare of the present. But, of course, all that cleanliness, decency, order and happiness was considered as "evil" by the new, self-styled Jewish mentors. And so, it had to go. It was "unfair" to the Coloreds.

So, I saw it go. True to White decency and sense of fairness, this is how it usually went: This or that Colored person is "nice." Or, on the other hand: This or that Colored person is "cool." Once the self-preservation barriers are removed, there's usually no coming back. Not from a mess the size of this one. It's all now a matter of reaching the lowest common denominator. Scum finding its own level. There's nothing to reverse the trend. Indeed, if there were, it could only result in a blood bath at this point.

Sure, there are some damned nice Coloreds. And sure; there is no dearth of "White Niggers." However, that's all immaterial. People are born blank slates in many ways and it's up to a pro-white government to properly raise and educate them. This government is not only failing to do that, its most important task, but in plain fact, has as its ultimate aim the destruction of the White Aryan with its replacements a swarm of dark and backward hybrids.

Kipling summed all that business up in his masterful, Stranger Within My Gate. You'll probably play hell finding this one, but I urge you to make the effort, for it will be most rewarding.

The Catch-22 of any multi-racial, multi-cultural society is the impossibility of maintaining kindness, fairness, justice and equality without the White race being soon polluted and absorbed by the more primitive Colored genes. Then, who has won what?

It is manifestly wrong and impossible to turn back the clock to the days of rigid segregation as any sort of answer. After all, the institution of a racially alien underclass, albeit held in strict subjection, is what gave way to today's peril in the first instance.

No. All this will come crashing down upon itself in due course. It cannot be otherwise. Only those with the will to bring about total racial separation can expect to affect the future of the planet. Numbers will be meaningless. The dark and sullied miasma tentatively passing for "Citizens of the United States" will implode in disease, crime, internecine war and starvation. Only the White element of America now stands between this and the Colored world at present. Remove it and stand back.

If "nice" and "fair" brought us to this pass, then let those concepts be damned for all time, for it most certainly was never a matter of this at any time.

the Dees' legal gang. A few have survived and carry on.

As I have said before, once old briar fox puts his paw on old tarbaby he ain't never getting loose.

Men like Dees must be made to understand that waging battle against Separatist Forces may seem like the quickest route to money and glory, but in the end, Dees' scam will come to an ignominious end.

To bolster his sagging liberal fame, Dees is attempting a minor comeback. His Hate Whitey School Packages are an obvious attempt to protect his tax exempt status and keep his enemies on the left at bay. His grand speaking tours are not turning out huge crowds. Dees is also appearing more feeble, and perhaps sickly, at each event.

Does WAR keep its eye on Morris? Yes. As individuals, I am sure Dees is of more than passing interest to many lone wolves that move in the night. When Tom Metzger surprised old Sleazy at Soka University in affluent Malibu, California a few months ago, Dees screamed for police to drag Metzger out. The problem was that there were no police. At most speaking engagements, he is vulnerable and he knows it. Does Dees live in fear? Yes, because Dees is a physical coward. One time, when Tom Metzger was to appear at a court-ordered deposition before the infamous Portland, Oregon Trial, Metzger showed up with his old friend Karl Straight. Dees would not get out of his car until both Metzger and Straight had left the parking lot, even though Dees had armed security. In Seattle, Washington recently, several activists attended another Dees' dog-and-pony-show. About 300 people were in attendance. As a friend said: mostly faggots, dykes, muds, and a lot of culturally confused whites on Prozac; only 4 cops were seen. No security at the door and no metal detectors. Our friend stood in a reception line for 45 minutes to shake the Sleazer's hand and get an autograph. As he came up to Dees and shook his hand, Dees only made eye-contact for a fraction of a second. Dees was shaking like a leaf in a West Texas wind storm. As he signed the autograph, he asked 2 or 3 times what the date was.

In Tulsa, Oklahoma, at another recent Dees' love-fest, WAR associate Dennis Mahon moved quickly to front-row-center and immediately challenged Dees. As you can see from the picture on the front page, Dees has a look of despair on his face. Again, Dees screamed for cops and this time they came, ushering Mahon out of the building. What is the upshot of all this? Simple. It ain't over till its over, friends. I am trying to guess HOW it will happen, not IF it will happen. Will it be an ex-wife Dees has done wrong? A disillusioned Poverty Palace worker? A Kamikaze Klansman? A left-winger, right-winger, Conservative, Liberal or perhaps a homosexual lover?

Only time will tell, but one thing for sure, White Separatists will be at every public, and possibly some private, gatherings of the great Oz, better known as Morris Seligman Dees.

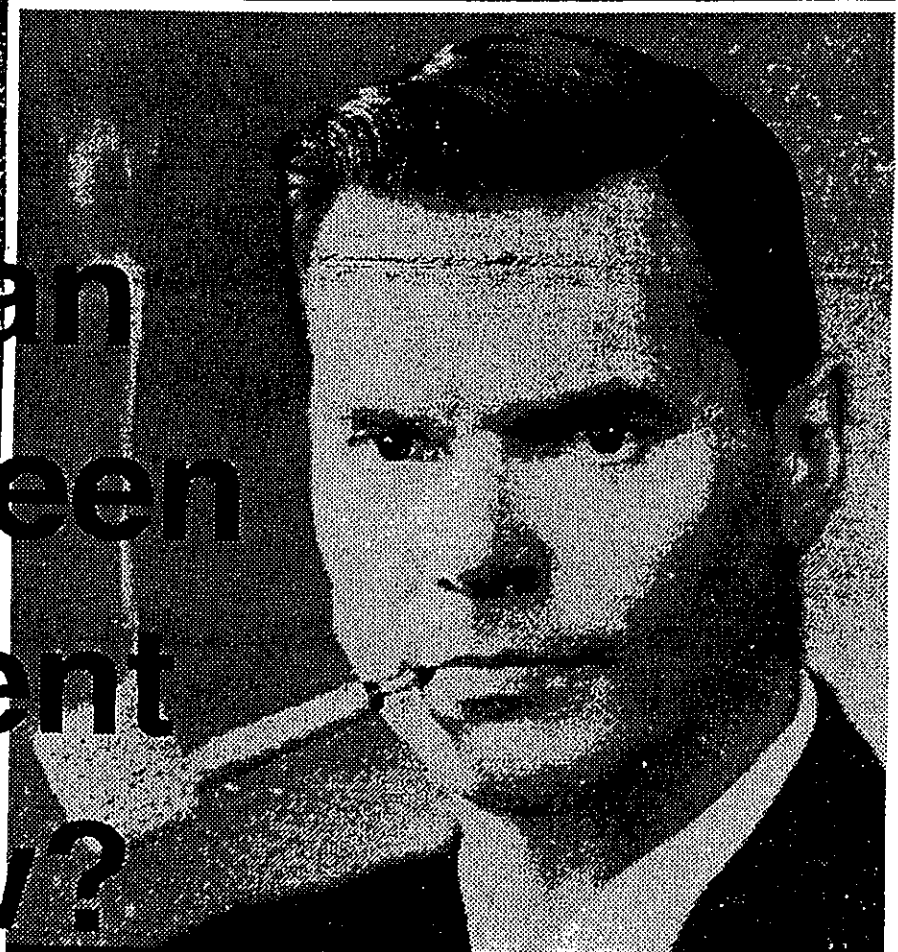

Pleasant dreams, you fraud.

rated as impractical or as men afraid to test themselves, a seriously erroneous judgement. So, when historical decomposition sets in and when his own culture sickens, the abnormal, the healthy man, is cast out and ignored by his own race and by his enemies.

In popular media and in intellectual criticism, the unbalanced seers and deviant stargazers are misvalued because it is no longer understood that they are not to be measured by conventional standards: in egalitarian times, 'exceptional men,' the singular geniuses, are no longer acknowledged or perceived. Their qualities, and their worth and importance are missed entirely by conventional investigations and analyses, the latter based on conventional norms and concepts inadequate for the subject.

The uncommon man is not born for the slavishly peaceful, successful civilization phase, but surges to the fore in times of grave social stress and mortal disruption; unfitted for fortunate life, the abnormal man breaks into action at critical historical points since he thrives on tempest and turbulence. When 'normal' men are stupefied, unnerved, and paralyzed by a novel threat (like the Jooz), the crazy men move expeditiously out of the recesses of society into battle, becoming, in our times, racial warriors when all others are routed and broken. The normal man is attuned to normal-natural challenges and situations, and rises during the 'business' phase, but when cyclical breakdown sets in, only the abnormal can cope with the new, alien perils. Quickly and unexpectedly emerging from their 'lost,' 'wasted,' 'unproductive' lives, these metamorphosed Vikings know what must be done and how to do it. Confounded, confused, and baffled by the insidious onslaught of the Jew, average men are totally debilitated, but not so the Aryan racist wildmen who alone have the conatus, the will, and the knowledge to fight happily on. Not immobilized by circumscribed thinking like the confused Conservatives, abnormal men deftly grasp the essential problem, and speedily, smoothly, and sweepingly scheme out the solution. Racist Aryans know what the real forces, factors, and possibilities are and cognize what strategies and measures will bring victory; the crazy men alone formulate winning counter-ideas and can venture to do what has not been done before. What defeats and destroys normal men, excites and actuates the abnormal; where others despair and shrink away, the deviant racist awakens and bristles; what withers average Aryans, tingles the crazy; what is inscrutable and overwhelming to the mundane Conservatives is a clear, crisp challenge to the crazy. Currently, one part of the crystallizing Aryan force, the abnormal men of destiny, the naturalist and occultist Nazis, and the vanquished Conservatives, are passing by each other going to and from battle: cheerful, perversid and determined racist warriors now are filing in elongated columns towards the test, while dizzy, beaten, weary, 'respectable' Conservatives dazedly stumble back from the scene of their end as historical men.

Mingled with abnormal men at the outset, however, are the genuine misfits, losers, and inferiors, the freakish, the defective, and the malformed gravitate to the depths and edges to accompany the exceptional men, though for different causes. Clinging to the strong men of destiny and in trading themselves into periodic revolutions in the futile hope of alleviating their miseries, the constitut-tionally subnormal are wiped out quickly (as on the frontier) by the extraordinary pressures and circumstances. Revolution, especially our Aryan upthrust against the Jew, makes tremendous personal demands far exceeding those of regular life and metes out the severest penalties.

Only the hard, the healthy, and the humorous will survive the fight and go forward.

Thus an invisible army conscripts itself; only the crazy, racist Aryan is able to hate the Jew enough and to love his race and its cultural personality enough to organize and make the attack. The crazy men see the Jew for what he is, and, being spiritual men and being of otherworldly mind and having nothing of property to lose, can transcend themselves to attain the order of bravery and racial love required to win the impending conflict.

Rockwell's Heirs

by James Mason

March 9, 1997 will be the seventy-ninth birthdate of George Lincoln Rockwell. I remember when we were counting Hitler's birthdates in the same bracket. Time flies and scenes shift. Is there anything to be drawn from it? Continuity or significance? If, hopefully, we've grown and matured to look in the correct places, there definitely is.

Barring the sensational and superficial, Rockwell was unique and made his impact by doing a number of things. He named Hitler as the hero for the White race; he named International Jewry as the enemy of the White race; he went public with it; and he gave it his own personal all. No one else was doing that then and too few are doing it today.

The American Nazi Party was effectively a one-man effort, the extension and expression of Rockwell's own personality. His tactics were as scrupulously legal as his strategy was uncompromisingly out in the open, before the public. No "in-rect," as he contemptuously referred to more typical Right-Wing operations. What he encountered consisted mainly of the most outrageous and high-handed quasi-legal, System persecution which had him and his men in and out of jail constantly; an openly-declared and unrelenting enforced 'news-blackout' designed to prevent him from reaching the masses of Whites who were, and are, as he said himself, starving for leadership; and the kind of economic strangulation that few can imagine much less be willing to exist under.

However, there was no quitting, no being beaten.

The System was never able to successfully scandalize or imprison Rockwell. He made a legend, but he couldn't halt the trend. Probably no one could nor can. The German veterans who would drop around the headquarters in the Sixties would tell us as much, but would add right away that we at least were getting our shot in.

The object then, of course, was to fix the runaway situation in the country and in the world. High hopes. Today, unfortunately, some are still involved in an incestuous relationship with the Struggle while imagining that something, anything, can be done to affect the salvaging of this political, social and racial cesspool. The same courage and honesty which permitted, and, at the same time, compelled Rockwell to embrace Adolf Hitler and accuse the Jews in 1959 during booming post-War America, would have by now, had he lived, led him to openly abandon that course of legalistic redress. Of this I am certain.

He would have seen that, if a man cannot affect significant political change within the span of his own vigorous adulthood, just as Hitler had done, then he is not facing a political situation but an historic cycle. One had to try nevertheless. And, he never gave up. However, we must see that if it wasn't a one-way ride then, it has since become one. And to do honor to Rockwell and to ourselves, we must face this and play it accordingly.

For nine years Rockwell maintained a crew around him. Men to go out on demonstrations and to help handle literature and mail distribution. Small cells existed across the country and around the world. It's been observed that he spent approximately half his life and energy in dealing with internecine squabbles and intrigues. At the end, Rockwell had in his presence at least one member of a conspiracy who would, on August 25, 1967, take Rockwell's life. The individual eventually convicted of the murder had been himself a former right-hand man and part of an earlier falling-out.

It was a nice, neat System hit; one worthy of Oliver Stone.

By 1967, Rockwell could claim to have successfully defied each of the three major handicaps I cited previously. He was constantly on the road, addressing overflow audiences of college students, "setting the minds" of thousands of young people and collecting the honorariums which helped finance the Party. In 1966, he had appeared in the largest, at that time, interview ever done by Playboy magazine. And, in September of 1966, he had staged his Great White March of hundreds of average, yet angry, Whites through a Black neighborhood in Chicago.

Yet, by 1967, Rockwell was, according to one observer, a man who was bone-tired. A leadership conference was called that Summer to attempt to sort out why, despite the previous year's successes, things were not catching on politically. Rockwell had already modified the Party name and had stated that he was on a course to "mute" the use of the Swastika for the sake of easier, broad appeal. Rumor was that certain high-ranking military officers were about to come out in endorsement of Rockwell; Marine Corps General "Chesty" Puller being one.

Rockwell had publicly stated that he expected 1968 to be the year for Blacks in America to go over the brink and that he intended to be in a position to harness the inevitable White backlash. It might have worked. Apparently, someone was convinced it had a very good chance.

The System can, has and will take out key individuals and also can and will alter entire social movements to prevent any upsetting of its own status quo. Big Brother is watching.

Which brings us to the present.

Rockwell's heirs? The Party was dismantled and reassembled, literally, as one more introverted and "Hollywood" style cult. When even that, due to the devotion and efforts of the units around the country began to show some success, it was torpedoed and scuttled from the very top. Qui bono?

For Rockwell's true heirs, we'll have to look elsewhere.

They can easily be identified by the very hallmarks I named at the beginning of this article. However, I would add that all of this would be manifested in a purified form. Formality is gone, or should be going. It's of no use. Or, should I say that formalism is gone? Parties, uniforms and programs are out. Membership and dues are out. Headquarters and demonstrations are out. Legalism, except in so far as we can still use the mails to send our literature, is itself out. We're not asking anymore.

In recent years, we've seen Rockwell's natural and logical heirs appear. No 'legalistic' jerking around can affect them. No press blackout can hush them. Economic considerations are meaningless to them. They rise suddenly and attack the System. In this purest act of devotion, they publicly name the enemy and, at the same time, declare the holiest of causes: the advancement of the White race. Hitler would approve. Just as Rockwell, they give their own all. They decide when it's time to go out, not leaving it up to System assassins.

The losing strategy of attempting to shore up this ramshackle mess is now left strictly and solely to the System itself. No more sacrifice from our quarter toward any such thankless and futile task.

Similarities aside, the difference now is that the situation includes a myriad of little Rockwells instead of the one, great original pattern; and also that, minus his training and discipline, it is something akin to an anarchy that the Enemy System now faces. Every time the System destroys a legitimate effort to correct the mounting problems in this country and the world for purposes of maintaining its own power, it only jacks the building crisis up another notch.

Without truly great men to organize their own people, in a sane and humane re-assumption of true White order, the collective mass will of unconquered Whites is going to burst forth like a volcano.

Let any who dare deny the ramblings.

The Rollicking Racist

By James Mason

Around the Christmas Season 1994, I had an appointment in the office of the local probation officer as part of a pre-sentencing investigation: a Mexican with a mahogany complexion who had all his Vietnam memorabilia displayed on his desk and around the walls. He'd been an Army Major. He made it a point to mention that I was reportedly a racist, but that from all his experience in the military and the court system, I didn't fit the usual pattern. I took that to mean that, unless someone pointed it out, he wouldn't have known.

Later, in the Summer of 1995, not long after I had arrived at a minimum security prison camp, I was hailed into the office of a Security Lieutenant. Through monitoring, and confiscating, my incoming mail, it had been brought to his attention that I was a racist. "I'm surprised to see that you're not covered with tattoos," was his comment. "I'm a little old for that," was my response. "That's what concerns me most," he went on. The upshot was that they were shocked I had been floating around in their system for five months undetected. And to one with a "gang mentality," my longevity as a racist made me the equivalent of an "O.G." (Original Gang Member).

So, without write-up or incident, I was tumbled off to C.S.P. (Colorado State Penitentiary), the "Alcatraz of the Rockies," a maximum security control unit.

A tremendous lot was being said here by all this. In fact, it was all new to me, as the last time I was locked up for any significant amount of time it had been the early 70s and everyone, prison and inmates alike, took their own chances. Things had changed to where now, if they knew you were a racist, especially a White racist, you were automatically Ad-Seg. Wow, I thought. Something or someone must have struck a nerve or something in the meantime.

I found out through growing correspondence that this was a national trend not confined to Colorado. Constitution be damned, it was what was in your heart and head, not what you said or did. It was what you "might" do, not anything you actually did. Ostensibly, they wanted to avoid "trouble" and the possibility of a riot, but it was obvious soon enough that the operative results of any Ad-Seg were, first, to attempt to halt the spread of ideas and, second, to cause the individual to purge himself of those same ideas. I remember as a child being confused and dumbstruck when a teacher would describe Japanese "Thought Police" during World War II. Wow, again.

Six months after coming to C.S.P., in April of 1996, with still no incident reports, they brought me before the "Gang Task Force" for a review. In retrospect, the first test came as soon as I entered the room. The panel of three included a White, a Black and a Hispanic. Without hesitation, I shook each of the three hands as they were offered. They were rather expecting me not to. Everything went smoothly, as I assured them it was never my objective to foul my own nest or to instigate institutional violence, but that my beliefs and affiliations were not going to change. So, the classification of Ad-Seg held.

Three trips before the parole board that year and as many deferrals for essentially the same reason, and the case manager came to me in early 1997 to say he would be putting me in for transfer to a less secure facility. With very little time left, but with a considerable investment already made, I told him to forget about it. I wasn't changing anything and now, I wanted to wind all this up as an unmix statement and demonstration.

I intend to use this as a basis for actions that will, in the end, cause them to have to eat it.

One has to then wonder whether the thousands of other, more "typical" racists across the country, for whom these tactics were designed, intend the same thing or are capable of pulling it off. They made a big mistake and it's up to me to show it to them. My time coming in was short to begin with; I'm not some rowdy who'll go running straight back into their arms, and I'm not some "born-yesterday," who is isolated and helpless.

However, how about those thousands of other racists being held in control units across the country? We know our philosophy, which has as its basis racial separation, is anathema to whatever it is that animates those of the System. It does come down to ideas. The essence of this philosophy, in whatever variation, founded the country and until recent times, was dominant. The country suffered a silent, invisible coup d'etat by One-World race-mixers. I understand that and have always played it accordingly, as a professional. The rest, who may not realize the nature of what's going on, can only act upon instinct and with guts. This spells violence.

On the outside, they've got the old "carrot-and-stick" to encourage people to conform to their "can't-we-all-just-get-along?" way of thinking. On the inside, they've got more straight forward methodology. I honestly don't want to sound melodramatic, but this is thought control; it is tyranny as black as anything out of the pages of history. I don't think it was deep philosophy that overthrew similar tyranny in times past, but gut instinct backed by strong action.

I was grimly set against the System well before they ever could lay a glove on me to otherwise piss me off. Not necessarily so with most of the rest. Can you see the irony of a thing that engenders the very means to its own destruction?

Non-political friends who would visit me back at my home before I was arrested had no suspicion either that I might be some kind of "monster." My entire study was one big National Socialist shrine, replete with massive portraits and a huge banner on the wall. I was so "cool" about it and it was all done so tastefully that it seemed only perfectly in time and place. After the feathers hit the fan, sensational headlines and all, these friends already knew me and none of the barrage caused any of them to waver, thus, effectively preserving my ass.

Who is to blame for those wild and unruly, even dangerous types, who seem to typify the entire racist Cause? Why, the System itself, of course. I can personally recall when the most volatile problems of today were non-existent. That was until the System began to impose totally insane and unworkable policies upon a population who didn't want them. A key part of this was a brainwash program via the media, which the System had already achieved a monopoly over, to push their alien dogma on the one hand and to deny and suppress the truth and critical information on the other. At that, millions of years of evolved instinct can't be so lightly pushed aside.

THE MARINES ARE LOOKING FOR...

... A FEW GOOD MEN.

It's 8th grade Physics. Place a tight lid over a kettle, which is coming to a boil, and you guarantee an explosion.

No matter how politely the System may beckon to the White nation to go to sleep and die, there will be those who will decline the invitation and who may not be so polite about it. The situation as presented then not only begs, but demands a violent solution. An anti-white takeover, alongside their being allowed no recognized, professional and legally-constituted opposition to it means only one thing: TERROR. Very simple.

The whole thing is a tragedy, but it is not a tragedy of our making. A bigger tragedy it would be if this alien, anti-white plan were to be permitted to achieve its incomprehensible objective: a mud planet, devoid of Whites and, subsequently, of civilization.

Deprived of knowledge and facts, these wild Aryan youth are reacting out of raw instinct. It's not of our doing. However, perhaps it is the best and only way, after all. This is war and war means killing. An army of philosophers isn't the salvation of the White Aryan Race. An army of White Berserkers with their eyes full of blood, is. Most of these Aryans are not in prison and those who are won't be there forever.

The old school, of which I am a part, would have had it go more on a civilized basis. The System wasn't in the mood for listening. They would clap me in irons. But from where was the army to come, to tear this all down and apart? It could only come from one place.

A quarter of a century ago, Charles Manson said it at his trial, that these children who are coming at you with knives are your own children, that you had raised them, he didn't. A quarter of a century ago, John Lennon said, "Let it be."

It's a God-Damn Shame

by James Mason

You have to swim in your environment. You don't have to like it, but the more adept you are at getting along with it, the happier your life will be. And very seldom does anyone, especially anyone of a radical, idealistic bent, get the chance to live in the environment of their own choosing much less their own creation. If nothing else, it will be either a terrific "stress test," a veritable jaunt through hell for you, or it'll be certainly a life-long university in understanding. And they have the guts to call us "intolerant!"

Holier-than-thou works for awhile. Anyone may be overlooked for anything in the bare beginning. But the object is to always keep learning, keep growing. We're not in the business of coming up with excuses for others, even though we may feel sure we know what is making it so. In ourselves we'd better know, or be able to figure out, what it is that keeps holding us back and we'd better avoid the trap of offering excuses.

So, realizing our own limitations, our own weaknesses, we might try to imagine how things would be under the kind of government and society that our political program espouses.

Hitler said that people are basically born blank slates to be written upon by the society and the leaders of that society which surrounds them. This has nothing to do with inherent ability. We see today a lot of lost, screwed-up Whites in control, doing the producing, etc., and knowing not what the hell is going on. Knowing not that by staying at their posts, doing what is expected of them, what they are told to do, they are committing suicide.

Those are the normal ones. What of the marginal ones, the sexual deviates, the race-mixers? To hell with 'em? Sure. But there's not a damned thing we can do about it at the moment or in the foreseeable future and their numbers are increasing. While we're standing around doing nothing, maybe it would be a fun exercise to try to figure them out.

I admit to watching my share of these inane talk shows on television. What we called as kids and what Commander Rockwell officially termed "queers," are and have long since been a most fashionable topic. I need not outline what an heroic "crusade" AIDS has become etc. However, one line that I see coming through fairly consistently goes something to the effect that, "we all have it in us." This, after all, is their highly effective approach against "homophobes" or "gay-bashers." Are you secure in your sexuality? Well, my response to that, were I ever once to be allowed onto one of those shows, would be this: If it is true that we all contain homosexuality, then it has to be equally true that we all contain murder, or homicide. Should that come walking out of the closet?

Being a old-fashioned, traditional and orthodox racial fanatic, I say it's all a conspiracy of the Jews. We can and should know and understand the Anglo-Jewish aspect of it but to ever begin to minimize or negate that one primary fact of history and human affairs means to become something that we are not. And that would be directly equivalent to an otherwise normal person becoming "gay" or race-mixing.

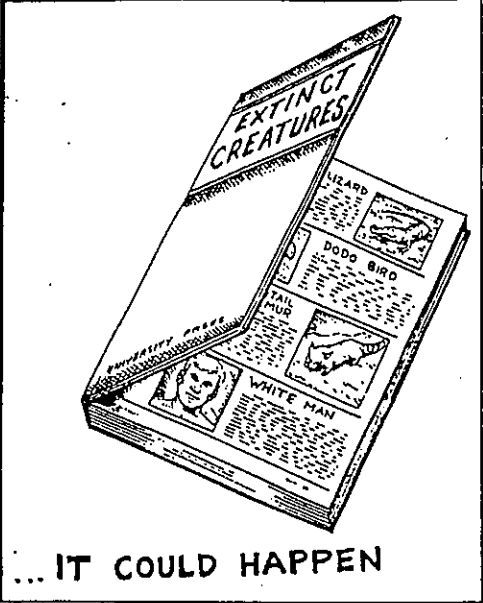

Before the old Anglo society turned so putrescent, these same marginals automatically knew and took it for granted that you had to play it straight and White, period. Looking back over my life, I can plainly see and recall plenty of folks who, today, would be openly existing as "gays," but who then were making it as family people. Maybe, whatever it was that was in them would be passed to their children, or maybe not. Point was, the ball was kept rolling forward and deviation was not allowed to break the surface, much less to come to dominate lives. Repressive? Maybe so, but I'll be damned if it didn't seem to be a healthier and happier society.

Proof of the pudding with regard to Jewish influence would be a carefully objective and detached examination of the trend: first, the incredibly short time period involved; the "light-switch" syndrome. Given, Robert Louis Stevenson gave us some hint at what lies just subterranean in human nature with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and it was Nietzsche who told us that we must breed out the animal and purify the race upward toward God. However, it is quite another matter to isolate these weaknesses or vices, etc., and consciously aim to heighten or unleash them into the open, actually sanction and enthrone them pursuant to one's own hidden agenda: just like opening the lid on Pandora's Box.

And all these "cool" and "enlightened" avant-guard types can't imagine themselves as being no more than white mice in one big, evil laboratory experiment.

The move toward "fashionable" queerism, or queerism as being at least "okay," followed on the heels of the campaign to open the lid on miscegenation, or race-mixing. A little hocus-pocus through the media and educational system, long since a Jewish monopoly, and the guard was down, the gates open and the genie was loose. It, of course, couldn't have worked unless the basic human weakness hadn't been present all along, but what a high crime it is to know of such things and deliberately seek to turn them loose on an unsuspecting humanity.

Well, these days when I see these things as often as I do, I fight not to take it personally so as not to push myself nearer to stroke or heart attack but, instead, to view it as a major aspect of a very real war albeit a most surrealistic, nightmarish one; the kind of nightmare where your feet are leaden and you can't cry out. These are the battle casualties, these gays and these race-mixers. Might not they have been "good" under different circumstances? Can any of us really state that we could have spotted them as being anything else were it not for the insidious effects of the war of extinction that has been declared upon us all? This is truly the Devil's business, as violent and sudden assault and death upon a traditional battlefield would be far preferable.

It's a tragedy and a shame and that brings me to the final point I want to make while at this. Commander Rockwell consistently stressed that, with regard to any kind of morals, one of the keystones was the sense of shame. Today, that is referred to as "the closet." It is an apt analogy. Just as the Commander said, we all have weaknesses and we're all liable to slip. But the idea is to keep struggling upward, toward an ideal, and to always relegate these "slips" to "the closet" or "ashcan" of human behavior, never to accept any of it as an "alternative." This is what the Jew has done: removed or destroyed all ideals mainly through rendering them as either ridiculous or repressive or both via their mind-control apparatus (the Media).

"Everyone's doing it, so why shouldn't I?" "No one is perfect, so why even try?" As the Commander said, that kind of philosophy, when applied to building a house means a house that is falling down. And the very same applies to building or maintaining a society. It's easy to slide down in to hell. It's tough to maintain and climb upward. That is the real purpose of a government: Leadership. Not merely the protection of property rights, etc.

And I've seen the way it happens in individuals who give way to the siren's call of shame and death. No one is going to do anything "wrong" or "shameful." All of a sudden, it becomes "okay." Haven't you all seen it close up, first hand? From average people to former Movement people, it goes about like this: When you are still you or when they are still themselves, such displays are disgusting and outrageous. Once you or them have transformed, for whatever reason, by whatever circumstances, it suddenly becomes none of anyone's business. "I have my rights," etc. Funny thing, at that point they lose all my sympathy.

It's war, pure and simple.

Multi-Racism

But Can Metzger Sing?
from LA Weekly

Harald Juhnke has been called the "German Frank Sinatra," but more recently he has resembled Tom Metzger. Juhnke's recent stay in Hollywood hit a sour note when he called a Black security guard a "filthy Nigger" and suggested he would have been gassed in Hitler's time. The actor, in town for a role in a German television show about Las Vegas, reportedly was drunk last month when he insulted a security guard. Juhnke later told reporters he began drinking after learning that his role in the show had been cut back.

WAR Staff Note: Yes, Metzger does sing. He often preforms Karaoke, singing "Bad Moon Rising" and "Secret Agent Man."

Defense for Aryan Mud-Killers
by WAR Associate

The "preemptive self-defense" argument, which was used by the Menendez Brothers in Los Angeles (accused of killing their Mommy and Daddy) and by any number of battered women who have killed their sleeping husbands, could now be utilized by the next Aryan accused of killing a Nigger, Jew, Latrino or Gook. That Aryan could have had the experience of being attacked by a member of the same "minority" community in their formative years and either reported it to the authorities, friends, or family (who can support the history of their "battery syndrome") or suppressed it, in which case they can simply admit this truth to their psychologist, and that mental health professional can then explain the uncontrollable need to kill to the jury.

As an alternative, the Aryan could have had a family member or friend raped, assaulted, or, in the case of Jews, also destroyed financially. Let's see, my mother was once robbed at gunpoint by a Latrino, so I might gun down a similar threat (in advance by self-defense) in response to a threatening glance. I was also cheated by a Jew out of enough money once to end an important relationship with a loving woman, so I could reasonably off one of them, or more if I have to confront a group. I didn't serve in 'Nam, and thus might have difficulty getting off after killing a Gook with the "post-traumatic-renewed-perceived-imminent-threat stress syndrome." However, I was once attacked by a Nigger attempting to get into my car, and so, despite the fact that I ran over his foot and drove off, I might now reasonably pop some big surly blue-gum buck, all in preemptive self-defense!

Auto Tips for Aryans
by WAR Associate

I would like to encourage all active Aryans not to buy new cars, especially those little pieces of plastic scrap like Civics and Hyundais that aren't even worth putting a license plate on. From a skilled mechanic, I'm telling everyone to boycott the auto industry until they make replicas of the older, full-size American cars and trucks (1965-1986), except put fuel-injection in those big motors and put disc brakes on all four wheels. They might eat a bit more gas, but you'll make up a year's expense on just one major service alone. These cars are also best for saving lives and if you really want to injure somebody, to get revenge for their stupidity for a little Japanese bumper car, it's this is the way. There are more Crown Victorias and Grand Marquis (1979-1986) in the junk yard right now more than any other car, and there are probably enough parts to use in 'em for another 25 years. They're safe, cheap to insure, powerful, comfortable, fairly good in gas for the size of the (14 mpg), and they're the cheapest to service and maintain, and most every auto repair and service place is familiar with 'em. Don't get anything past 1986 because they've been geared and modified for high labor and parts expenses and they cut down on body and engine size and there's none in the junk yards. Volvo 240's are just as safe, if not safer, and second on my list if you don't like American cars, but the parts are too expensive and the inside of the passenger space is designed poorly, I think. So, if you want to get ahead in the struggle, then this is another great opportunity to take advantage and win on the roads, when you're up against the enemy. Think about it and don't risk your life, if you think you might be beneficial and important to the Cause later on in the future.

What is Life?

by James Mason

Someone once posed this momentous question to Hitler, and his equally momentous response was, "Life is the Nation."

In 1945 and especially more so today, that vision and reality formed the rock-hard basis of Hitler's belief in the success of his own struggle and what is more and more becoming the victory of National Socialism.

The Second World War was lost militarily but there was no consideration of such an advent at the time Hitler made the decision to enter politics. Then, it was strictly for the basics: the German people were starving; they were in the economic chains of Versailles; they were disunited; they were disarmed. He vowed to put an end to this.

Despite the Second World War, he succeeded eminently.

The slaughter and devastation of the War notwithstanding, Hitler said that any city could be rebuilt within thirty years and, most certainly, that men did not go to ruin through lost wars.

Anyone who knows the real Hitler will know that his own personal power meant nothing to him, that his Party was, to him and its members, merely a means to an end and that end was the Nation, Germany. The cost was great but it was, after all, a mission accomplished.

If there is any reason or justification for my saying that the march of history appears to have halted in 1945 it is because that was the last time a White Nation did anything consciously on its own, as a Nation.

The recently-christened New World Order, in fact, set in universally at that point and the former nations now became no more than pieces of real estate, branch offices of the greater Big Brother System. Everything now was property rights and matters of economics. Anything that could squirm under the wire as human could enjoy the same legalistic and economical rights under the same laws.

The Nations were dead.

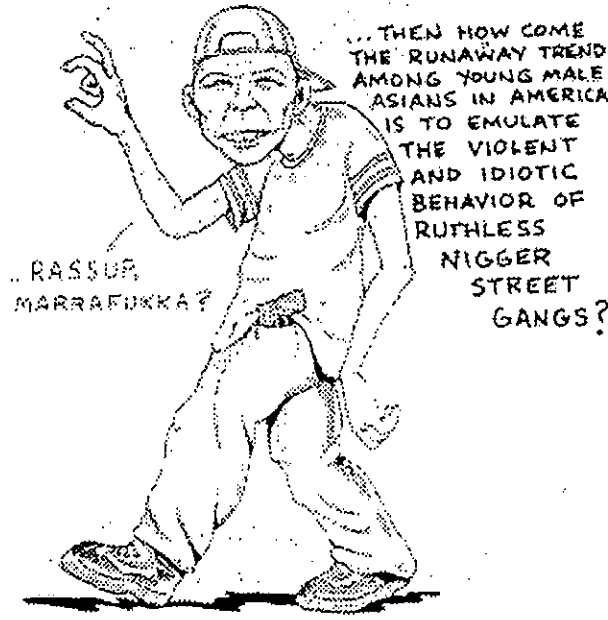

Now, even the culture is dead.

Being White is accidental. Being English, German, French, etc., is beside the point. We're all consumers.

The question, probably the question of the day is, why is there no sacrifice to overturn this mess and reestablish order, honor and decency? This is the same question that has been perplexing those with any racial instinct or loyalty left in them for the past fifty years.

The answer is that there is no longer any Nation. Nothing to sacrifice for. Nothing that would warrant a sacrifice. Nothing that would support a sacrifice. Until the middle of this century, history is filled with examples of bitter and hard-fought struggles by peoples and nations, without let-up, for centuries upon centuries. And despite all, the climb was an unremittingly uphill one. Wars and even plagues might cut a population suddenly in half, but it mattered not. The nations and civilization rose. What is a nation; what were the nations? One Blood And One Will. Geography was purely incidental.

Already by the 19th Century the "Parliamentarians" were hard at work dismantling all this. Today, we see it in full flower: "Democratic" society. No authority. No responsibility. One man, one vote. A naked scramble for a bigger piece of the pie. No honor, no greatness, no excellence. A society devolving toward the Negroid.

Germany was an early target of this rotten scheme after 1918. However, the plotters moved too fast; Germany was still of One Blood and the National Will hadn't been sapped. Resentment and outrage were great. All it required was the sudden appearance of Hitler to reintroduce a focus for the National Will and a miracle was performed.

The Apostles of Big Brother brought about the Second World War as a dire necessity to squelch the impending reawakening of the Nations. And certainly, in the first instance, they have succeeded: for the old Nations, in their former incarnations are dead.

Having learned by their near-fatal mistake, as in the case of Germany, the Big Brother Acolytes are taking it gradually so as not to stir up too much alarm among the unsuspecting populace. The move is grandly devoted to "individualism," "equality," "freedom," "liberty," "alternatives," "choices," etc. All geared toward the atomization and homogenization of society, and all at the whim and mercy of the controlled Big Brother opinion-forming media.

Funny how all these staunch "individuals" resemble one another to an amazing degree. Even the most hard-core and extreme varieties of "individualism," miscegenation, dopism and queerism, have lost their cutting edge and are now practically the norm.

Nations destroyed

This is precisely why all the old bets are off. This is why none of the classic formulas are valid any longer and will not work. The forms are gone. Or at least the forms which we see are illusions, mere vessels for Big Brother's profit-making machine, in which all are "equal" (and some are more equal than others.)

Will you represent the Nation? Will you attack Big Brother and outlive him? Will you form the basis of new nations? Will you establish new dynasties? History is entering a new cycle. Will you bring order into this chaos? Have you the Blood? Have you the Will?

If so, then you are the Foundation.

FBI Tackles Anthrax Scare

from The Jewish Monthly

Finding the perpetrator of the "anthrax" scare that led to the quarantine of 106 people inside B'nai Brith Headquarters on April 24 is now one of the FBI's top priorities, says Federal Bureau of Investigation Director Louis Freeh.

Even though the substance that caused the scare turned out to be harmless, Freeh said the FBI is treating the incident as a "terrorist act." The substance has been identified as Agar, a medium commonly used for growing bacteria cultures in laboratories.

The scare, which made national headlines, tied up traffic in downtown Washington for more than 10 hours while police, firefighters, and federal agents carefully removed the material, washed down the people who had come in contact with it, and prepared to decontaminate more people if the situation demanded.

At press time, the FBI still had not found the person or group who mailed the Agar to B'nai Brith in an ordinary petri dish. The package did not have a return address, but authorities have identified what appears to be a Massachusetts postmark.

The package also contained a rambling, typewritten, two-page letter describing Jewish Liberalism and the Jewish Community in general. The writer claimed to represent a group called Counter Holocaust Lobbyists of Hillel. The FBI, B'nai Brith, and Hillel had not previously heard of such a group.

The incident began around 11:00 a.m., when mailroom clerk Rusty Mason picked up the package and noticed a red, gelatinous substance oozing from its edges. He also detected an ammonia-like odor. "Then I heard something clink," he said in an exclusive interview with the JM. "That's when I got out the kid gloves." Fearing that it might be a bomb, he and B'nai Brith Security Chief Carmen Fontana took the package outside.

When police arrived, they X-rayed the package and found it contained the petri dish. Across the top were the labels "Anthrax" and "Yersinia." Anthrax is a highly infectious and usually deadly bacteria. Yersinia causes Bubonic Plague. Police immediately isolated Mason and Fontana. Contrary to broadcast reports, neither of the B'nai Brith employees suffered any symptoms of illness.

A hazardous-materials team removed the package at about 3:00 p.m. But people inside the building remained quarantined while experts at the Bethesda Naval Medical Research Institute tried to identify the substance. Confident it was not harmful, authorities lifted the quarantine at 8:45 p.m.

Afterward, B'nai Brith President Tommy Baer said, "We thank God that none of our staff members were injured in this terrible incident. While this event thankfully turned out not to be dangerous, it nonetheless underscores B'nai Brith's long-standing support for the strongest possible anti-terrorism legislation. No individual or organization should have to fear the actions of terrorists."

Chemical Ban Hailed

While B'nai Brith employees were worrying that they had been exposed to Anthrax or some other deadly substance, the U.S. Senate was ratifying a global treaty that bans chemical weapons. B'nai Brith's President Tommy Baer praised the Senate for its action. "There must be a policy of Zero Tolerance for the use of chemical or biological weapons by governments or individuals," he said. Although the substance mailed to B'nai Brith proved to be harmless, Baer pointed out the incident "very well could have been a major disaster." Because of the incident, B'nai Brith also called upon Congress and the Clinton Administration to investigate how the United States can halt the sale of biological agents such as Anthrax.

The Progeny of Joe Camel

by James Mason

Alongside the collapse of the Soviet Union, one more development I thought I'd never live to see has been the turn-about of fortunes for the Tobacco Industry. This really has nothing to do with the use of tobacco and its effects, but rather how something so deadly poisonous can be embraced by an entire culture despite the agonizing human cost, how a small clique of profiteers can coldly engender its spread even among children, and what can take place when an intensive campaign is organized and launched against it.

It doesn't matter what the harmful evil is. It could be anything. One thing shared in common, however, would seem to be an addictive quality. Everything from hard drugs to modern popular music might be included. Neither is that the point to be taken by the recent caving in of one of the major tobacco companies as to the addictiveness of their product and the litigation against the "Joe Camel" advertising campaign designed to draw in very young people.

Amazing enough to realize that people will go for practically anything, no matter how foul or dangerous, if only that it yields some momentary pleasure and, especially, if it has somehow become socially ingratiating, or "cool." Adults among their peers, the sexes trying to attract one another, children trying to act like adults. Then, of course, one becomes "hooked." It normally requires decades for the negative signs to appear, by which time it's too late anyway, and which is common human thinking will never come unhooked.

What's more amazing is that there is no shortage of those who for money will make an industry out of that which is generally known and understood to make slaves out of people and lead them to horrible deaths. With the obscene profits from this, they are readily able to buy politicians so as to protect themselves against any measures on the part of some people, who are not only not enslaved themselves but who are determined to free the rest, to shine light on their racket, awaken others and take action to put a stop to the crime.

We've seen, plainly and clearly, beyond any confusion or denial, panels of Brooks Brothers suited, sworn-in executives, lying in perfect unison, with professional poker faces about what they were doing and whether they knew they were doing it. And all for money; to hell with anything and everyone and everything else. The same ungodly profits could buy batteries of lawyers and Public Relations men, to throw up practically impenetrable barriers against intrusion or effective exposure. It's a "don't-give-a-damn" attitude to criminal proportions.

Most amazing of all, however, is the way the techniques of brainwashing and conditioning, otherwise known as "advertising" or Madison Avenue, can be put to use in order to induce those who possibly otherwise would never involve themselves in whatever the vice may be. A rugged cowboy for men, an attractive and stylish model for women, a cartoon character for the young. Subtle and even illogical suggestions by image, music, slogan, etc., can and does determine the decision-making of otherwise "intelligent" people.

The ideal situation and the ultimate goal of any purveyor of any addictive vice is the point at which the thing has reached saturation and is feeding on itself as part of the culture. That's when the work is done and it's all just a matter of supplying the demand and reaping the profits. Nice work, if you can get it, eh? However, it requires a certain mutation of the reason and the conscience to allow some people to operate as veritable predators against their fellows.

Nonetheless, there it all stands, fully documented and exposed, at least insofar as tobacco is concerned. Remove tobacco and substitute something else and it still works just the same way. That is the point. We, as members of the "lunatic fringe," have been ridiculed and demonized for saying this very same thing. This has been going on, with regard to governmental and societal workings. Certain elements dealing in social poisons for profit and, through money, power, buying the politicians and the media to make their targets think it is all their own idea. Conspiracy proceeding on the diabolical knowledge and manipulation of human nature and weakness.

"But it can't happen here."
"Hell, it did happen here and it is happening here."

As a mere aside, while smoking killed my own father, and even while I can still recall his laughingly referring to his "Camels" as "Cancer Sticks," and "Coffin Nailers," nicotine addiction scourge though it was, didn't really in itself threaten Western Civilization. Neither did driving drunk or without seat-belts, or using the word "Nigger." All of these campaigns are Liberal pets. Good or bad, they were matters of personal choice. People had, after all, been smoking and dying from it since the days of Raleigh, long before any Tobacco Industry or ads. Through all of this P.C. drive, the country can be seen to be becoming less free.

Being free means taking your own chances. However, there is a proviso there and it is that it must really be a chance and not a rigged, side-show scam. Unfortunately, there is your "Democracy" for you. What good is a smokeless, sober, or buckled-up population if it has gone mulatto? Any drive going on there? Any media hype? Any damage? Any profit? Any lies?

Watching the tobacco moguls break and crumble under decades of unrelenting and mounting pressure. Learning the conclusive results of decades of scientific research into nicotine and tobacco use. And until such time the danger was only rumored, the corruption only assumed, the only objection being on the basis of social appearance which, in any event, broke down in the end. Now tightening penalties and restrictions against sales and promotions of it. A steady drum beat to stamp it out.

Would that we could witness the same thing happen with the purveyors of racial integration and now of homosexuality. Those trials would provide some spectacle. Those investigations would provide real revelations. Rats in high places would be falling all over themselves to cover their asses, and save their lives. No longer would we be classed as "ignorant" or "haters" or "paranoids." No longer would the average person be at the mercy of a faltering and failing old social order as to whether they maintained their genetic identity or whether they fell in line with the trend and bred themselves out of existence.

There would be a reversal to change history, to genuinely improve mankind's lot and not to impinge upon his personal liberty. There would be something that really meant something. Unfortunately, due to the scam that is in place, all the machinery that brought about the attack upon tobacco being in the wrong hands, such a development is unlikely although not altogether impossible. The thought of it is no less tantalizing.

An end to the salad days of Joe Camel's progeny, the camel-faced Jews.

Strange Bedfellows

from a Kike newspaper

That Bill Clinton counts Jews prominently among his supporters is hardly news. But only recently has it been made clear just how many Jews have enjoyed one of his coveted invitations to stay the night at the White House.

Now, according to an analysis of White House documents by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, it seems that during the President's first term alone a whopping one-third of the 939 guests who overnighted at Motel 1600 er, 166 Pennsylvania Avenue, were Jewish.

Among the more notable of the glitterati in question were Steven Spielberg, entertainment mogul David Geffen, and Barbara Streisand.

Considering that Jews make up a mere 2 percent of the U.S. population, the one-third figure seems astonishingly high. Yet, it accords with the recent estimate by journalist J.J. Goldberg, who reported in his 1996 book, Jewish Power, that with or without the lure of a stay in the Lincoln Bedroom, Jews contribute between a quarter and a half of all Democratic Party Campaign Funds.

Epilogue

by Robert Burns

Exiting prison and entering parole closes the book on one challenge and opens another. Inside, the context of functioning as a Separatist within the System, everything has to be seen as a challenge. To go on despite anything, any roadblock, any handicap. To devise ways of proceeding over, under, or around whatever the System may place in one's path. To keep going regardless of anything, while the System chokes up, falters and dies. And, to try not to permit the System to lay a heavy glove on one while it still has the power to do so.

In this, there are no rules. It is whatever will work. Improvise as you go along. Allow the Pig System to be confident in its own game while you are circumventing and neutralizing it as you go about your business. Let them grow dull and complacent in meaningless rules and regulations, backed by armies of unthinking, paid Pigs, while you stay sharp, loose and mobile, deftly rendering their huge apparatus irrelevant. Leave to them, as their only 'job,' squeezing more money out of the boob 'consumers' and trying to keep the pieces of a rotten mess from falling apart.

Saying goodbye to prison, I say goodbye to good food, clean, safe and comfortable quarters, pleasant staff and personnel, an unending parade of Racialist comrades, an unending flow of cheerful mail from supporters across the country and the world, plus the most productive period of my life. Much of what was done in the time just past will only bear fruit in the time just ahead. Never was I freer to traverse inner space.

'Freedom' brings back old and mundane responsibilities, the kind which just eat up and consume most of the time of these voting and tax-paying cattle, who leave their thinking and decision-making in the hands of others. 'Freedom' brings back the old tight-rope walk, the cat-and-mouse which had lain abandoned as long as one rested totally in the System's grip. Everything is a trade-off. Everything is relative. I told them if they'd allow me my music and drinks, I'd stay right here with them.

All things being relative though, it requires entering the new phase, with its reduced restrictions, in order to see the plans already made through to completion. One can do an awful lot from within a 7 x 14' box, but not everything that is required. Talk about a rebirth into the world! For the uninitiated, prison isn't all that bad, while the world isn't all that great. Move on into whatever fresh setting lies ahead, enjoying your days and simple pleasures, while doing what you have to do. Let it be an adventure.

What I saw clearly in prison was so important as to be indispensable to all future work. Things I scarcely suspected or realized before.

Things key to the conduct and assurance of the common, ongoing struggle. The raw, limitless power and force of the System, the extent of the suffering and disaffection it is causing, and the sheer, utter stupidity and futility behind it all. The tiniest of conspiratorial cliques animating it all with cadres and echelons of mudless payees carrying out orders. A precarious arrangement I personally would want no part of.

A monstrous and insane ambition nearly realized has given way to an equally monstrous dilemma. The purpose for blindly going along with the worst lies and hypocrisy is quickly evaporating, as the inevitable results of these policies manifest themselves. For the ZOG Government, it's out in the open: Control Control because you must; control if you can; control or die. The object is for a few to control many.

What's the difference between being inside or outside of prison? Silly and sentimental perceptions of the masses aside, it is only the level, visibility and intensity of methods used by a small, hired gang to keep a vast majority docile, disorganized, unarmed, divided and helpless. In prison there are no choreographed and lengthy propaganda and conditioning campaigns. No phoney, rigged 'elections.' When they make a move, they just make it: cold, rather intrusive. If they were to operate more this way outside, they might run into trouble. But it's coming and here it is, the starting point.

Their media brags about "crime being down." Why then the unceasing rush to build more prisons, multiply more laws, hire more police? Is it that those new Draconian measures have had their effect, thus encouraging more of the same? Do you, as a citizen, feel or notice any improvement? More likely is it that had they not undertaken these more-or-less 'Soviet' measures when they did, they'd have already faced a society in collapse or revolt by now.

The same media brags about the economy being better now than in a long time. Do you feel any better off? Why no answer to the deficit, why slam the door shut on welfare, why thrash wildly about in attempt to save Social Security and Medicare? Why do most of these guards here remain in jobs they openly hate? More likely it's a case of things getting better for the filthy rich financial speculators.

In any case, it is imperative for the System to maintain a sense of order and prosperity or else face the unthinkable: the first time ever a government in basis for argument with it. Though not the typical 'criminal' myself, I shared the lot of these miserable wretches in here under crushing sentences. Though fully able to conduct myself just as though I truly didn't belong here, I saw many a childish brute tormented and manhandled due to his righteous outrage at his circumstances. I was one more 'bad guy' for the society to get over on, even as they condone the breeding of millions more and encourage their own children to mix with them. The society is found guilty of allowing and supporting this and such is the judgement.

Some of us, a number large enough to have surprised me while it alarms the System, are 'focused' enough to know exactly where to direct our anger.

The System also knows it and reveals it through its actions. A Racialist, a Separatist of any color or persuasion, but most especially White, is quickly sent to SHU: Special Handling Unit. Used to be one might naively suppose it was for their own protection, but the glaring fact is that it is the System itself that is reacting out of fear.

Fear of the spread of the word, of ideas, of organization. Fear that the general hatred and confusion may become clarified and guided. As close to being buried alive as it is possible to become is the price to be paid at the hands of these swine, for any who refuse to recant their position and receive their bright and shining light. This on the basis of what you might do. They still take care to justify themselves in a cloak of legalism.

The Government trends appear here first. The same night that descends in prison eventually will reach the outside. They will attempt and get away with anything unless challenged and stopped. They will first take care to remove or cripple all means of redress or fighting back against their Unconstitutional and illegal whims. Here it was, the doing away with practically all legal help for prisoners. (Part of "Budget Cuts"). Out there it will be Gun Control. (Must "fight crime"). Palestinians throwing rocks at Jew tanks. Now would be the time to buy your weapons.

Regardless, if left functioning and in power, if temporarily stymied or partially set-back, the System will only try again, come at you from a different angle at a later time. They will never take no for an answer because they have an agenda to keep to. Control.

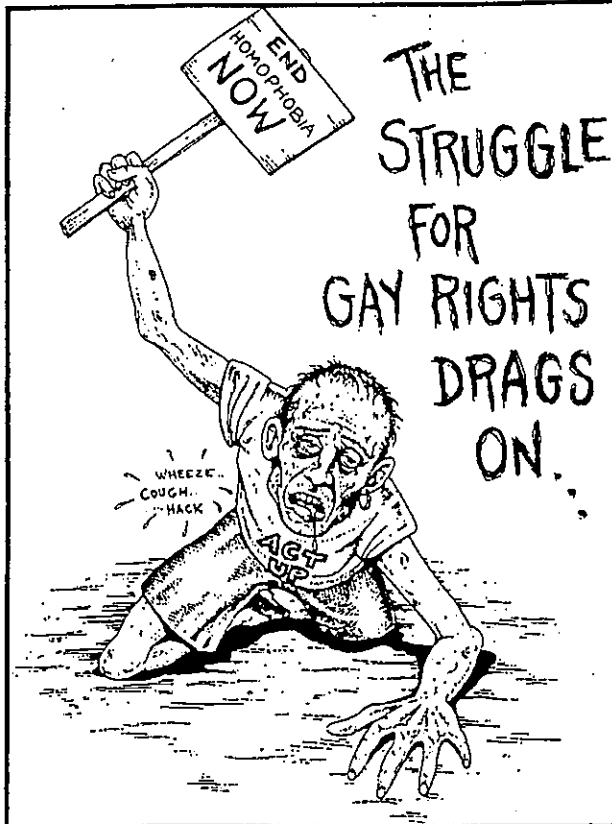

However chilling the prospect may be, things have changed which render the old and familiar rule book no longer valid. Government is not the same. No longer managerial bureaucrats, now very aggressive tyrants. So-called 'crime' is no longer the same. The likes of Dillinger or Capone were princes of guys compared with today's teenage 'Super Predators.' This 'crime' is a mix of anarchy and ethnic revolt in the form of resurgent tribal ways, and these types are becoming the majority fast. 'Hate Groups' aren't the same. Unlike twenty years ago, no longer demonstrating, protesting and writing their Congressman, they're now attacking. Fools remaining at their posts, their jobs, are too stupid to see it all sinking: all as phoney as is the currency itself.

An artificial mess, a losing battle. Their base is crumbling. The White Nation is the only possible base. Instead of serving that interest, ZOG has sought to subvert and diminish it; like sawing off the very branch you're sitting on. What ZOG is doing now is attempting to first head off a White revolt and, second, be in a position to crush one when it appears. Prison and repression? Disarm the populace? That spells Five-Minutes-To-Midnight to any but a blind fool.

Media rose-colored glasses, a police state and complacent maggots notwithstanding, the handwriting in flames is on the wall. Somewhere, someone made a comparison with a brown bag or box, loaded with slimy manure, ever darkening as the bottom prepares to open up. Now, once again, would be the time to ease your way over to one side.

Prison not only allowed me to see this in unmistakable clarity, it placed me in that very marginal position where the climax not only does not frighten me, but, where I'm removed from the greatest vulnerability, that of having one foot in the comfortable middle-class. What the ZOG System thinks it has accomplished, I do not know.

the United States is sent packing. Not just another case of these fools voting for the 'Opposition Party,' just as much in ZOG's pocket, following its dictates as the other, but the whole ruling apparatus defied and thrown into the gutter where it belongs. A revolution.

I saw and experienced the crime-economy connection at first hand, and few things have encouraged or uplifted me more. The System is dying; it knows it is dying, and it has begun desperate, artificial life-support measures for itself. The scum in power want only to live to enjoy their own ill-gotten riches. For this limited goal, any reckless or extreme means will do. Then, all may be damned as far as they are concerned. Such is the idealism and motivation of democratic-capitalist 'statesmen.'

Here, where one is held prisoner, they make no secret of it. We're warehoused here for their 'job security.' Forget that any fool could calculate this System is destined to collapse; they feel sure enough it will last their lifetime to make it worthwhile. The stupid masses pay half their earnings in tribute to perpetuate it in the hope that they'll be left alone to enjoy their peanuts; and, dear God, not to end up like one of us. An arrangement of this sort availed the Soviet Union for a mere seventy years, a single, human lifetime. At what cost to how many millions? And look at what is left in its wake.

From here, one is able to fully welcome it. Not all jailhouse conversation is confined to 'bro,' 'homes,' and 'homey.' The lovely 'corrections' and 'rehabilitation' has led to emotionless expressions of the perfect willingness to cut the throat of every man, woman, and child out there. Though somewhat more focused than that myself, I nonetheless cannot find the

by Robert Burns

During the 1970s, Hollywood provided two apocalyptic tales which illustrated what is required to put across an impossible revolution and to beat "the unbeatable foe."

First, from Apocalypse Now, Colonel Kurtz's recounting of the North Vietnamese cutting off the arms of those Vietnamese children who had been inoculated by American physicians with Western vaccines. Second, from the Godfather, Part Two, Michael Corleone's realization that the Cuban guerrillas could actually win after seeing one of them take himself out with a grenade, along with members of the police.

These screenplay scenes found their actual happenings, and much more, not just in Vietnam and Cuba, but literally everywhere else around the world, anytime a determined group of individuals came up against a rotten but entrenched system, with the aim of overthrowing it. And, it is coming, just as it must come, here to the United States.

The horrors of both the French and Indian Wars, the War of Independence and the War Between the States, which saw the country forged in its beginnings, contained nothing out-of-place in the outbreak (now in its infancy) to decide the direction which the North American Continent will now go. Race war, civil war, and revolution all rolled into one, to determine whether the White race will go on and be free.

The actions of the Vietnamese and the Cubans were brought to the screen to shock the over-civilized American audiences. Horrible? Perhaps. However, they both won against seemingly insurmountable odds. And, in the real world, it's not how you play the game that counts; it's whether you win or lose. Adolf Hitler said that the minority, which comprises a majority of will and determination, will, with mathematical certainty, overcome all and emerge victorious.

The critical proviso to this is that the existing dominant force be inept, corrupt, and in essence the enemy of the very people over which it rules. This is eminently the case today here in the United States.

A situation of default. Who will make this revolution? Where will it come from? "Modern" revolution first became known to United States' homes through the efforts of the Blacks and the "New Left" of the 1960s. It was an assault upon White America, its institutions and traditions. They won this "revolution." The spirit and face of the United States is alien now and non-white. These elements are largely satisfied now and have blended into the greater, ruling System.

Two problems, however, refuse to go away. The foul and insane mess they've made of the government and the society continues to malfunction, getting worse all the time, resulting in the increasing aspects of a Police State just to hold it together. And great masses of dispossessed Whites are the majority today and will remain a deciding, dominant factor for the foreseeable future.

Largely, through the work of the alien-controlled media, these Whites still believe this System is somehow "theirs," and continue to abide by its laws and to pay its taxes. However, fewer all the time are bothering to vote for any of its chosen fools set up in these sham "elections." As with all other times and all other places, by far most fear true change and the relative temporary pain which it brings. Most will remain passive, "feminine," as Hitler also observed.

Back to tiny minorities left to literally turn the pages of history. The terrible cost is incurred through an intractable, over-confident System and the media it controls, the broad masses of those who are committed to a course of un-involvement favoring the System, and, of course, a hard core of fanatics who refuse to quit, whose only ally is the overall deteriorating conditions. There is the mathematical formula of which Hitler spoke.

State power and inertia versus its own decomposition and cadres of those with burning revolutionary zeal. Of this same arrangement, Charles Manson said, "They're in it for the money. We're in it for life or Conditioned as they have been, they cannot raise their horizons above consumerism; they can't get past the act itself. They can't get to the issue behind it which would be the one and only hope of averting an escalating bloodbath: Their own enlightenment and participation. For to be left in the hands of a tiny, desperate few, terrorism is the only means. So simple they can't see it.

The issue they cannot see, not when even raised by so dramatic an act which shouts to the heavens that all is not well in the land, is that too much wrong has been accepted as "normal" and that this "normal" and "legal" course is taking the people, the Whites, blindly to their death as a species, as a race. Forget the "country." The country is now the tool for this very destruction. Hence, the targeting of the Federal Building.

The real culprits will be the ones to suffer the most. That's only just. "Innocent Victims," a concept that could only be held in the brains of those stubbornly committed to un-involvement. Do they not appreciate that this is a war of survival, a war of extinction between races? There can be no un-involvement. Even God himself was perfectly willing to pass curses along to the children and grandchildren. This is for the succeeding generations, after all. It is war, and in war people die.

They are doomed, all of them for a time, if the System survives and goes on with its programs and with current racial trends. They, as a people, will have a future if we are successful in overturning the System. Toward this end, no losses and no sacrifices are too great.

Un-involvement, the ultimate irresponsibility, only serves to place one in the unenviable position of making up one small part of the overall canvas, upon which a portrait in blood is being painted; the reward for ignorance, cowardice, and miserability. The dead fanatics will be remembered for having died for a cause. These masses will have lived and died for nothing.

So it has always been. No love, no devotion. Content to hold on to dead, hollow images contained in a flag. They apparently enjoy being robbed and raped by the government, but resent being sacrificed for something greater. Their tears and their rage should properly be reserved entirely for the Pig System. However, they prefer an easy target like McVeigh. What they invite upon themselves through this constitutes their own perfect answer.

And it is coming. Vietnam is coming here. Increasing by stages, it's here now in the form of colored crime and government attempts at repression. The decider will be the "wild card" of the White Fanatics.

those Whites who will not tolerate this or leave it alone. Those, like McVeigh and thousands of others, who have yet to activate.

Like everywhere, every time before. The same evil, alien domination, with the renegade State holding every conceivable material advantage. With cocky assuredness, but also with the kind of softness which that breeds, leaving them in the end without the inner-toughness required to go on when events will have equalized the situation.

The same as always before. They are a lie and they will lose because of it.

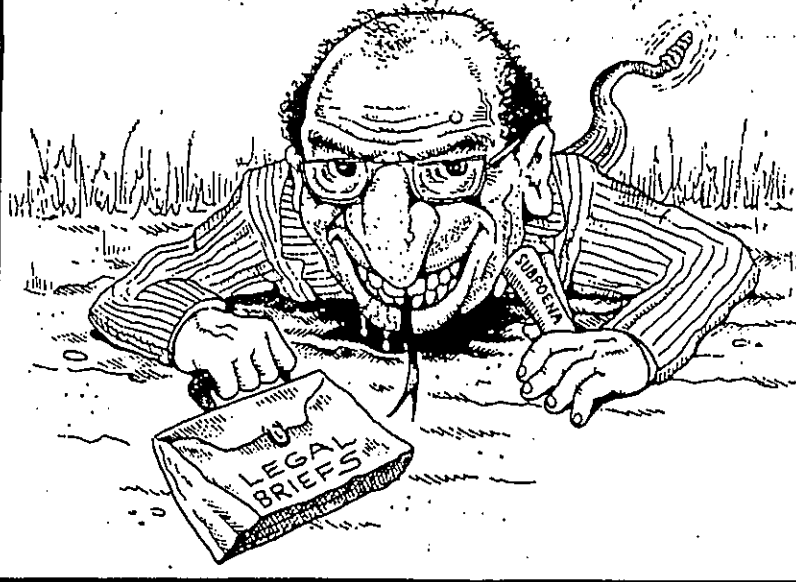

There will be terrible hell to pay. We will liberate this people in spite of itself.

The System will be eliminated.

A White Racial State will be established.

J. D. L., A. D. L., A. C. L. U.

death." Such is the atmosphere in which the bombing of the Federal Building in Oklahoma City took place. All those lives, plus his own, taken in an act of perfect love and complete devotion by Timothy McVeigh. A supreme signal and statement. A hero who will be remembered by history.

The "impenetrably stupid" masses, as also described by Hitler, as reflected by those jurors, can only react like ghouls, concerned with the dead and with killing McVeigh himself. It's the easiest thing in the world to understand death. Better to understand the reason why, apart from vague suggestions of vendetta for the government murder of those at Waco, neither the public nor those jurors possessed a single clue. Nor will any of them ever, even as events increase to overwhelm them. Naturally, the State media promotes this apathy, this ignorance, and invites more and worse.

So Very Simple

by James Mason

Even at this extremely late date, I still receive letters from those who are ostensibly part of "the Movement," but who remain fixated upon matters like how one may consider themselves or others, what one may happen to believe, or what ideals they may hold. In each instance, any response would have to be in terms of a System definition, within a System context. Because of that, any such discussion would be both irrelevant and immaterial.

However, I don't simply shut people off. I try to relate my reasoning.

If you are as yet in the mode of imagining that these poor groups, whatever their name, symbology, program, etc., will ever be in a position of affecting anything so long as the present System exists, you are living in a dreamworld and need to wake up. That is unless you find purpose in mindless, introverted, "hamster wheel" activities with all their paranoia, petty intrigue and personality conflicts. It shouldn't be necessary for me to point out the unworthiness of all this and how unbecoming it is for the Racial Separatist Struggle.

There is no need for debate or categorization. It's all meaningless. It will only serve to get you lost and keep you lost.

It doesn't matter what you, I, or anybody else may believe. It doesn't matter what any of us may like or not like or what we might do or not do. And, it certainly doesn't matter what we may call ourselves or others. The only thing that matters is what is. As far as the individual is concerned, it is a matter of knowing how to sort that out.

At bottom, a certain power exists. Using your abilities of observation, determine what it is producing and where it is leading; you'll inevitably arrive at the conclusion that it is an alien dictatorship, taking a form of a behind-the-scenes conspiracy, that will do as it will do, regardless of anything. That it has its Media to paint the Universe in any colors which happen to suit it. That it has the whole Economy with which to buy and sell everyone, high and low. That it has its Police and Military to go and kill any opposition it considers dangerous. There can and shall be no "reform" of this.

Beyond that, we live in a unique moment in history. What used to require centuries to develop, we are witnessing in the space of decades before our very eyes. The death of a civilization. This is Rome in fast-forward. With or without the power which is in control, this trend has already gone so far that what any middle-aged person was born into is gone with the wind absolutely. It can't be fixed. It can't even be flushed. Why gripe? Why complain? Do you expect it to improve? Do you expect it to stand still? The cause is only too obvious.

Are you being dragged along by this or are you able to see what is? If you can really see it, then it is up to you to decide whether you can, in any way, identify with it or whether it, in any way, represents you. Only if you can see it can you know if you are part of it. Certainly, you are either with it or you are not. Of course, if you're with it, you're with it. If not, shall you be a reluctant slave to it? That is one of the few calls you can make. No names, titles, symbols or discussion. Just "either-or."

In order to see and know requires awareness. This circumstances reflect that perfectly.

Awareness is really elemental. You are what you are by birth. You had no choice in that, neither then nor now. And there only is what there is and you have no choice in that, either. Your only choice is to cultivate the awareness to know what you are, what actually is, and then to determine your relationship to it.

You must know the nature of the System and you must know your own nature. Neither can be changed. It is only a matter of being asleep or awake as far as you are concerned because, I assure you, the System is wide awake and knows what it is doing. Only through awareness can you decide whether you are part of the System by birth, as some are, or whether you have merely been asleep just as the Media has lulled you. Then, you must ask yourself why any System or any Media would want to rob you of any sense of reality.

In the midst of any circumstance, it will always be what you were born as and your level of awareness. Should awareness go, so too shall the organism soon enough follow. Then, you have been X-ed out of the equation and there only remains what is, the System.

If there is a purpose to the System, it can only be to make the condition of confusion a permanent one, a genetic one. One without chance or hope of salvation or redemption. One from which there can be no waking up. Its final goal is to alter how future generations are born, what they are born as. This so that all will be part of the System by birth, by nature, with no choice. Then, it's too late forever. Some goal. The place where this has already happened is called the Third World.

The way to the accomplishment of this goal on the part of the System is the lie. The lie is the enemy of all awareness, all truth. Who or what would willingly and knowingly wield the weapon of lies in order to achieve its aims? You must know and hate the System because it represents lies for truth. It's not for me here to tell you what lies themselves are representative of.

Real awareness will tell you that even as we are subject to what only is in this world, it too is finally subject to the laws of the Universe and that those are truth in its purest form. You'll be aware also that this System of lies is even now collapsing of its own impossibility. If you can know what a lie is, you can know what truth is. And, you can know what truth is representative of.

All of it comes down to where you are going to be found at the climax. Where will you be at End-Game, when it's all over and done with, for keeps? Your real choice is in whether you will have been claimed by the lie, as will have been the majority of all others.

is what Media strives to dull through thrills, diversions, and general confusion. Which ball team do you support? What was the last score? Which side of what Media issue do you find yourself on? What's your drug of choice? Which criminal politician shall you vote for? How to pour out your energy trying to contain the decomposition of the decaying corpse? How best to demonstrate your "style" and "individuality" to the World? However, all may unite on "hate" and "racism" being "evil." There virtually is no awareness. And

from the Jerusalem Post

A modem is becoming the anti-Semite's best friend, as Holocaust-deniers and Jew-haters continue to exploit Cyberspace to spread their venomous diatribes.

Cost-effective, quick, and able to transfer large amounts of material, the Internet has become the new playground of hate groups, according to a special chapter entitled, "Anti-Semitism on the Internet," by David Sitman.

According to Cabinet Secretary Danny Naveh, a member of a forum which monitors anti-Semitism, there are now some 200 sites proffering such material. Most material still comes from the United States and Canada and is in English, but some in other languages is also being offered.

Sitman advises those who encounter such sites to contact their Internet providers, who may not even be aware of their existence.

Errata

Page six, paragraph one: "Pigs may be Pigs, but those who have truck with them are indeed swine."

Page eight, paragraph ten: "Decking out in ersatz 'SS' regalia doesn't automatically instill that same sense of 'treue'."

Page eight, paragraph twelve: "For the petty and narrow, that two-way street of unspoken, but expected, loyalty can be interrupted and broken practically at the drop of a hat."

Page ten, paragraph twelve: "If you follow Irving Berlin's idea of 'mountains, prairies and oceans white with foam', then America is a big piece of real estate or, more recently, of big business conglomerates."

Page twelve, paragraph eight: "Here we were, the White victors of World War II, and we were concerned over what we were witnessing taking place in the country and found ourselves unable to 'do' anything at all about it."

Page seventeen, paragraph fifteen: "And that, in its clarity and purity, will establish us as the core and magnet, the conscience and brain of the revolution that is building."

Page twenty, paragraph six: "However, I'll be damned if I've ever been hassled by any gang members."

Page twenty, paragraph seven: "This is Ad-Seg (Administrative Segregation)."

Page twenty, paragraph fourteen: "Anytime police make a bust going on the basis of ZOG laws and it gets jammed up in the courts, this is good, even if this has to come about by coloreds sticking together where Whites won't."

Page twenty-one, paragraph nine: "I'm approximately one year away from my own thirtieth anniversary in the Movement."

Page twenty-two, paragraph fourteen: "It was eliminated in the Jewish revolt of about 70 A.D. which led to the utter destruction of Jerusalem and the final dispersal of its people."

Page twenty-two, paragraph fifteen: "Centuries following this, the empire of the Khazars was destroyed and scattered militarily."

Page twenty-three, paragraph five: "My mother was nominally a Methodist, mostly for the sake of appearances."

Page twenty-three, paragraph ten: "To put it directly, this man was espousing an 'Ancient Astronaut' theory long before the world had heard of Erich von Daniken."

Page twenty-three, paragraph nineteen: "As most reading this will know, there is one section of the Racialist Movement, the Identity Christians, who have it that the 'Lost Tribes of Israel' went on to found the nations of modern Europe."

Page twenty-three, paragraph twenty: "So it needs to be strenuously borne in mind at all times that the Holy Bible is far from being the only 'holy' text around."

Page twenty-five, paragraph eighteen: "However, it will come down to the Enemy wearing himself out hitting and kicking and helping himself to the limp body of the White bio-mass, until he has exhausted himself and collapses in a heap."

Page twenty-five, final paragraph: "They'd rather go on as the 'Captain of Mamscam', to quote from Him, the Servant of Truth."

Page twenty-six, paragraph twenty: "The coloreds will continue to multiply and exacerbate the problem closer to the breaking point."

Page twenty-seven, paragraph eight: "Please note that on key, critical matters such as race or the role of Jews there is never any debate permitted and both 'parties' will be found to be in concert there at any time: trembling acceptance of Coloreds and fawning kowtow to Jews."

Page thirty, paragraph four: "No amount of outrage, no attempts at waking up were of any avail. Some of the more mature patiently insisted that the swing from Liberal to Conservative would eventually come as a matter of natural course."

Page thirty-five, final paragraph: "Let any who dare deny the rumblings."

Page thirty-six, paragraph three: "So, without write-up or incident, I was trundled off to C.S.P. (Colorado State Penitentiary), the 'Alcatraz of the Rockies', a maximum security control unit."

Page forty, paragraph thirteen: "We're warehoused here for their 'job security'."

Page forty-one, paragraph seventeen: "They are doomed, all of them for all time, if the System survives and goes on with its programs and with current racial trends."
